CHAPTER IX.

THE HAMILTON PALACE COLLECTION.

ONCERNING the most important art sale ever held in this country, we cannot do better than quote the first portion of an admirable article which appeared in The Times of February 6th, 1882: "The Duke of Hamilton has determined that the noble collection of pictures, statues, and splendid decorative furniture of this ancient ducal mansion, with the exception of the family portraits and articles possessing a purely family interest, shall be disposed of about the same time with the library. . . . It is intended, we understand, that the sale, which will form one more of the many important dispersions of Art Treasures which have made the galleries of Messrs. Christie famous in the annals of Art Sales for more than a century, shall take place during the coming summer. Hamilton Palace dates back to times as early as the old kings of Scotland, having got its name of

Palace long before the Lords of Hamilton of olden times became possessed of it as the appanage of their possessions at Hamilton, now grown into a busy town of trade and manufacture. Enclosed within the domain is Moat Hill, an ancient seat of justice, with a Runic cross near it and an old gateway. Cadzow Castle and Chatelherault are other interesting relics of the ancient Dukes of Chatelherault created by Henri II. of France in the Hamilton family. The present mansion, however, retains nothing of the ancient palace, and is a stone edifice of vast size built in the debased classic style of the seventeenth century, with parts added at the wings, forming the Beckford library at one side, and the new state rooms, built in 1838, on the other, presenting a front by no means imposing, but rather heavy and gloomy in appearance, with indifferent approaches. Having a souterrain of vast mineral wealth, it has suffered, like many other great residences in the North, from the encroaching spread of coal and iron works, and numerous mills and factories, the tall chimneys pouring forth their perpetual fumes of smoke and noxious vapours in every direction, and rendering it every year more and more unsuitable as a residence for a great nobleman. It may be described as quadrangular in plan with a central block about 264 feet long, flanked by wings enclosing a courtyard open to the south with the entrance door in the middle of the central façade, under a fine portico of columns 25 feet high each, of a single block from the Dalsersf quarries, and on a model of those of the temple of Jupiter Stator at Rome. The main front of the building faces the garden, and looks north, the Beckford library standing out on the west wing, the new state apartments on the east. A remarkable feature in the massive structure is the entrance hall, which is a wall of columns placed in five rows, and supporting a groined stone ceiling, lit by windows on the garden front, and ornamented with busts on pedestals, among which are prominently placed those of Peter the Great with the Empress Catherine, which remind the visitor that the Duke Alexander was ambassador to Russia. It is to this Duke that is due the merit of having formed the extraordinary assemblage of works of Art as well as the library distinguished by his name from the Beckford library. He appears, indeed, to have been a virtuoso of heroic mould, for he not only surrounded himself with all this magnificence of Art while he lived, but he built for himself a sepulchral monument or mausoleum, and here he rests in the ancient Egyptian sarcophagus enclosed within it. This structure is like an ancient Egyptian tomb, in its extraordinary massiveness ; it stands in the Park, and is seen from afar, being no less than 120 feet high, with grand flights of steps, fine bronze doors copied from those of Ghiberti, and a basement of vaulted tombs, intended to be occupied by the future Dukes of Hamilton."

Alexander tenth Duke of Hamilton, to whom reference is made in the foregoing account as the founder of the celebrated Hamilton Palace collection, was born in 1767; he travelled for many years in Italy, all the time collecting pictures and objects of art generally. He entered the House of Commons as member for Lancaster in 1803, sitting as Marquis of Douglas, and on the accession of the Whigs to power in 1806 he was sent as the British Ambassador to the Court of St. Petersburg, being recalled in 1807. He was summoned to the House of Peers as Baron Dutton in 1806, and succeeded to the dukedom on the death of his father in 1819. He officiated as Lord High Steward at the Coronation of William IV. and Queen Victoria; he held two dukedoms, two marquisates, three earldoms, and eight baronies. He married, in 1810, the beautiful heiress Susan Euphemia Beckford, second daughter of William Beckford of Fonthill, the author of "Vathek." The duke died at his residence in Portman Square, August 18, 1852. The twelfth Duke of Hamilton (son of the eleventh duke by Princess Marie of Baden) by whose order the contents of Hamilton Palace were sold, was born in 1845 and died at Algiers on May 16, 1895.

Full justice cannot possibly be done to this noble collection within the limits to which we are compelled to confine ourselves; but failing the complete descriptive catalogue, probably the following résumé of the principal articles, with the amounts they realized in the sale, will prove sufficiently full for most ordinary purposes. The articles are taken in the order in which they were sold.

I. DUTCH AND FLEMISH PICTURES:—J. Van Breda, party of Cavaliers halting at a farrier's shed, 10 × 15, 250 guineas; Mytens, Portrait of Charles I., in a crimson and white slashed dress, with the ribbon of the Garter, 46 × 36, from the Bernal sale, 770 guineas; H. Holbein, Edward Seymour, Duke of Somerset, Lord Protector, in a black furred dress and cap, 20 × 15, 490 guineas; Rubens, Portrait of the Duke D'Olivarez, an oval, 28 × 22, engraved by Pontius, and in small by Galle, Jr., 450 guineas; A. Van der Neer, View of a Dutch town on a river, with buildings, boats and figures, 34×45 , 265 guineas; A. "Nothing surely can exceed the masterly execution of this picture; it has the correctness of Raphael's drawing, and the grace and softness of Correggio's pencil. There are two drawings after the same boy in the drawing-book of Leonardo in the Ambrosian Library at Milan. This picture was in the Arundel collection, and was inherited by Lady Betty Germaine, who left it in her will to the present proprietor [Sir William Hamilton]. It was purchased at this sale [for 1,300 guineas] for W. Beckford, Esq., of Fonthill, was lately sold at Fonthill [in 1823 for 985 guineas] by order of Mr. Farquhar, the purchaser of the fine estate, and was again purchased by Mr. Beckford, in whose collection it now is. This picture by Leonardo da Vinci was the only picture of note in the collection of Sir William Hamilton."

C. Gow, A Real Toledo, 16 × 27, 205 guineas ; and F. Walker, Going to School, 220 guineas.

The first of the great sales of the year comprised the collection of modern pictures formed by Mr. Thomas Taylor, the well-known Cotton Manufacturer, called the Aston Rowant Gallery, from the name of Mr. Taylor's place at Tetsworth, Oxfordshire. Mr. Taylor, who was born in 1808, and who died quite recently, possessed a very excellent judgment in the matter of art, and was sufficiently independent to purchase without the advice of dealers and connoisseurs, many of the works in his gallery being obtained direct from the artists. In many instances the prices now realized were double and even treble the amounts which Mr. Taylor originally paid, although, on the other hand, considerable "drops" were experienced in a few other instances. The collection, which was sold on April 28th, included 94 lots, which produced the total of £34,500 16s. The more noteworthy pictures were as follows:—J. Brett, Bude Sands at Sunset, 30 × 50, 315 guineas; and Etna, from Taormina, 33 × 48, 450 guineas; J. B. Burgess, Licensing the Beggars, Spain, 48 × 75, 1,110 guineas (Royal Holloway College); Rush for Water, Morocco, 45 × 66, 325 guineas; and The Presentation, a visit to a Moorish House, 44 × 60, 400 guineas; T. Ansdell, A Boggled Pony, 1847, the engraved picture, 335 guineas; B. Riviere, the Highland Garrison, a collie dog and two terriers, 360 guineas; J. Linnell, Midday Rest, 38 × 54, 1865, retouched in 1875, a replica of the Mendel picture, 38 × 54, 1,510 guineas; Colin Hunter, "With Wind and Tide," 305 guineas; D. Roberts, Pilgrims approaching Jerusalem, painted for Lord Monson, 40 × 84, 370 guineas (Holloway College); R. Wilson, Landscape with the river between Dolgelly and Barmouth, Cader Idris in the distance, 36 × 54, 500 guineas; A. Elmore, Scandal from the Housetop, a Syrian subject, 1867, 200 guineas; and a Greek Ode, youths reciting to a girl near the sea, 250 guineas. The property (ten pictures in all) of the late Henry Woods included Sir A. W. Callcott, An English Landscape, with cattle by Landseer, painted in 1842, formerly in the Knott sale (1,000 guineas), afterwards in the Bicknell collection and subsequently in the Duncan Fletcher sale, 1865 (£2,000), 72 × 54, 1,400 guineas; C. Stanfield, View on the Coast of Normandy, near Gonville, 1837, 72 × 54, 900 guineas; D. Maclise, Peter the Great working as a shipwright in Deptford dockyard, 1857, 60 × 96, 370 guineas (Holloway College); J. M. W. Turner, Van Tromp's shallop at the entrance of the Scheldt, 1832, 30 × 37—not the Novar picture with a somewhat similar name—3,500 guineas (the same).

One of the interesting sales of the year comprised the remaining works of the late Dante Gabriel Rossetti (who died at Birchington in April, 1882), which came under the hammer on May 12th. There were 211 drawings in crayon, coloured chalks, pen-and-ink, sepia and pencil, and a few drawings, the whole realizing the total of £4,692. The principal lots were as follows:—Beata Beatrix a replica of the well-known picture, 1880, 630 guineas; Joan of Arc kissing the consecrated sword, the artist's last picture, 1882, 350 guineas; "The Boat of Love," painted in grisaille about 1874, a composition of eighteen figures illustrating a sonnet by Dante, 120 guineas; a water-colour drawing of Giotto painting the portrait of Dante, 1852, 410 guineas; and a large number of other drawings which sold from a few guineas up to 200 guineas paid for the Aurea Catena in black chalk, although the majority sold for considerably under three figures.

The collection of pictures and water-colour drawings formed by Mr. William Lee was sold on May 26th and 28th; there were 201 lots, the actual sales showing a total of £20,539 17s. 6d. The following were the more important pictures: L. Alma Tadema, First Course, 17 × 7, 770 guineas; Siesta, 18 × 6, 430 guineas; Wine, 14 × 6, 480 guineas; and a Kitchen Garden, with woman and slave cutting ripe onions' seed, 14 × 8, 470 guineas; John Brett, Carthillon Cliffs, 18 × 36, 260 guineas; G. Cole, Welsh Valley, 40 × 60, 325 guineas; T. S. Cooper, Sunny Landscape, cows in a stream, 29 × 42, 475 guineas; David Cox, Carting Sand, 1849, $7\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{1}{4}$, 280 guineas; T. Troyon, Woman Driving Geese, 14×10 , 460 guineas; and Man Driving Cows and Sheep, evening effect, 25×31 , 1,900 guineas.

We can only briefly allude to a few of the other noteworthy sales of the year. The Stourhead heirlooms, collected for the most part by Sir Richard Colt Hoare, the second baronet [1758-1838], the well-known antiquary, traveller, and banker, came under the hammer, the porcelain and decorative objects on June 1st (forty-nine lots, £2,254), and the pictures (sixty-nine lots, £10,639 2s. 6d.) on the following day; whilst the plate was not sold until July 2nd, 1884. The most noteworthy article in the first day's sale was a fine statuette of the youthful Bacchus in marble by M. Rysbrack, 46 inches high, executed for H. Hoare in 1751, 62 guineas. The "old masters," as Hazlitt pointed out in a description of Stourhead, Wilts, written in the early part of the century, were mostly old copies. The principal prices were the following: Carlo Dolci, Daughter of Herodius, 47×37 , 460 guineas; Claude, Landscape, with figures and cattle, engraved by Mason, 240 guineas;

N. Poussin, Rape of the Sabines, 60 × 84, 340 guineas; Rembrandt, Landscape, night scene, travellers by a fire, 12 × 18, 480 guineas; and Elisha Raising the Widow's Son, engraved by Earlom, 62 × 49, 200 guineas—in 1884 this picture again came up for sale, when it was pronounced to be not a work by Rembrandt but by Eckhout, and it sold for 65 guineas; T. Gainsborough, Landscape, with peasants and colliers on horses on a hillside, with trees, early morning effect, 2,700 guineas (Holloway College); J. M. W. Turner, Lake Avernus, Æneas and the Sibyl, 30 × 37, 475 guineas; eight drawings of Salisbury Cathedral by the same, viz., The Choir, 130 guineas; The Lady Chapel, 95 guineas; The Chapter House, 240 guineas; The West Front of the same, 160 guineas; North Entrance to ditto and Funeral, 130 guineas; South View of ditto, 110 guineas; The Cathedral from the Cloister, 90 guineas; and the Entrance to the Chapter House, 105 guineas; and ten drawings by Canaletto brought a total of £1,431. The Blenheim enamels (sixty-seven lots, £8,173) sold on June 14th, and the late W. Goding's collection (five days' sale, £17,000) of porcelain and pictures may also be mentioned.

The year 1884 was an annus mirabilis of art sales, and important collections were constantly being dispersed from the beginning of March to the end of July. Although not a great sale, some interesting drawings came under the hammer on Friday, March 7th, among the property of the late Cosmo Orme, a partner in the firm of Longmans and Co., sixty-six lots realizing £4,207 1s. The chief attraction centred in four beautiful water-colour drawings by Turner, executed in 1821-23 for and engraved in Whitaker's "History of Richmondshire." They measure about $11\frac{1}{2} \times 16\frac{3}{4}$, and were as follows: "The Crook of Lune," with Hornby Castle in the distance, engraved by Radcliffe, 1,100 guineas; The Wycliffe, near Rokeby, engraved by Pye, 580 guineas; Kirkby Lonsdale Churchyard, engraved by Heath, 820 guineas; and The Summer Lake, near Askrigg, engraved by Le Keux, 630 guineas. Mr. Orme's collection also included G. Barret, Classical River Scene, 15×19 , 270 guineas, and a few other drawings of minor importance.

The dispersal of the late Edmund Crompton Potter's collection of modern pictures, removed from Rusholme House, near Manchester, formed the first of a series of important sales during this season. Writing to The Times, March 29th, 1884, one of Mr. Potter's oldest friends states: "He was not a millionaire, though his expenditure on paintings and other works of art was large. The main point is, the expenditure was under the control of a cultivated taste. His object was not to amass, under the direction and with the help of dealers, costly things, but to surround himself and his family with what he deliberately judged to be beautiful and refining." To this it may be added that Mr. Crompton Potter was the son of Edmund Potter, the great calico printer. The sale took place on March 22nd, eighty-four pictures and two pieces of sculpture realizing a total of £32,501 14s., to which may be added over £5,116 realized on the previous day by his collection of Chinese enamels and oriental china. The chief feature of the sale was its unusual number of works (nearly all of which have been engraved) by Briton Riviere, eleven in all, which produced a total of close on £11,000. These were as follows: A Legend of St. Patrick, the saint with fawn, 56 × 48, 930 guineas; a "Double Entendre," boy and pig, 13 × 18, 290 guineas; Let Sleeping Dogs Lie, a navvy asleep and his dog, 1880, 26 × 34, 1,050 guineas; Cupboard Love, 1881, 56 × 44, 1,000 guineas; "Come Back," weeping woman and two dogs, 1871, 37 × 29, 710 guineas; A Midsummer Night's Dream, 1869-70, 57 × 39, 360 guineas; Lions Roaring, Psalm cxiv. 21, 57 × 91, 850 guineas; Pallas Athene, and the Herdsman's Dogs, scene from the Odyssey, 1876, 47 × 70, 550 guineas; Daniel in the Den of Lions, 1872, 38 × 59, 2,500 guineas; Persepolis, moonlight effect, with lions, 1878, 30 × 53, 1,000 guineas; and All that was Left of the Homeward Bound, young woman lashed with her dog to a floating mast, 1883, 36 × 50, 1,100 guineas. Pictures by other artists included David Cox, The Church at Bettws-y-Coed, 1857, 31 × 43, from the Norman Wilkinson sale, 1872 (2,000 guineas), and the Levysale of 1876, 2,550 guineas; The Skirts of the Wood, with gipsies, 1843, 29 × 36, 1,350 guineas—about half the amount it realized in the Gillott sale; The Coming Storm, 1850, 23 × 33, 300 guineas; and Darley

Dale Churchyard, 1850, 19 × 25, 460 guineas; J. C. Hook, Wise Saws, river scene with raven and cows, 31 × 55, 1875, 1,200 guineas; and A Cornish Gift, from Colonel Holdsworth's collection, 1881, 850 guineas; Sir F. Leighton, The Mermaid, painted for Signor Mario, the famous tenor, 26 × 19, 1871, 340 guineas—from the Cholmondeley sale of 1874, when it realized 285 guineas, it occurred in an anonymous sale on May 8th, 1886, and fetched 205 guineas, and again, April 18th, 1896, when it sold for 350 guineas; and Electra at the Tomb of Agamemnon, 1871, 60 × 30, 900 guineas; Sir J. E. Millais, the two portrait studies, "Stella," 1,400 guineas, and "Vanessa," 1,300 guineas—both these pictures measure 44 × 36, and have been engraved; W. Mulready, The Bathers Surprised, 24 × 18, 300 guineas; G. Romney, Lady Hamilton as the Comic Muse, an oval, 32 × 27, "well-known to have been cut from a picture of a full-length figure," 530 guineas; and a fine Portrait of Mrs. Jordan, with chin in her hand (catalogued as Lady Hamilton), 700 guineas. The only works by foreign artists which we need specially mention were Louis Gallait, Columbus in Prison, 1865, 400 guineas—at the Mendel sale this realized 850 guineas; E. Michel, Le Sanglier Mort, winter forest scene, 55 × 78, 1878, 205 guineas; and Les Cicognes, 55 × 68, 360 guineas; Ary Scheffer, Hebe, the engraved picture, 530 guineas—at the Baron Grant sale this work sold for 1,370 guineas; and four works of F. Vinea, Soldiers Drinking, 23 × 29, 330 guineas; Gossip at the Cantina, 28×23 , 330 guineas; Interior of an Inn, soldier and monk, 16×20 , 350 guineas; and The Page, 16×20 , 180 guineas.

A few noteworthy water-colour drawings were sold among the collection of the late Mrs. Morrison, of Mountblairy House, of Mr. Edward Sibeth, and other properties sold on March 28th and 29th, and among others there were: Carl Haag, Tyrolese Huntsman and Mountain Girl, from the Quilter collection, 46×30 , 400 guineas; Akbar, Arab at Prayer, 16×34 , 570 guineas; Kaheen Amram, 47×30 , 480 guineas; and a Wandering Arab Family, 20×14 , 320 guineas; William Hunt, purple and white Grapes and sprig of holly, 9×13 , from the Wade collection (1872, 260 guineas), 355 guineas; three Quinces and hips, oval, 10×12 , 270 guineas; basket of Plums, blue and white jar, with rose and lobelia, 11×8 , from the Wade collection (205 guineas), 265 guineas; Lilacs and bird's nest, 9×13 , from the James collection (1873, 310 guineas), 300 guineas; and a companion pair, The First Cigar—"The Aspirant," and "Used Up," together, 240 guineas; J. M. W. Turner, Fluelen, 14×18 , 400 guineas; and P. de Wint, Waltham Abbey, haymaking, 215 guineas. The Levy sale of May 3rd, has already been dealt with; the sensation of the following week (8th, 9th, and 10th) was provided by the dispersal of the large collection of objects of art formed by the late Lord Londesborough, and now the property of Lady Otho Fitzgerald. One great picture, however, Landseer's famous "Monarch of the Glen," serves to make this collection famous, and completely eclipses all other things in the three days' sale. This picture, which measures about 65 x 66, and is very well known through Thomas Landseer's engraving, was painted for a compartment in the House of Lords, but it was declined by that officious body—whose several individuality ought to have been preserved for the scorn of succeeding generations—known as the Royal Commissioners; it was purchased by Lord Londesborough of the artist for 350 guineas, and was now secured by Mr. Eaton, M.P. for 6,200 guineas. Other pictures in this collection were, E. W. Cooke, Chioggian fishing vessels, running into the lagune of Venice, on the approach of a "borasco" in the Adriatic, 1856, 320 guineas; D. Roberts, The Grand Canal, Venice, 1853, 40 x 72, 940 guineas; C. Stanfield, a Guarda Costa, riding out in a gale off Fuentarabia at the mouth of the Bidassoa, Basque Provinces, 1856, 1,900 guineas; and J. F. Herring, Senr., an English Homestead, with a grey horse, 1852, 350 guineas. The Londesborough sale included ten pictures, and thirteen pieces of sculpture, which realized £11,358 18s. and the objects of art brought £4,504 5s. 9d. Of the pictures from other properties, sold after the foregoing collection, we may mention T. Creswick, Coming Summer, with sheep by Cooper and figures by Frith, 750 guineas; T. Faed, Reading the Bible, 1,650 guineas (bought in); Benczur, Versailles, October 6th, 1789, the King and his family awaiting the entrance of the mob, 490 guineas; Rosa Bonheur, Brittany Shepherd and Sheep, 10 × 12, 510 guineas; H. M'Culloch, Loch Katrine, 530 guineas; and J. M. W. Turner, Dunstanborough Castle: morning after a storm, 900 guineas (probably bought in).

The collection of pictures and water-colour drawings formed by the late Charles Skipper of Russell Square, sold on May 24th, comprised 104 lots which realized the considerable total of £16,253. The principal pictures were R. Ansdell, The Victor, 58 × 96, 450 guineas; Sir A. W. Callcott, Dutch boats fouling, 610 guineas; W. Collins, Selling Fish, from the Bicknell collection, 33 × 46, 850 guineas; E. W. Cooke, Scheveningen Beach, 18 × 30, 220 guineas; T. Creswick, Over the Sands, 1865, 38 × 50, 400 guineas; John Faed, Peggy, from the "Gentle Shepherd," 20 × 15, 280 guineas; F. Goodall, The School of Sultan Hassan, Cairo, 14 × 21, 230 guineas; J. C. Hook, Milk for the Schooner, sailor boys tying the legs of a goat to carry her on board, 27 × 42, 610 guineas; Sir E. Landseer, "Pensioners," two fine old hunters, a dark bay and a grey, from the Hargreave's sale of 1873 (1,600 guineas), 15 × 23, 1,250 guineas; J. Linnell, "Contemplation," a wooded vale in Autumn, 28 × 43, 450 guineas; W. J. Müller, Little Waders, children playing in a pond under trees, 35 × 27, 400 guineas; P. Nasmyth, view in Hampshire, with horseman and other figures near a cottage, 1822, 19 × 28, 440 guineas; J. Phillip, The Promenade, Spanish lady, and gentleman saluting her, 30 × 22

510 guineas; D. Roberts, The High Altar, SS. Giovanni and Paolo, Venice, 1858, 55 × 42, 310 guineas; C. Stanfield, Holland's Diep, 1858, 26 × 42, 950 guineas, and Mazorbo and Torcello, Gulf of Venice, 33 × 50, 730 guineas; and J. M. W. Turner, Rosenau, the seat of H.R.H. Prince Consort, from the Gillott collection (1,850 guineas), 880 guineas. The best of the drawings were David Cox, Brough Castle, near Kendal, 23 × 33, 260 guineas; C. Fielding, The South Downs, 23 × 38, 270 guineas; and Samuel Prout, The Porch of St. Maclou, Rouen, 28 × 21, 270 guineas.

Sir Andrew Fountaine, to whose love of art the celebrated collection which bore his name owes its origin, was the eldest son of Andrew Fountaine Esq., of Brookmans, Chicheley, Master of the Ordnance, and was born in 1676. For his classical attainments he was knighted in 1699 by King William III. at Hampton Court. In 1701 he paid an official visit to Hanover with Lord Macclesfield, and went thence to Italy, passing through Munich, and buying anything scarce and curious which came under his notice. He succeeded to Narford on the death of his father in 1707; seven years later he made a long sojourn in Paris, going thence to Italy, and spending nearly three years at Rome and Florence, where he became intimate with Cosmo III., Grand Duke of Tuscany. In 1727 he succeeded Sir Isaac Newton as Master of the Mint. In 1732 he determined to retire to his country seat, and removed a portion of his treasures to Narford. Unfortunately a number of valuable articles were destroyed by fire at White's Chocolate House, where he stayed after he gave up his house in St. James's Place. His collection, which was considerably augmented by the late Mr. Andrew Fontaine, who died in 1873, comprised the rarest and most beautiful works of cinquecento ceramic art ever formed by a private individual, many of the examples being absolutely unique.

Before the sale came on, a Syndicate was formed for the purpose of purchasing such objects as appeared to be specially required to supply deficiencies existing in the British and South Kensington Museums, with the result that six pieces of Italian majolica, five of Palissy ware, and seven lots of Limoges enamels were secured, the total expenditure amounting to £9,924 14s.

The sale commenced on Monday, June 16th, and concluded on the following Thursday, 565 lots having realized the total of £91,113 1s. 6d. The prints were sold on July 7th, and the three following days, the total amounting to £5,165 11s. The more important lots, taken in the order of sale, were as follows:—FIRST DAY: A Gubbio dish in metallic lustre, cupid with bird in a ruby lusted medallion, an unsigned work of Maestro Giorgio, but much broken, $9\frac{1}{4}$ inches, 155 guineas; another, with the prophet Balaam in landscape, with lusted foliage, signed Mo. Go., 1534, $10\frac{1}{2}$, £170; a flat Urbino plate, five figures invoking Æolus, sea background and boats, $10\frac{7}{8}$ inches, a very beautiful plate in perfect condition, 58 guineas (from the Bernal sale, when it realized £12 10s.); a Faenza plate, grotesques, masks, cupids, trophies of arms, and musical instruments, $10\frac{3}{4}$ inches, 1508, £920; a Faenza dish, with the entombment from Dürer's design, arabesques, with medallions of St. Peter, $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches, 15×9 , 145 guineas (Syndicate); Urbino plate, with six soldiers in a chamber, lighted with lamp, with subject from the Amadis de Gaul, $9\frac{1}{4}$ inches, 134 guineas (the same); another, of brilliant colouring and fine work, sunk centre, having the coat of Gonzaga impaling d'Este, with bar of music notes below, on each side figures by Nicola da Urbino, $10\frac{1}{4}$ inches, 375 guineas (No. 2,050 Bernal sale, £51); another by Fra Xanto, figures with river scene and banner inscribed Seleucus, 1532, 10 inches, 95 guineas (Bernal sale, No. 1738, £7); Faenza dish, with boar hunt, from a very early Italian print, arabesques, and medallions with Latin mottoes on scrolls, $14\frac{7}{8}$, 210 guineas; a Pesaro dish, (broken) probably the earliest known, with portrait of Giovanni Sforza and his mother-in-law, Camilla de Maranza, $14\frac{1}{4}$ inches, engraved in Marryat's "Pottery and Porcelain," £270; another, with two cupids, roses and ribands on dark blue lusted rays on border, and four medallions, 17 inches, 250 guineas; Urbino dish, with siege of Rome by the Constable de Bourbon, castle of St. Angelo and bridge, $17\frac{1}{4}$, engraved in Delange, the brim much broken and restored, 300 guineas; another, with raised centre for a vase to stand, painted with nymph reclining under a tree, and Apollo with Marsyas, above, the Feast of the Gods, after Raphael, the whole surrounded by a fine border of "sopra bianco" work, with fruit and foliage in colours, 20 inches, 240 guineas (Syndicate); a large dish, painted with the Conversion of Saul, and numerous figures and horses, with architectural background, a pasticcio after Raphael, a magnificent dish, considered to be of Castle Durante ware, 360 guineas (the same); a fine Urbino cistern painted with Pluto and Proserpine, figures and animals, cupids in the clouds, $20 \times 8\frac{3}{4}$, much broken and mended, 210 guineas. PALISSY WARE: The Briot ewer, beautifully modelled after the design of Cellini, 12 inches high, engraved in Delange, 1,300 guineas; a beautiful pair of ewers, ornamented with reclining figures on the sides in oval medallions in green, 12 inches high, similar to one in the Louvre and engraved in Delange's "Monographie de l'Œuvre de B. Palissy," 800 guineas; a pair of candlesticks with openwork stems, with marguerites and raised foliage, 12 inches high, quite perfect, £1,510 (Syndicate); a candlestick, in form of a coloured marble Corinthian column on square base, engraved in Delange, 610 guineas; a large oval cistern elaborately ornamented with masks of cherubs' heads, with festoons of drapery and fruits all round the body of the cistern, the ground of rustic work greenish, $32\frac{1}{2}$ inches long, $17\frac{1}{2}$ inches wide, and $13\frac{1}{4}$ inches high, £1,911; another, ornamented with similar taste, with heads of marine deities at the sides, from which hang festoons of fruits joining to heads of dolphins at the ends, four lions' claws as feet, $37\frac{1}{2}$ inches long, 24 inches wide, $14\frac{1}{2}$ inches high, illustrated in Delange and Marryatt, 1,050 guineas (Syndicate); an antique-shaped ewer, by Susanne Court, or, more correctly, De Court, pupil of Jean de Court, very richly painted in brilliant translucent and other enamel, with soldiers carrying trophies and a head on a pike, with, on the other side, female figures playing musical instruments, on the upper part of the body a chariot drawn by oxen, a man playing a viola, and women with musical instruments, $10\frac{5}{8}$ to top of handle, 1,250 guineas; a casket with round top by the same, painted in compartments in very rich colour with Scripture subjects, $8\frac{3}{4} \times 7\frac{1}{2}$, 450 guineas; a large grisaille cup, Moses striking the rock, masks and grotesques on the outside, signed "J. C." (Jean Courtois), $9\frac{1}{2}$ inches diameter, 600 guineas; a tinted grisaille cup, with four raised medallions of cupids playing violoncellos and other figures, $9\frac{1}{4}$ inches, signed "P. R." (Pierre Raymond), 500 guineas; the companion cup, by the same artist, 600 guineas (Syndicate); a large round dish by the same, painted with subjects from Exodus xviii., the flesh lightly tinted, 18 inches, 370 guineas; a large round dish by Leonard Raymond, in its original metal setting, painted in the centre with Cupid and Psyche, surrounded with flowers and wreaths of leaves and a border of figures, fish, birds and beasts, $17\frac{1}{8}$ inches diameter, 370 guineas, and a large round dish, probably by Jean Penicauld the younger, finely painted with the Supper of the Gods, after Raphael, $17\frac{1}{2}$ inches diameter, 730 guineas (Syndicate).

SECOND DAY : A Faenza dish, two cupids with green and brown wings, with rich blue ground, 1520, engraved in Delange's "Recueil de Faïences Italiennes," 620 guineas (from the Bernal sale £61); a grand Urbino oval dish, with raised oval centre with subject of the Children of Israel gathering manna, surrounded with raised green, yellow and brown scrolls, four compartments surround the centre containing medallions on black and blue grounds, the back with sunk centre of Venus riding on a dolphin, $26\frac{1}{2} \times 20\frac{1}{2}$, a superb work without a flaw, 1,270 guineas (Syndicate); Urbino ewer, painted with Venus, Vulcan and cupids, and views of buildings in landscape, by Orazio Fontana, $10\frac{1}{4}$ inches high, 550 guineas. PALISSY WARE : A circular dish, with Diana seated on her stag, and hounds in the centre, engraved in Delange, $16\frac{1}{2}$ inches, 800 guineas; ewer covered with foliage, reptiles and shells in relief, coloured, 12 inches high, 295 guineas (Syndicate); an oblong plaque, a seated female figure emblematic of water, engraved in Delange, 21×17 , 725 guineas. LIMOGES ENAMELS : a pair of magnificent candlesticks, with subjects in grisaille from Exodus, 12 inches high, 1556, signed "P. R." (Pierre Raymond), 1,160 guineas (Syndicate); two salt cellars in coloured enamels, bust of a man in a blue vest, with imitation gems around, by Susanne Court, $4\frac{1}{8}$ inches high, 430 guineas; a fountain, with a vase-shaped basin or bowl, painted with the Parnassus, after Raphael, the whole work most elaborately painted with various mythological figures, made for the Duchesse de Valentinois by "L. L." (Leonard Limousin), 1552, 800 guineas; an antique formed ewer, with New Testament subjects and Latin inscription from Isaiah, signed "P.R.," 390 guineas (Syndicate). HENRI II. WARE: Flambeau, or candlestick, lower part of the stem of architectural design, three figures of children on a bracket, one bearing a shield with the arms of France, upper part of stem formed as a vase, the Montmorency Laval arms painted on top, $12\frac{3}{8}$ inches high, 3,500 guineas; a mortier à cire, lower part of bowl spirally fluted with a rosette ornament, upper part with four cherubs' heads in relief, four pillars with Doric capitals in green glaze, 8 inches diameter, $5\frac{3}{4}$ inches high, 1,500 guineas; and a biberon formed as a vase, handles on each side, and across the cover, children's heads in relief, the cypher "A. M." in Gothic characters repeated round the mouth of the vase, 9 inches high, 1,010 guineas.

THIRD DAY: A round dish of Gubbio lustred ware, painted with a large group of the Three Graces, probably taken from the print by Marc Antonio, a beautiful piece, considered to be the finest work of Maestro Giorgio, of Gubbio, in existence, 12 inches diameter, 1525, engraved in Delange, 730 guineas (Mr. Fontaine paid £450 for this historic piece); a very fine Gubbio lustred dish of large size, painted with five figures and a child with bird in its hand, in a landscape with town in the distance, a rivulet running across the centre, the subject being "The Stream of Life," taken from a very rare old Italian print by Robetta, a Florentine engraver of the fifteenth century, signed "M.G." 15 inches, 1525, 780 guineas (from the Bernal sale, £142); a large oval dish by Jean Courtois, painted with the Feast of the Gods, after Raphael, 20 × 15, 760 guineas (Syndicate); a large deep sunk oval dish, by the same, in coloured enamels, painted with the Miracle of the Brazen Serpent, 2,800 guineas; a fine ewer by the same, painted with a bacchanalian procession, with the royal fleur-de-lis inside, 360 guineas (Syndicate); an antique formed ewer by the same, in his finest style of brilliant colours, painted with mythological subjects, and on the top procession of children with banners and car drawn by goats, 10½ high, 2,300 guineas; and a large oval dish, with sunk centre, Raphael's "Supper of the Gods" in coloured enamels on a dark blue ground, with the portraits of Henri II. of France, Catherine de Medici on one side of him, and Diana of Poitiers on the other, the portrait of Anne de Montmorency, Constable of France, is introduced as Hercules, and other figures, signed Leonard Limousin, 1555, 19¼ × 16¾. the bidding for this splendid enamel started at 2,000 guineas and it eventually fell to Mr. Wertheimer for 7,000 guineas.

FOURTH DAY: An ivory horn, of Italian (or more probably French) work, carved most beautifully in cinquecento style, with delicate arabesques, cherub heads, birds and masks, in rather low relief all over the surface, 28 inches long, 4,240 guineas; a beautiful rock crystal cup and cover, oval in form, engraved with Noah leaving the Ark, with broad border of arabesques, $8\frac{7}{8} \times 3\frac{7}{8}$, 860 guineas; and the Reliquary of St. Lachteen, in form of an arm and hand in bronze gilt, and inlaid with silver in interlaced patterns, mellowed and enriched with silver filagree and small bosses of blue glass, with inscriptions in Irish, ancient Irish work of the twelfth century, 15 inches long, engraved in the "Vetusta Monumenta," 410 guineas (Dublin Museum).

On July 6th and 7th, 1894, yet another portion of the Fountaine collection came under the hammer, the first day comprising porcelain, bronzes, ivories, miniatures, objects of art and vertu, old French and Italian decorative furniture, illuminated manuscripts, etc., 149 lots realizing £7,391, and the second day, including 62 pictures, which produced £6,956. The grand total, therefore, of the Fountaine sales, 1884 and 1894, amounts to £110,625. The more noteworthy articles in 1894 were as follows: An Urbino ware plate, painted with subject from Virgil's "Æneid," 19 inches diameter, signed "Fra Xanto. A. La Rovigo in Urbino," and with the arms of the Negroni family, 230 guineas; an old Italian scent bottle, formed of a shell cameo finely carved with busts of Roman emperors and empresses, 205 guineas; the Strawberry Hill Cabinet, designed by Horace Walpole, of rosewood, richly carved and ornamented with ivory, 60 inches high and 38 inches wide, 100 guineas; the Seasons, a set of four fine male and female busts of heroic size in statuary marble, by F. Girardon, 500 guineas; King Henry VIII.'s Prayer Book, printed on vellum, an exceedingly interesting historical relic, with autograph inscriptions by Henry VIII., Edward VI., Queen Mary, and Queen Catherine, 610 guineas; a splendid MS. of the eleventh century, Evangelia Quatuor, Latine, "cum Prologo S. Hieronimi," £570; an extremely beautiful Book of Hours by Giulio Clovio, with 250 charming borders and 20 exquisite miniatures, executed for Eleanor, wife of Francesco Maria della Rovere, Duke of Urbino, £450; Biblia Sacra Latina, a beautiful French MS. of the seventeenth century, formerly the property of Philip le Bel, King of France, £610; and a Book of Hours of the fifteenth century, once the property of Margaret, mother of King Henry VII., and with an inscription in her handwriting, £350. The more notable pictures were as follows: W. Etty, The Choice of Paris, painted in 1825 for the Earl of Darnley and exhibited at the Royal Academy of 1826, 72 × 108, 500 guineas; D. Teniers, The Elements, a set of four figures of peasants, from the Countess Verne's collection, 7 × 5½, 200 guineas; Vandyck, Portrait of a man, full face with beard and moustache, in a dark coloured dress, 320 guineas; F. Hals, a Boy with Dog, 11 inches circle, and a Boy, the companion, 600 guineas; W. Van de Velde, a Calm, with frigate at anchor, ships and boats, signed, 40 × 41, 730 guineas; P. P. Rubens, The Prodigal Son, an interior of a stable, with numerous details painted with extraordinary care, engraved by Bolswert, 40 × 57, 800 guineas (from the W. Wilkins sale of 1838, 235 guineas); J. Ruysdael, the Lake of Haarlem, from the Duval collection at Geneva, 21×36 , 987 guineas; and A View on the Brill River (or perhaps one of the branches of the Zuider Zee) under the appearance of a strong breeze and impending rain, 39×51 , 1,300 guineas; G. Poussin, a Rocky Landscape, with trees and brushwood, with cascade seen through the foliage, and a view of Rome in the background, 37×53 , 250 guineas; Watteau, a Group of five small three-quarter length figures in masquerade dress, one holding a guitar, $9\frac{1}{4} \times 7\frac{1}{4}$, 400 guineas; F. Guardi, The Dogana, Venice, $13 \times 20\frac{1}{4}$, 380 guineas; Antonella da Messina, Portrait of a man with dark brown and white shirt and dark vest, his hands clasped, landscape background, 405 guineas; and Guido, Il Diamante, Venus stealing Cupid's bow, whole-length figures, life size, signed, 90×61 , £1,000—this picture is mentioned by Malvasia in his "Felsina Pittrice Vite dei Pittori Bolognesi" as one of the most admirable works of Guido; he states that it was painted for a jeweller in exchange for a diamond worth 150 scudi; the jeweller afterwards repenting his bargain, the picture was sent to Venice and was there sold for 300 scudi. In 1665 it was in the Duke of Mantua's collection, and was eventually bought by Buchanan from the collection of Chevalier Bucheron, President of the Academy of Painting at Turin.

"It has been known for some time past," wrote a contributor to The Times of June 16th, 1884, "that Sir Philip Miles contemplated disposing of the fine collection of pictures at his beautiful place near the village of Leigh, about five miles westward beyond Bristol and Clifton, where he recently entertained the Prince of Wales. Leigh Court is one of the handsomest of the more modern seats of Somersetshire, built most substantially of Bath stone on a spot near the old house, surrounded by the pretty woods of Leigh, in the neo-classic style followed in the early years of the present century, with a massive Ionic portico and fine entrance hall with marble columns. It was the grandfather of the present baronet, Mr. Philip Miles, a Bristol merchant, and afterwards a banker of repute, who built this mansion, about 1816, and who had the good taste to adorn it with these splendid pictures. He did not, however, form the collection, as he purchased most of the pictures at one time from his friend, Mr. Richard Hart Davis (or Davies), then M.P. for Bristol, who was a connoisseur of some pretensions, and acquainted with M. Delahante, Mr. Harris, and Mr. Day, who, like Gavin Hamilton, Buchanan, and others, were constantly at work in Italy and France, in those revolutionary days, when hundreds of fine pictures were brought to this country, among them many in this collection. After this first purchase, various other pictures were added, chiefly from the collection of Mr. Henry Hope, the well-known amateur of that time." A very good catalogue, with engravings of the pictures, was compiled by J. Young and published in 1822. The sale took place on June 28th, 1884, with the result that the 75 lots produced a total of £44,296 17*s.* The following were the principal lots: G. Bellini, Adoration of the Magi, probably a predella picture, executed in clear yellowish fresh tones, 12 × 3, 365 guineas (National Gallery); P. Campana, Christ Preaching in the Temple, with portraits of Solyman the magnificent, Francis I., Charles V., Cardinal Bembo, Titian, Giorgione, Bellini, Henry VIII., Anne Boleyn, and Queen Elizabeth when a little girl, 12 × 24, 190 guineas; A. Carracci, Diana and Actæon in Landscape, with nymphs bathing, purchased by Mr. Hope for his Gallery at Haarlem from a French nobleman in Paris, and afterwards sold with his collection, from which this and several other pictures found their way to the Leigh Court Gallery, 44 × 66, 440 guineas; L. Carracci, St. John, seated, full length, in landscape, 48 × 36, 215 guineas; Matteo Cerezo, Virgin or Saint in adoration, life-sized draped figure kneeling on one knee with outstretched hands, 59 × 69, formerly attributed to Velasquez, and questionably the work of Cerezo, 650 guineas; Carlo Dolci, The Virgin, bust size, an oval on copper, from the Hope collection in 1816, 365 guineas; Domenichino, St. John the Evangelist in a vision, seated with an eagle at his feet, and two boy angels standing holding books at each side, figures much larger than life, 103 × 80, from the Giustiniani Gallery, Rome, purchased, when that collection was sent to Paris, by M. Delahante, who sold it to Harris of Bond Street, who sold it to Hart Davis, who, in his turn, transferred the picture to Mr. Miles for the enormous amount of either £12,000 or that number of guineas—it was now bought in for 700 guineas ;¹ F. Guardi, Procession of the Doge at Venice, 24 × 27, 405 guineas ; and the Rialto, 24 × 27, 210 guineas ; W. Hogarth, Portrait of Miss Fenton, afterwards Duchess of Bolton, as Polly Peachum in “The Beggar’s Opera,” engraved by Apostool, 29 × 31, 800 guineas (National Gallery)—this picture realized £57s. 6d. at Ireland’s sale in 1801, and 50 guineas in the Watson Taylor sale in 1832, and the Shrimp Girl, engraved by Bartolozzi, 25 × 20, 250 guineas (the same)—also from the Watson Taylor sale, when it realized 42 guineas ; Claude, The Sacrifice to Apollo, inscribed “Il Tempio di Apollo, Claudio Gillo inven. fecit, Rom., 1668,” painted for Signor Angelino, engraved by Woollett, Pardone, and Gwellin, and known with the companion work of The Landing of Æneas as “The Altieri Claudes,”² from having belonged to Prince Altieri, of Rome, from whom they were bought by Mr. Fagan for 9,000 scudi, and sold afterwards to William Beckford, with four other pictures, for £10,000 ; at the dispersal of the Fonthill collection Mr. H. Hart Davis bought the pair for £12,000, and they almost immediately passed into the Leigh Court Gallery. Both these pictures measure 69 × 89, and the finer of the two, The Sacrifice to Apollo, realized 5,800 guineas, and the companion, The Landing of Æneas, inscribed "Claudio Gille, inv. fecit, Romæ, 1675," 3,800 guineas. There were three other works of Claude in the collection, viz., Herdsman driving cattle through a river, painted in 1670 for Signor F. Piapiera, Counsellor at Ratisbon, engraved by Vivares, and etched by the artist himself, from the John Burnard and Walsh Porter sales, 23 × 34, 1,950 guineas; A Seaport, evening effect, from the Hope collection, 23 × 36, 500 guineas, and another Seaport, 39 × 54, 500 guineas (bought in). Murillo, Holy Family, Virgin with Child asleep on her lap, St. Joseph standing under a tree on the right, from the collection of M. de Calonne, at the dispersal of whose pictures in March, 1795, this work realized 510 guineas; it passed into the Hope collection, at the sale of which, in 1816, it sold for 305 guineas, and thence passed into the Leigh Court Gallery, and now realized 3,000 guineas. Other works by or attributed to Murillo were, Rest of the Holy Family, a repetition of the picture at the Hermitage, St. Petersburg, 50 × 67, 720 guineas; Martyrdom of St. Andrew, a repetition of the picture at the Museo del Prado, Madrid, 51 × 66, 370 guineas; St. John the Evangelist, from the Robit, Bryan (500 guineas) and Henry Hope (110 guineas) collections, 69 × 47, 140 guineas, and The Virgin in Adoration, 59 × 69, 650 guineas—the last three pictures were bought in; G. Poussin, Cascatellas, Tivoli, 54 × 36, 450 guineas, and Cascade at Tivoli, formed by the Arno below the grand fall, 54×40 , 400 guineas (these two pictures are, apparently by error, catalogued under J. P. Pannini by Redford; they were both purchased in Paris by Mr. Beckford, and by him sold to R. H. Davis); The Calling of Abraham, the angel and Abraham in a landscape, with effect of stormy wind, 81×61 , from the Colonna Palace, Rome, and Fonthill, 1,900 guineas (National Gallery); and a Landscape with figures, 25×30 , also from Fonthill, 450 guineas; Paul Potter, Three cows at pasture, signed, and dated 1652, 16×15 , 430 guineas; N. Poussin, The Plague at Athens, engraved by Fittler, from the Hope sale, 48×68 , 400 guineas; Raphael, Christ bearing his Cross, formerly the centre piece of the predella to the altarpiece¹ painted for the nuns of St. Antonio of ¹ This altarpiece was sold in 1678 by the nuns to Count Bigazzini at Rome for 2,000 scudi, and a copy of the altarpiece and lunette to take the place of the original, which was afterwards transferred to the Colonna Gallery, Rome, and about the end of the last century became the property of the King of Naples. With the unification of Italy, the ex-King of Naples is said to have either sold or presented, in consideration of services rendered, this Raphael altarpiece to the Duc di Ripaldi, and shortly afterwards it made its appearance in the gallery of the Louvre, being offered "on approval" to the French Government. It was subsequently, about 1874, offered to the National Gallery, the price asked for it being £40,000. The panel of the predella now sold is one of the five which in 1663 were sold by the nuns to Queen Christina of Sweden for 601 scudi, and came into possession of the Duc d'Orleans; they were all sold in London in 1798, and this of Christ bearing His Cross is stated by Buchanan to have been bought by G.

Padua, at Perugia, in 1505, engraved by Larmessin, and from the Orleans Gallery, 10 × 34, 560 guineas; The Virgin with the Infant Jesus, said to be an old copy of the lost Loretto Madonna, but without the St. Joseph, 39 × 33, 600 guineas (bought in); three works by P. P. Rubens, the Holy Family, with SS. Francis of Assisi, Elizabeth and Joseph, 68 × 79, 5,000 guineas; The Woman taken in Adultery, a composition of 12 figures, half-length size, of which the two accusers are said to be portraits intended for Luther and Calvin, with others of Vandyck, Otho Venius, and the artist himself, from the Knuyf collection (Antwerp, 1780), and the Hope sale of 1816 (2,000 guineas), 1,700 guineas; and the Conversion of Saul, engraved by Bolswert, formerly in the collection of M. de Montesquieu, from whose family it was purchased by Delahante, it passed into the possession of Mr. Elwyn in 1806, from whom R. H. Davis purchased it (for 4,000 guineas), 3,300 guineas—neither of these examples of Rubens reached the reserve price; B. Schidone, Virgin teaching Infant Saviour, 13 × 10, 280 guineas; T. Stothart, The Procession of Chaucer's Pilgrims to Canterbury, the engraved work, 11 × 38, 441 guineas (National Gallery); Titian, Venus and Hibbert for 150 guineas. The others are all known. The Christ Praying on the Mount is in the collection of the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, who purchased it at the Samuel Rogers sale in 1856; the Pieta with Saints belongs to Mr. Whyte, Barron Hall, Derbyshire, and two small upright panels, are now in the Dulwich Gallery (see Catalogue of that collection, and Redford's "Art Sales," i. 362).

Adonis, from the Benjamin West collection, and said to be a replica of the picture in the National Gallery, 70 × 80, 1,680 guineas (bought in); Leonardo da Vinci, St. John, 34 × 18, 200 guineas; and Creator Mundi, Christ holding a crystal globe, engraved by Hollar, 38 × 32, 500 guineas.

Only one sale of the year 1885 need detain us, namely, that of the late Christopher Beckett-Denison, of Upper Grosvenor Street. "The sale of so large and fine a collection as this of the late Mr. Beckett-Denison [we are quoting from The Times of June 5th] would at any time excite the world of amateurs; but the peculiar circumstances of its formation and of its premature dispersion lend a special interest to the coming contest. Those to whom the shifting values of works of art are of high commercial importance, the speculators in bric-à-brac, and the large fraternity of dealers all over the world, are eager to see whether the treasures which Mr. Beckett-Denison bought at high prices at the Hamilton sale have suffered any serious depreciation. This is undoubtedly the dominant feeling of the great English, French, and German buyers who have been haunting the rooms in King Street all the week. But the moralist, too, has had his opportunity. He has been repeating vanitas vanitatum to his heart's content. He has been asking whether some new Holbein ought not to arise to add a new figure to the Dance of Death, the figure of Death lurking in the auction-room and striking down the passionate collector at the very moment of his triumph. For this was the fate of Mr. Beckett-Denison. A man scarcely past middle life . . . he came to London with an ample fortune, which he devoted to surrounding himself with all the rarest and most beautiful objects that he could find. . . . There occurred the famous Hamilton sale. Mr. Beckett-Denison saw his opportunity, was a constant attendant at the sale, and bought with a courage that might almost be called reckless. Generally he bid for himself, but often he employed an agent, and in neither case did he seem to care the least what price he paid so long as he obtained what he wanted. In the end he found himself the purchaser of a full quarter of the Hamilton collection, his outlay having amounted to something like £100,000 [Redford states that the amount was £250,000]. This, however, was not nearly all. He was a buyer at every important English sale of recent years. . . . He was omnivorous, and therefore not as fastidious as he might have been, buying anything that took his somewhat untrained fancy. . . . Travelling in Ireland last autumn, he was taken suddenly ill, and died after a very few days, far away from all his friends."

The contingency anticipated by The Times proved well founded, and the sale, regarded from a purely commercial standpoint, resulted in a huge loss—probably the entire collection did not realize much more than a third of the amount expended upon it. We do not purpose entering into even a very brief analysis of this sale, and so far as details are concerned we shall confine ourselves to the pictures. For the purpose of comparison we quote in parentheses the Hamilton Palace sale (H.P.) prices of the pictures which occurred in the two collections. The dispersal commenced on June 6th, and continued with brief intervals for twenty-two days until July 15th, the 3,354 lots realizing the grand total of £93,361 12s. 6d., which amount includes the total produced by the sale of the library. The pictures were sold on July 6th (Dutch and Flemish), June 13th (Dutch, Flemish, Spanish, Italian, and English), and June 20th (water-colour drawings, modern English and foreign pictures). The more noteworthy were as follows: G. Romney, Portrait of a Lady in crimson chair, 28 × 22, 290 guineas; J. M. W. Turner, the Departure of Adonis for the Chase, from the Munro sale of 1878 (1,850 guineas), 1,450 guineas; S. Botticelli, Madonna in crimson and blue drapery, with infant, standing, arched top, 38 × 25, 240 guineas; A. Bronzino, Portrait of Don Garcia di Medici, in richly embroidered slashed dress, 36 × 26, 900 guineas (H.P. 1,700 guineas); A. Canaletto, The Piazzetta of St. Mark, with the Campanile and the Ducal Palace, from the sales of J. N. Hughes, 1848 and C. Cope, 1872 (125 guineas), 170 guineas; and Walton Bridge, painted in 1754, 18 × 29, 235 guineas; L. Carracci, St. John, from the Leigh Court sale (215 guineas), 120 guineas; and Sibylla Libyca, 112 × 48, 100 guineas (H.P. 270 guineas); Garofalo, Madonna and Child, 12 × 9, 105 guineas (H.P. 180 guineas); G. B. Tiepolo, Supper at

Emmaus, and Adoration of the Magi, a pair of studies for altarpieces, 23 × 12, 155 guineas (National Gallery); Titian, The Graces, from the Leigh Court sale (210 guineas), 64 guineas; and The Holy Family, St. John, and another saint, 32 × 41, 310 guineas (H.P. 1,150 guineas); P. della Vecchia, The Four Fathers, 60 × 78, 60 guineas (H.P. 450 guineas); Marcello Venusti, Christ and the Money-changers, 23 × 15, 920 guineas (H.P. 1,360 guineas), purchased for the National Gallery; and the Adoration of the Magi, 250 guineas (H.P. 1,160 guineas); Largillière, Portraits of James, Prince of Wales, and his sister, 200 guineas (H.P. 840 guineas); Van der Capelle, Snow Scene, 15 × 17, from the Levy sale (180 guineas), 210 guineas; P. Ferg, A Fair, 8 × 11, 100 guineas (H.P. 230 guineas); M. Hondicoeter, Garden, with peacock, poultry, and rabbits, 290 guineas; A. Ostade, Interior of a Cabaret, with numerous peasants, signed, and dated 1656, 15 × 13, 900 guineas (H.P. 1,750 guineas); A. Pynacker, Coast Scene, with wreck, 32 × 43, from the Munro sale, 1878 (450 guineas), 160 guineas; Rubens, Daniel in the Den of Lions, 90 × 130, 2,000 guineas—this celebrated picture realized 4,900 guineas at the Hamilton Palace sale, and it was now purchased for the Duke of Hamilton, who may be said therefore to have received £3,045 for the loan of this work for three years; the other Rubens in this sale was the Birth of Venus, 610 guineas (H.P. 1,600 guineas), now purchased for the National Gallery; A. Van der Neer, Town on River, moonlight effect, 34×45 , 70 guineas (H.P. 265 guineas); W. Van de Velde, A Calm, 18×14 , 790 guineas (H.P. 1,300 guineas); Vandyck, Portraits of the Duchess of Richmond and her Son, 78×51 , 850 guineas (H.P. 1,950 guineas).

Only six pictures realized £1,000 and upwards during the season of 1885; two of these were in the Beckett-Denison collection; two others occurred among the late Mr. S. Herman de Zoete's pictures and drawings (this collection was sold on May 8th, and realized £19,638), and were Frans Hals, Portrait of a Gentleman, in black dress, holding hat and gloves, 45×36 , 960 guineas; and Jan Steen, Bad Company, $18 \times 23\frac{1}{2}$, 1,360 guineas—Mr. de Zoete is said to have bought this picture at Christie's for 600 guineas; the picture with the same name in the Levy sale of 1876 is much smaller than this. The de Zoete collection also included some interesting pictures by old English masters, viz., David Cox, Darley Churchyard, 19×25 , 410 guineas; John Crome, Forest scene, beaters and dogs, 21×33 , 580 guineas; and Yarmouth Jetty, 20×32 , 295 guineas; J. Linnell, Coming Storm, 19×27 , 455 guineas; W. J. Müller, Haymaking, Gillingham, 20×33 , 510 guineas.

CHAPTER XI.

HENRY M'CONNEL—WILLIAM GRAHAM'S PRE-RAPHAELITE PICTURES—SAMUEL ADDINGTON—LORD DUDLEY'S PORCELAIN—C. J. NIEUWENHUY'S—THE BLENHEIM PALACE COLLECTION AND ITS DISPERSAL.

AN unusually large number of important picture and other art sales took place in 1886, the earliest of the chief dispersals being the collection of modern pictures formed by the late Henry M'Connel, of Cressbrook, Derbyshire. The sale took place on March 27th, and the eighty lots realized the total of £35,242 14s. 6d. The following list includes the principal pictures:—R. P. Bonington, Low tide on the French Coast, 17 × 21, 450 guineas; Sir A. W. Callcott, Ghent, 800 guineas, and the Gulf of Salerno, near Amalfi, 700 guineas—both these pictures, which measure 28 × 40, were painted for Mr. M'Connel; W. Collins, The Morning Bath, 1831, 27 × 36, 850 guineas (purchased by the late owner for 200 guineas); J. Constable, Flatford Mill, 23 × 35, 320 guineas, and the Dell, Helmingham Park, 44 × 51, 1,550 guineas; Sir C. L. Eastlake, Christ Blessing little Children, 210 guineas, and The Ran-

The great sensational picture sale of the year was unquestionably that of the extensive collection formed by the late William Graham, M.P., of Grosvenor Place. Mr. Graham was a man of great taste and knowledge, and he was for many years a Trustee of the National Gallery. The sale comprised 486 lots, which occupied five days in selling, viz., Friday and Saturday, April 2nd and 3rd, and Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 8th, 9th, and 10th. Mr. Graham's collection of pictures was in many respects unique, containing as it did thirty-one drawings and oil colours by Dante Gabriel Rossetti, thirty-three by Sir E. Burne-Jones, and characteristic examples of the work of G. F. Watts, Holman Hunt, and Sir J. E. Millais. Many of these were either commissioned by Mr. Graham, or purchased direct from the artists, while he secured others in the open market as opportunities occurred. The sale included one drawing of perhaps small importance in itself, but which was the cause of one of the fiercest artistic battles on record—the Nocturne in blue and silver of J. McNeil Whistler, exhibited at the Grosvenor Gallery in 1877. This was the work which was produced in Court at the great trial for damages brought by the artist against John Ruskin for his critical remarks upon his works. Considering the widespread fame of the drawing, therefore, it may be regarded as extremely cheap at the 60 guineas which it realized. The appearance of the drawing on the auctioneer's easel was the signal for "a slight attempt at an ironical cheer, which, being mistaken for serious applause, was instantly suppressed by an angry hiss all round." The total of the whole collection amounted to £69,168 3s. The more important of the pictures by English artists were as follows: W. Holman Hunt, The Scapegoat, small finished study for the larger work, 500 guineas, and The Light of the World, a similar study, 750 guineas; E. Burne-Jones, King René's Honeymoon, 1861, 200 guineas; Pygmalion, 1871, 310 guineas; Danaë's Tower, on panel, 1870, 210 guineas; St. Agnes, St. Dorothea and St. Barbara, 1869, 300 guineas; St. George, full length figure in armour, 1877, 585 guineas; Green Summer, six girls seated on the grass, 500 guineas; Venus' Mirror, girls reflected in a pool, first design of the subject, 780 guineas ; the Feast of Peleus, panel, 1880, 900 guineas ; The Days of Creation, a series of six panels in one frame, 1875, 1,650 guineas ; Laus Veneris, exhibited at the Grosvenor Gallery, 1878, 2,550 guineas ; Chant d'Amour, “Hélas! je suis un chant d'amour Triste ou gai tour a tour,” exhibited at the Grosvenor Gallery, 1878, 3,150 guineas ; and King Cophetua and the Beggar, full-size cartoon in colours from the picture in Lord Wharnclyffe's collection, 114 × 52, 730 guineas ; Sir J. E. Millais, Apple Blossoms, the much discussed picture which appeared in the Academy of 1859, 1,000 guineas—at the Burnett sale in 1876, this picture sold for 1,390 guineas ; The Blind Girl, with her little sister playing an accordion, from the Royal Academy of 1856, and painted at Winchelsea in the previous year, 830 guineas, and The Vale of Rest, exhibited, with Apple Blossoms, at the Academy of 1859, 41 × 68, 3,000 guineas ; D. G. Rossetti, The Loving Cup, panel, signed and dated 1867, 23 × 18, 410 guineas ; Bella e Buona, panel, signed and dated 1865, inscribed in the upper right-hand corner, “Il Ramoscello,” 18 × 14, 360 guineas ; Venus Verticordia, panel, for a sonnet by the painter, which is inscribed on the base of the frame, signed and dated 1868, 26 × 23, 310 guineas ; Ancilla Domini, panel, signed and dated 1850, 28 × 17, 800 guineas (National Gallery) ; Marigolds, 1874, 500 guineas ; Dante at the Bier of Beatrice, illustrative of a passage in the “Vita Nuova,” in which Dante describes his dream on the day of the death of Beatrice Portinari, signed and dated 1880, 60 × 78, 1,000 guineas; Beata Beatrice, intended to illustrate symbolically the death of Beatrice, as treated in the “Vita Nuova,” predella beneath with the inscription “Veni Sponsa di Libano, Mart. 31, 1300,” dated 1872, 1,150 guineas; La Ghirlandata, half-length figure of a girl in green, seated, surrounded by flowers, playing a musical instrument, signed and dated 1877, 45 × 34, 1,000 guineas; “Found,” figure of a girl crouching by a wall, and a young countryman grasping her hand, a scene at early dawn near one of the bridges of the Thames, begun in 1853, and touched upon at various dates afterwards, 36 × 31, 720 guineas, and Mariana, three-quarter figure of a lady in a blue robe, with page playing on a lute (“Measure for Measure,” act iv., scene 1), 630 guineas; F. Walker, The Bathers, 1867, 2,500 guineas, (with copyright); The Sunny Thames, 1,160 guineas, and The Vagrants, etched by Waltner, 1,770 guineas; G. F. Watts, The First Whisper of Love, 310 guineas; The Sunflower, female figure, bust size, 300 guineas; a Venetian Nobleman, profile, with long hair, 240 guineas, and Diana and Endymion, exhibited at the Grosvenor Gallery, 1882, 870 guineas.

The water colour and other drawings by artists of the English school included:—E. Burne-Jones, The Princess Sabra, pencil, 40 guineas; The Sibyl of Tibur, 1878, 40 guineas; A Lament, 1864, 100 guineas; Fair Rosamond, 1862, 75 guineas; a Landscape, 1860, 40 guineas; Medea (not "a Sibyl" as catalogued), 55 guineas; Zephyrus and Psyche, 1863, 115 guineas; The Choristers, 1864, 185 guineas; The King's Wedding, painted on vellum, 14 × 10, 155 guineas; St. Cecilia, 1870, 180 guineas; Cupid and Psyche, 1865, 300 guineas; Chaucer's Vision of Good Women, 180 guineas; An Angel, exhibited at Grosvenor Gallery, 1883, 250 guineas; Garden of the Hesperides, 1870, 350 guineas; Chant d'Amour, 1865, first design for the celebrated picture, also sold in this sale (p. 88), 580 guineas, and Love disguised as Reason, 700 guineas; F. Walker, The Lilies, lady watering flowers, 12 × 16, 1,300 guineas, and Stobhall Garden, lady seated, with dog, 18 × 22, 540 guineas—both these drawings have been exhibited.

Mr. Graham's collection of pictures by—or attributed to—old masters extended to 320 lots, very few of which were either important or noteworthy. The following were the principal:—A. Baldovinetti, Virgin and Child, St. John and Angels, Pelican devouring a Snake, 270 guineas; G. Hondicoeter, River Scene, with geese, ducks, and ducklings, 49 × 61, 850 guineas—this is said to have cost Lord Dudley 400 guineas. From unindicated sources, and sold on the same day as the Addington and Dudley pictures, there were Landseer's celebrated engraved Portrait of Sir Walter Scott, known as the Rhymer's Glen picture painted for Mr. Wells of Redleaf, and in the Royal Academy of 1833, 1,950 guineas; Sir Thomas Lawrence, "Nature," portraits of the two children of Mr. C. B. Calmady, engraved, 30 inches square, 1,890 guineas; and W. P. Frith,

Morning, Noon, and Night, three London street scenes, 1862, 300 guineas.

The great porcelain sale of the season was that of the splendid collection formed by the late Lord Dudley "from the most celebrated cabinets which have been dispersed during the last forty years." The sale took place on Friday, May 21st, and the 203 lots realized the handsome total of £40,856, although many of the articles were understood to be bought in. On the morning of the sale a writer in the Daily News observed:—"Those who are curious in matters of taste will have the rare opportunity of observing the extremes of opulent fancy and fashion in which the late Earl distanced all competitors, contending for these objets de luxe against all the Rothschilds and winning the prize, with his ten thousand guineas for a garniture de cheminée, and nearly seven thousand pounds for two small flower vases of rare shape and colour. He delighted in huge prices as he did in either winning or losing huge bets, never playing for less than a ten thousand-guinea stake. . . . Most of the Sèvres has been acquired at this prodigious estimate of his. . . . The famous Vaisseau à Mât and side vases is not in the sale. [It was privately purchased of the Earl by Mr. Goode, and sold in 1895.] The vaisseau that is to be sold is not nearly so choice a garniture in the eyes of the diletant, as it is apple-green and not rose du Barry, and only painted with birds. But the set is a superb one, and will no doubt draw the Sèvres fanatici." Taken in the order of sale the principal objects were as follows : VIENNA, a beautiful écuelle, cover and stand, with arabesques in grisaille on gold ground and lavender borders, six medallions of classical figures, and smaller medallions of Cupids, 91 guineas. DRESDEN, a large group of angels scattering flowers, 68 guineas ; an inkstand formed as a galley with a seated figure in the stern, 78 guineas ; a girl with a child and a harlequin, 7 inches high, 85 guineas ; and a lady with a large hooped petticoat and two pug dogs, 11½ inches, 160 guineas—these five pieces were from the Duc de Forli's collection, when the last-named sold for £205. OLD CHELSEA, a two-handled cup and cover, painted with figures in four medallions on richly gilt dark blue ground, 85 guineas ; another, painted with exotic birds on white bands, 85 guineas ; a plate, painted with flowers in colours on gold ground, 68 guineas ; and a tea-service from the Earl of Lonsdale's collection, with deep blue bands, richly gilt, painted with exotic birds in colours on white ground—this service was divided into eighteen lots, which brought the total of £829 11s., eight plates averaging over £13 each ; a teapot and stand, 48 guineas ; a sucrier, 46 guineas ; a basin, 22 guineas ; milk jug, 28 guineas ; and an écuelle cover and stand, 80 guineas.

SÈVRES, a cabaret, gros-bleu, richly gilt, with wreaths of flowers, scroll, and monogram, painted with pastoral scenes after Boucher, consisting of an oblong-shaped two-handled plateau, coffee-pot and cover, sucrier and cover, milk jug, and two cups and saucers, together 1,000 guineas ; a large oval-shaped tureen and cover, with scroll handles and feet, painted with exotic birds and flowers, and the companion, 100 guineas; a pair of seaux, painted with blue lines and flowers in colours, 91 guineas; three plates, with rich gros-bleu and gold borders by Prevost, intermingled with medallions of flowers on white ground, and painted with fruit and flowers by Niquet and Taillandier, 1788, part of a service previously belonging to Don Carlos (i.e., Charles IV., crowned in 1788), 45 guineas; a pair of large seaux, en suite, 175 guineas; a pair of smaller ditto, en suite, 72 guineas; and another pair, 78 guineas; a cup and saucer, turquoise ground, with the letter E in the centre, and the Roman numeral II. interlaced, surmounted by an imperial crown, with medallions in cameo portraits and antique gems on jasper ground, signed G. Dodin, Tandart, Boulanger, and Vincent, 1778, 125 guineas; a cup and saucer, en suite, 112 guineas; a plate, ditto, 108 guineas; a deep plate, ditto, 126 guineas; and the companion plate, 141 guineas (the last two lots were in the Shandon sale, R. Napiers, and sold for £162 and £158, respectively)—these five lots formed part of a magnificent service made at Sèvres for the Czarina Catherine of Russia, about 1778; 160 pieces were subsequently brought to England, but were repurchased, with the exception of a few of the smaller pieces, by the Czar Nicholas, a short time before the Crimean war, and taken back to Russia; an écuelle cover and stand, gros-bleu with white and gold handles, richly gilt, painted with peasants in six medallions by Leguay, 187 guineas ; a gros-bleu cup and saucer, cup exquisitely painted with a youth stealing a basket of fruit from a sleeping girl, by Dodin, 1765, from the Rucker sale (£288), 235 guineas ; a cup and cover, turquoise, œil-de-perdrix, with blind man's buff and a man decking a girl's head with flowers, by Dodin, 150 guineas ; a trembleuse chocolate cup, cover and saucer, gros-bleu, painted with sailors by Morin (from the Rucker sale £130), 95 guineas ; a large cup and saucer, painted with Music and Painting, after Van Loo, in gros-bleu borders, 152 guineas ; a large cup, cover and stand, richly jewelled in colours on white ground, 100 guineas ; a rose-water ewer and cover, and oval-shaped basin, with four subjects of peasants after Teniers and three landscapes in medallions, in gros-bleu borders, 245 guineas ; a large cup and saucer, with two camp scenes by Morin in medallions in gros-bleu borders, 150 guineas ; a dinner service of feuille-de-choux pattern, divided into twenty lots, realized a total of £712 ; a service of apple-green ground, richly gilt, painted with bouquets of flowers in medallions, formerly the property of Prince Torlonia, sold in twenty-seven lots, brought a total of £3,437 11s.; and a dessert service, gros-bleu ground, painted with the arms of the Hope family, classical heads in grisaille in medallions, wreaths and bouquets of flowers, presented by Louis XVI. to Mr. Hope of Amsterdam (and sold with the effects of the late W. Williams Hope, of Paris, and Ruston Hall, Northamptonshire, in 1849), 1,900 guineas.

OLD SÈVRES JARDINIÈRES: A commode-shaped jardinière, of the largest model, rich chintz pattern, decorated in gold and colour, and festoons of flowers, $7\frac{1}{2}$ inches high, 610 guineas; a pair of square ditto, gros-bleu, richly marbled with gilding, each painted with bouquets of flowers in colours in four medallions, 1755, from the collection of H. L. Wigram (£367), 280 guineas; a pair of éventail ditto, of the largest model, white, with green ribands, richly pencilled in gold and painted with cupids seated on clouds, 1757, 1,360 guineas; and a pair of smaller ditto, en suite, 630 guineas—one of the larger jardinières and the pair of smaller were formerly in the collections of R. Sneyd and Sir Frederick Adair Roe; an éventail jardinière and stand, of the largest model, with cupids and trophies in colours in eight medallions in gros-bleu and richly gilt border, $8\frac{3}{4}$ inches high, 500 guineas; a set of three ditto, also of the largest model, green ground, exquisitely painted with exotic birds in large medallions, and flowers in smaller ditto by Alonde, from Lord Otho Fitzgerald's sale (1,900 guineas), 1,650 guineas; an éventail jardinière and stand, of the largest model, with children and flowers in colours, in two medallions, in turquoise borders and bands of white, $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches high, 210 guineas; and another, turquoise ground, richly gilt, exquisitely painted with a shepherd and shepherdess, and flowers in seven medallions, 7 inches high, from the Goding collection (£682), 400 guineas. OLD SÈVRES VASES: An oviform vase, with pierced neck and cover, encrusted with flowers, and painted with bouquets and flowers in colours, on white medallions, in Rose du Barri and gold borders, $7\frac{1}{2}$ inches high, 156 guineas; an oval-shaped Vase and cover of compressed form, with openwork borders and handles of white and gold, painted with wreaths of roses and foliage in colours on white bands, $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches high, 13 inches long, 212 guineas; a pair of oviform vases, gros-bleu, painted with hunting subjects and flowers in medallions, by Le Quay, $10\frac{1}{2}$ inches high, 770 guineas; an oviform vase and cover of unusually fine turquoise, exquisitely painted with a seaport and figures by Morin, in a large medallion on front, 14 inches high, from the Marchioness of Londonderry's collection, 700 guineas; a fine large vase and cover, of elegant form, exquisitely painted with Venus, Adonis and Cupid in front, and with a bouquet of flowers on the reverse, $16\frac{1}{2}$ inches high—this originally formed part of the royal service at Windsor, from the Bernal (213 guineas) and S. Rucker (900 guineas) collections, 820 guineas; an oviform two-handled vase and cover, gros-bleu, with "The Stirrup Cup," after Wouverman, 15 inches high, 600 guineas; a pair of oviform vases, gros-bleu, painted with sportsmen and flowers in medallions, $11\frac{1}{2}$ inches high, 950 guineas; another pair with covers, gros-bleu, each painted with a seaport and landscape by Morin, in two medallions, $17\frac{1}{2}$ inches high, 900 guineas; a pair of smaller ditto, $13\frac{1}{2}$ inches high, 585 guineas; another pair, gros-bleu, with seaports and bouquets of flowers in medallions by Morin, 15 inches high, 760 guineas; a garniture de cheminée, consisting of a vase and cover, formed as the Vaisseau à Mât (the arms of the city of Paris), 17½ inches high, and a pair of tulip-shaped vases, 13 inches high, en suite, painted with exotic birds in colours in large medallions, formerly the property of Mr. Auriol, of the Hon. G. Byng, M.P., and of the late Alexander Barker, from whom they were purchased, 2,650 guineas; and a pair of vases with covers and stands forming jardinières, of very rare and beautiful form, the sides fluted in six compartments, green ground, with Rose du Barri foliage, exquisitely painted with subjects of Chinese figures and flowers in medallions, 11½ inches high, from the collections of the Duchess of Cleveland and W. Goding, 2,500 guineas (bought in).

OLD CHELSEA VASES: A vase of rare form, with openwork neck and cover, deep blue, richly gilt, with white and gold handles, painted with subjects from Ovid, in six medallions, 17 inches high, 900 guineas; a pair of vases with openwork neck and covers, painted with large subjects of conversations in the style of Watteau, 16 inches high, 1,020 guineas; a set of three vases with openwork necks and covers, painted with exotic birds in colours on gold ground, the centre vase 16½ inches high, and the side ones 14 inches high, 710 guineas; a pair of oviform vases and covers of extraordinary size, deep blue ground, very richly gilt, each painted with a large subject of figures after Boucher in colours, with exotic birds on the reverse, 24 inches high, 2,000 guineas (bought in)—the vase with the bagpiper was presented by the owners of the Chelsea manufactory to the Foundling Hospital on its foundation; it remained there until 1868, when it was purchased by the Earl of Dudley for about 3,000 guineas; the companion vase was purchased from the Earl of Chesterfield when exhibited at the Leeds Exhibition in 1868; and another pair of the same size and form, and nearly similar in colours and decoration, 2,000 guineas, (also bought in)—the last pair was purchased from the late Hon. P. J. Locke King, M.P., and the two pairs are said to have cost Lord Dudley over £10,000.

ROCK CRYSTAL :—a Rosewater Ewer and Dish, the ewer engraved with scrolls and festoons of flowers, richly mounted with gold, enamelled in brilliant colours, the handle formed as a winged female figure, 13 inches high, the dish formed of nine fluted slabs in borders of enamelled foliage, the ewer 13 inches high, and the dish 15 inches diameter, 3,000 guineas; a Mirror, mounted with gold, enamelled in colours and set with precious stones, 16½ inches high, 200 guineas; and a large Chandelier of chased ormolu, with branches for twenty-four lights, with pendants and enrichments of rock crystal of unusual size, from Prince Demidoff's sale at Paris, 500 guineas.

The stock of the well-known dealer, Mr. C. J. Nieuwenhuys, who died at Wimbledon in 1883 at the age of 84, came under the hammer on July 17th, 1886. In announcing the sale The Times said: "Mr. Nieuwenhuys, with his brother François, stood in the very first rank among the judges of Dutch and Flemish Art, and it was to him that many of the great English and Foreign collections owed many of their choicest treasures. He had much to do with buying for Sir Robert Peel, and he may be said to have formed the famous collection of the King of Holland. In the obituary notice which we published at the time of his death we gave an account of one of the most curious episodes of his career—his sale of some parts of the great Van Eyck altarpiece to the Berlin government, and his subsequent discovery of the copies by Michael Coxie which the authorities of the church at Ghent were so glad to buy. There is nothing so romantic in the history of any of the pictures now at Christie's, but none the less they are very remarkable. . . . There are some modern works of the schools of Holland and Belgium, and a few old Italian and French pictures, but the strength of the collection is in its old Dutch and Flemish pictures." The sale comprised 120 lots which realized a total of £14,865 2s. 6d., and included the following works:—J. Dyckmans, Old Woman at Prayer, 15 × 11, 160 guineas; E. Verboeckhoven, Farm Scene, 31 × 51, 230 guineas; A. Carracci, an Altarpiece painted for the church of St. Eustache, Paris, but apparently never placed there, 91 × 62, 220 guineas; Raeffaelino del Garbo, Virgin and Child, 32 × 22, 190 guineas—purchased by the late owner at Lord Shrewsbury's sale at Alton Towers,

1857, for 255 guineas, and bought in by him in 1873 at 950 guineas; Titian, Tarquin and Lucretia, 73 × 56, engraved by Cornelius Cort in 1571, and said to have been in the collection of Charles I., at the dispersal of which it was purchased for the King of Spain, whence it was conveyed by Joseph Bonaparte; at the Coningham sale in 1849 it realized 500 guineas, and then passed into the Scarisbrick collection, 410 guineas; A. Cuyp, Landscape with grey horse, sheep, and view of the Dort, 36 × 38, 415 guineas; and Milking Time, girl milking red cow, with river bank and boats, 35 × 48, 500 guineas; C. W. E. Dietrich, Fête Champêtre, 43 × 55, 160 guineas, and the companion 95 guineas; J. Van Eyck, Portrait of himself, in red fur-trimmed robe and red headdress, holding letter in right hand, 11 × 8, 380 guineas; Hondicoeter, Dead Partridge and other birds, from Fonthill, 23 × 19, 160 guineas; and a Grand Garden scene with peacock and hen, 82 × 66, 420 guineas; Van Huysum, Flower piece and Bird's Nest, 31 × 23, 385 guineas; Van Musscher, Interior, lady and maid, 28 × 24, 140 guineas; G. Netscher, A Card Party, 20 × 17, 265 guineas; B. Van Orley, Madonna and Child, holding cherries, landscape background, 28 × 20, 145 guineas; A. Ostade, an Old Peasant at a Cottage, 9 × 7½, 275 guineas; Rembrandt, the Artist's Cook, half length, life size, holding a knife, 29 × 35, 165 guineas—from Lord Radstock's sale in 1826, when it realized 76 guineas, and subsequently acquired by the late owner for 300 guineas; Rubens, portrait of Brigida Doria, life size, painted when the artist was visiting the Doria Palace, Genoa, 59×32 , 290 guineas; and Neptune and Amphitrite, from Lord Lyttelton's collection (when it was acquired for 500 guineas), 80×64 , 240 guineas; Ruysdael, river scene, 13×10 , 100 guineas; Grand River Scene in Norway with waterfall, 40×36 , 410 guineas—from Lord Radstock's collection, and the Ilam Hall Gallery of Jesse Watts Russell, 1875 (650 guineas), and a Landscape with ruins and cascade, 26×25 , 525 guineas; P. Van Slingelandt, Lady on a terrace with a dog, 14×11 77 guineas (National Gallery of Ireland); H. M. Zorg [H. Martin Rokes], La Collation, 125 guineas (the same); Jan Steen, the Wedding Party, 17×14 , 140 guineas; the Philistines and Samson, 52×78 , 156 guineas; and Twelfth Night, one of many repetitions, 205 guineas; D. Teniers, The Guard Room, a composition of nine figures, 18×25 , on copper, 820 guineas; W. Van de Velde, Le Coup de Canon, 19×25 , 300 guineas; J. B. Weenix, Landscape, with portrait figure, and game and bear hunt in the foreground, signed and dated 1700, 71×55 , 750 guineas; P. Wouverman, Le Départ pour la Chasse, the engraved picture from the Orleans gallery, 18×24 , 530 guineas—from the Bredel sale, 1875, when it realized 580 guineas; Halte de Cavalerie, engraved, 12×17 , 350 guineas—from the Redleaf sale (330 guineas), and La Barraque de Pêcheurs, engraved, 19×15 , 215 guineas; and J. Wynants, a Sunny River Scene, with figures by Lingelbach, 36×45 , 330 guineas.

The great art sale of the year was reserved until the end of the season, for the dispersal of the pictures and objects of art from Blenheim Palace did not begin until July 24th; the second portion was sold on July 31st, and August 3rd and 4th; and the third portion on August 7th, 9th and 10th. The sale, which comprised 936 lots, lasted eight days, and produced an apparent total of £66,282. Of this sum the pictures fetched, according to the auctioneer's books, £57,678 18s., while the china and minatures sold for £8,603. The two most important pictures, viz., Carlo Dolci's Madonna of the eight stars,¹ and Rubens's Venus and Cupid endeavouring to restrain Adonis from the chase, which appear in Christie's books for £6,930 and £7,560 respectively, or £15,490 together, were known to be bought in, and a number of important portraits were understood not to have reached the reserve placed on them. At least, £5,000 represent articles of pictures and china also bought in, so the real total of the sale is £42,981 19s. The whole sale was considered disappointing in many respects.

On the day preceding the opening of the sale, the Pall Mall Gazette published an exceedingly interesting account of the collection:—"The noble collection of pictures so celebrated in the art annals of this country, and so long the glory of the magnificent palace with which the nation commemorated and rewarded the services of the great Duke of Marlborough, is now brought to the verge of its final dispersion. The beautiful pictures that adorned the palace of Blenheim are to-day on the walls of the auction-room, once more telling of the inevitable fate of all art treasures, from which neither ducal nor even royal palaces can escape. Two of the choicest pictures have passed from the palatial gallery of Blenheim to the most honourable apotheosis they could enjoy, among the masterpieces of art that shed their beneficent influence upon all classes and masses under the safe keeping of our National Gallery. Other of the gems from the art coronet of Blenheim, have been parted with to add lustre—for a time, shall we say?—to the splendid collections of the millionaires; whilst the rest will have their brief hour of display in those renowned galleries where so recently shone for the last time that other famous ducal collection of Hamilton Palace. Here they will bring together the whole world of art upon this historic ground, where the value and the destiny of many of the finest pictures of the world have so often been cast upon the fall of the potent hammer of Mr. Christie. Before all this comes to be settled, however, it is interesting to recall what has transpired since the Duke determined upon the sale under the Act of 1882. In May, 1884, the matter came before the Court of Chancery, and, with becoming consideration, certain of the finest pictures were put together, to the number of twenty-five, the money value of which was officially stated at £400,000, and these were offered to the National Gallery in the first place. The director, Sir Frederick Burton, made his inspection of these, and selected eleven, which he estimated to be worth £350,000, and recommended for purchase by the Government. This tremendous price, although powerfully backed by other authorities besides Sir F. Burton, was not found acceptable, financially, by the Government, and was declined. Subsequently the purchase of the Ansidei Raphael and the grand Vandyck equestrian portrait of Charles I. was urged, and finally agreed to at the heroic prices of £70,000 for the Raphael, and £15,000 for the Vandyck. Thus, for the moment, ended the transaction with the National Gallery authorities, and then began the negotiations for the sale of some of the selected pictures to private galleries, which resulted in the two superb portrait pieces of Rubens and his wife and child, by himself, being sold to Baron Alphonse de Rothschild for £55,000; while others of the chosen pictures passed into different private hands, six of these being The Garden of the Hesperides, and The Andromeda of Rubens, the so-called Fornarina, formerly attributed to Raphael, but now to Sebastian del Piombo, and some others. After this the Duke decided to dispose of the remaining part of the collection by public competition. In carrying out this intention, necessarily by order of the Court of Chancery, the sale has been officially ordered to be under the direction and with the advice of Mr. [now Sir] William Agnew as art referee. . . .”

“The Blenheim collection was really created by the great Duke of Marlborough, who was not a great soldier only, but a man of taste who filled the measure of his accomplishments with the fine arts, and so mindful was he of beauty, that though immersed in the stirring exigencies of war, he acquired and sent home some of the finest pictures in the collection by Rubens and Vandyck, the splendid equestrian portrait of Charles I. among them, which he purchased at Munich. It was his taste as a lover of art that led the cities of Brussels and Antwerp to present him with such magnificent gifts as the Rubens Portrait now in Baron Alphonse de Rothschild's collection. His example was worthily followed by his successors and family when Lord Robert Spencer, in 1764, bought the Ansidei Raphael in Italy."

The first day's sale included the following: A. Cuyp, Travellers halting at an Inn on the banks of a river, three men, one in the act of pulling on his boots, girl holding a pewter jug, 24 × 33, 1,750 guineas; Gonzales Coques, Portraits of a Dutch family, terrace with Atlantis figures and distant landscape, 20 × 29, 510 guineas; Vandyck, Time, or Saturn, an old man with wings clipping the wings of Cupid, painted on canvas in very low tone, 69 × 44, 230 guineas, and Virgin and Child, figures life size, perhaps the most beautiful of the many repetitions of this charming composition, 49 × 45, 500 guineas; J. Van Huysman, a rich Landscape, 19 × 27, 250 guineas; Jordaens, The Deposition, 80 × 74, 100 guineas; P. Neefs, Interior of a Church, 19 × 31, 140 guineas; A. Van der Neer, Landscape, windmill seen across the water to the extreme right, a small picture, exquisitely finished and of great beauty, 9×13 , 160 guineas, and a large Landscape, with warm sky, group of bird catchers in the front, and buildings across a dark piece of water, 39×52 , 290 guineas; Rembrandt, The Woman taken in Adultery, a composition of six figures, half length, life size, 45×54 , 220 guineas, and Isaac blessing Jacob, three life-size figures, 20×16 , 510 guineas—a large picture of this subject attributed also to Rembrandt, but differently composed, is in the Dulwich Gallery; the best of the six pictures catalogued as by Rottenhamer were a large panel representing the Seasons constructing garlands with fruit and flowers, satyrs also appear bearing basket of fruit, 36×20 , 160 guineas; a Wreath of flowers encircling a Holy Family, composed of six figures, on copper, 16×21 , 100 guineas, and another Holy Family, also on copper, and of the same size, 130 guineas; D. Teniers, Interior, with seven figures, three of which are playing at cards, “an exquisitely finished picture, though cold in tone,” on copper, $9\frac{1}{2} \times 12$, 570 guineas; J. B. Weenix, a Seaport in Spain, with the figures of a merchant, his wife and children in the foreground, 58×72 , 520 guineas; P. Wouverman, A Skirmish of Cavalry, on the slope of a hill, painted in the artist’s first manner, 42×54 , 310 guineas, and The Storming of a Town, with cavalry making a sortie, “this scene of terrible excitement and fury is one of the artist’s early works,” 1646, 53×73 , 450 guineas.

The unrivalled series of eighteen works (of which seven were gallery pictures), by Rubens were as follows: Madonna and Child, with group of two figures only, engraved by Mechel whilst in the Dusseldorff collection in 1776, 41 × 30, Smith's "Catalogue," 836, 1,360 guineas—there is a repetition of this picture in the Munich Gallery; Holy Family, a composition of four figures, including St. Elizabeth and St. Joseph, 45 × 34, 460 guineas; the Adoration of the Magi, a large composition with figures of life size, 99 × 82, Smith, No. 840, 1,500 guineas—a repetition of the picture in the Louvre, which was painted for the Church of the Annunciation at Brussels; Meleager presenting the wild boar to Atalanta, engraved the reverse way, in line and on a small scale by Bloemart, 52 × 41, Smith, No. 841, 520 guineas; The Return of the Holy Family from Egypt, figures life size, a picture of remarkable brilliancy, and of which there are numerous repetitions, 90 × 59, Smith, No. 830, 1,500 guineas; Holy Family, a composition of three figures, the Infant Saviour seated on a white cushion in his mother's lap, 41 × 30, Smith, No. 835, 1,000 guineas; "Suffer the Little Children to Come unto Me," Christ blessing little children, a composition of ten figures, life size, half length, 52 × 77, Smith, No. 845, 800 guineas; the Departure of Lot and his family from Sodom, figures life size, massive colours, as in Raphael's cartoon of the Beautiful Gate, form the background, a brilliant picture, presented by the City of Antwerp to the Great Duke of Marlborough, engraved by Vorsterman, 85 × 96, Smith, No. 826, 1,850 guineas; The Holy Family assembled in an apartment, with a large chimney on the right-hand side, Virgin in red dress, seated, engraved the reverse way by Vosterman, 87 × 58, Smith No. 837, 1,200 guineas—a very fine drawing, of a circular form, by Rubens, of this composition was recently acquired from the Lawrence and Woodburn collections for the British Museum; The Infant Saviour caressing a lamb, which kneels before Him, presented by the youthful St. John, 24 × 31, 50 guineas—purchased abroad by Susan, Duchess of Marlborough; the Distribution of the Rosary, a finished sketch in oils, on panel, for a large altarpiece, 26 × 20, Smith, No. 834 (“but with many inaccuracies”), 1,510 guineas; Head of a female, turned to the left, in a circular frame, 13 inches diameter, 15 guineas; Paracelsus, said to be a copy of a picture by Mabuse, 13 × 21, 125 guineas; the artist's own Portrait, dressed in black, and wearing a black hat, life size, 30 × 24, 110 guineas; a life-size Portrait of Anne of Austria, daughter of Philip III., King of Spain, Queen of Louis XIV. and Regent of France during the minority of her son, Louis XIV., in black dress and white ruff, 59 × 46, exhibited at Burlington House, 1885, 3,700 guineas; Filial Piety, a Roman daughter suckling her father starving in prison,—“this difficult and delicate subject is treated with exceeding refinement and discretion, the expression is noble and affecting, and the colouring, as usual, most admirable” (Mrs. Jameson), 76 × 72, Smith, No. 842, 1,200 guineas; a Bacchanalian subject, 76 × 78, 91 guineas; and Venus and Cupid endeavouring to restrain Adonis from the Chase," a magnificently rich picture, presented by the Emperor of Germany to the first Duke of Marlborough, and one of the finest examples of the master, whether in form, composition, or colour, Smith, No. 834, exhibited with the portrait of Anne of Austria, 77 × 94, 7,200 guineas (see p. 107).

The second day's sale comprised a series of 120 paintings by David Teniers, the history of which is as follows: The Archduke Leopold William, when Governor of the Low Countries, appointed Teniers his principal painter, and gave him the superintendence of his gallery, which contained the works of the most distinguished masters of the Italian as well as of the Flemish school. Many of these pictures had been purchased from the collection of King Charles I., on their dispersion by the Parliament in 1649. Teniers painted small copies of the principal pictures in the Archduke's collection, in which he imitated the particular style of each master so successfully, that he was called the Proteus of painting. These imitations he caused to be engraved and published in a folio volume, dedicated to his patron; it is now generally called the Teniers Gallery. The following is on the title-page: "Theatrum Pictorium Davidis Teniers, Antverpiensis pictoris serenissimorum principum Leopoldi Guillelmi Archiducis Austriae, & Joannis Austriaci pro Philippo IV., Rege Hispaniarum Belgij Gubernatorum. In quo exhibentur ipsius manu delineatae ejusque cura in aes incisae Picturae Archetypae Italicae quas ipse Ser^{mus}. Archidux in Pinacothecam suam Bruxellis collegit." The first edition was published at Brussels in 1660, and contains about two hundred engravings. His own portrait, engraved by Lucas Vorsterman, jun., from a painting by Petrus Thÿs, is prefixed to the volume. The plate is entitled: "Dauid Teniers, Antuerpianus Sereniss^{is}. Leopoldo Archiduci, & Ioanni Austriaco Belgj Gubernatoribus Pictor familiaris, & Utriqu: à Cubiculis. A^o M. D. C. LIX. Ætat: 49."

Teniers painted a picture of the interior of the gallery of Prince Leopold William, exhibiting a collection of fifty pictures. In this painting the Archduke himself is represented dressed in black and wearing a high-crowned hat, in conversation with the artist, and pointing with his cane to one of the pictures. This painting is still in the collection in the Belvidere Palace at Vienna (see p. 121 of the Catalogue published in 1845 by Albert Krafft), and described also in Smith's "Catalogue Raisonné," No. 26 of the works of Teniers. Most of the pictures were removed from Brussels to Vienna on the retirement of the Archduke from the government of the Netherlands, and are now to be seen in the gallery of the Belvidere at Vienna. (See Krafft's Catalogue of the Belvidere pictures, and the "Galerie de Vienne," 1821-28, in four quarto volumes by C. Haas.) The series comprised lots 76-192, and produced a total of £2,017 11s. 6d.

The second portion of the pictures fell exceedingly flat, containing as it did very few works of note and a very large quantity of rubbish. The more notable articles which realized upwards of £100 being as follows:—Pater, a Feast and Merry-making in the open air, 190 guineas; School of Vandyck, full-length Portrait of Queen Henrietta Maria, in deep blue satin trimmed with ermine, 93 × 56, 350 guineas—at the Goldsmid sale in June, 1896, this portrait realized 170 guineas. The works by Vandyck included portraits of Thomas Wentworth, Earl of Strafford and Sir Philip Mainwaring, his secretary, 51 × 57, 700 guineas; half-length Portrait of Charles I., life size, in black satin, 42 × 32, 135 guineas; Queen Henrietta Maria, half length, life size, in white satin, adorned with coral red: the youthful features in this portrait indicate that it was painted soon after her arrival in England; and they merit the praises which Waller bestows in his poem addressed to the Queen, occasioned upon sight of Her Majesty's picture, beginning,—

“Well fare the hand which to our humble sight
Presents that beauty which the dazzling light
Of royal splendour hides from weaker eyes,
And all access, save by this art, denies;”

42 × 32, 700 guineas; Portrait of Genviève D'Urfé, Marquise d' Hâvre and widow of the Duc de Croy, seated in a red chair, with a red curtain background, 45 × 38, 320 guineas; and Mary Duchess of Richmond, daughter of George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham, in a blue dress, receiving a pair of gloves from a salver held to her by Mrs. Gibson, her dwarf attendant, full length, portraits, 84 × 51,

1,150 guineas ; T. Gainsborough, life-size Portrait of John Russell, fourth Duke of Bedford, died 1771, 30 × 25, 600 guineas ; Mark Gheeraedts, full length life-size Portrait of Frances Howard, Countess of Essex and Somerset, 357 guineas ; Honthorst, life-size Portrait of the infanta Isabella Clara Eugenia, daughter of Philip II. of Spain and Governess of the Low Countries, wearing an enormous ruff and dressed entirely in black, with ruffles at the wrist, 200 guineas ; F. Pourbus (catalogued as by Baroccio) whole-length Portrait of a boy standing on a bare pavement wearing the cross of the order of Santiago of Spain and Vandyck collar, a remarkable picture, painted in a very silvery tone and delicately modelled, 54 × 41, 350 guineas— at the Goldsmid sale in June, 1896, this picture appeared under its correct designation, and sold for 360 guineas ; Sir P. Lely, life-size and rather more than half-length Portrait of Lady Henrietta Boyle, Countess of Rochester, in light blue dress and brown-grey mantle, landscape background, 47 × 39, 120 guineas ; D. Mytens, full-length Portrait of Henry Rich first Earl of Holland, 86 × 51, 960 guineas ; full length life-size Portrait of George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham, dressed entirely in white, 84 × 51, 700 guineas ; and a similar Portrait of William second Duke of Hamilton, K.G., in a landscape, 82 × 51, 520 guineas ; Sir J. Reynolds, life-size Portrait of the Marquis of Tavistock, in crimson coat, seated, 50 × 40, 990 guineas ; P. Van Somer, full length, life-size Portrait of Henry Prince of Wales, son of James I., and elder brother of Charles I., in red, 165 guineas. The only high price pictures in the third portion were two by Carlo Dolci, the Adoration of the Magi, a small and exquisitely finished picture with many figures in rich dresses, 28 × 22, 940 guineas—there is a corresponding picture to this in size and beauty at Althorp, it is by the same master and represents The Marriage of St. Catherine; and the celebrated “Madonna colle Stelle,” a chef-d’œuvre, the Virgin Mary enveloped in a dark-blue mantle, and with eight golden stars in the faint gold-tinged nimbus or glory round her head, looks upward with an expression of intense devotion and resignation; the figure, the size of life, is seen three-quarter length; the general tone is deep and solemn; background of dark, heavy clouds; painted on canvas of an octagonal shape, and engraved by E. Mandel, 1848, 45 × 38, 6,600 guineas—the latter has been already referred to on p. 107 as having been bought in.

LONG'S ROMNEYS—THE MARQUIS DE SANTURCE—THE BOLCKOW SALES OF 1891 AND 1892—A. G. KURTZ—CHARLES P. MATTHEWS—MR. CAVENDISH BENTINCK'S COLLECTION.

MORE than average season of sales was that of 1887, the first of any note comprising the pictures and drawings of the late Robert Arnold Cosier, of 46 Grosvenor Street, and Thames Field, Berks, whose collection, sold March 4th and 5th, of 232 lots, showed a total of £10,874. The more notable pictures were J. F. Lewis, A Cairo Bazaar: the Dellal, 520 guineas; E. Long, An Ancient Custom, 680 guineas. Drawings:—Mrs. Allingham, The Lady of the Manor, 1880, 210 guineas; Birket Foster, Exercising the Hounds, 275 guineas; C. Fielding, a Lake Scene, with buildings and figures, sunset effect, 350 guineas; J. F. Lewis, Cairo Bazaar, finished study for the picture exhibited at the Royal Academy, 1876, 310 guineas, and Disputing Accounts, 265 guineas.

The first of the two portions of the engravings of the Duke of Buccleuch, March 8th-21st, (eight days), realizing £13,106, and the second portion sold on April 19th-22nd (four days), bringing £19,756. There were 2,109 lots in the two parts. It is said that the whole collection was acquired for less than one fourth of the sum now realized. We need only specialize the following:—One of only eight existing impressions of Rembrandt's celebrated "Hundred Guilder" piece, a fine example, on thick Japan paper, with an inscription on the back in the handwriting of the well-known connoisseur J. Barnard, £1,300, at which figure it was secured for the Berlin Museum. The other Rembrandts included Our Lord before Pilate, first state, in which the building on the right is without shadow, on Japan paper, £1,150; a View of a Village near the high road, arched, second state, £275—at the Carew sale, in 1835, this print sold for £65; Landscape, with a ruined tower, first state, £260; another Landscape, with obelisk, first state, £255; a Portrait of Uytenbogaert, first state, £1,280; another of Coppenol, large plate, second plate, £1,190; Van Tolling, catalogued as a second state but probably an undescribed print, from its not having certain lines on the chest found in other impressions, £800; Burgomaster Six, second state, £500; Abram Franz, second state, £510; and Coppenol, the small plate, first state, £320.

The pictures of the late Charles Heilditch Rickards, of Seymore Grove, Old Trafford, Manchester, sold on April 2nd, included a unique series of fifty-seven works of Mr. G. F. Watts, all purchased from the artist by the late owner, and many of them exhibited at the Grosvenor Gallery in 1881; this remarkable collection realized a total of £15,986 5s., and included two pieces of sculpture, also the work of Mr. Watts. The more important were Love and Life, a small version of the large picture, 1,150 guineas; Love and Death, another small version, 1,100 guineas; Eve of Peace, 950 guineas; Return of the Dove, exhibited at the Royal Academy of 1869, 860 guineas; Ariadne in Naxos, 750 guineas; Angel of Death, a design, 550 guineas; Bianca, 1863, 510 guineas; Time, Death and Judgment, a small version, 500 guineas; Prayer, 1878, 500 guineas; Portrait of Herr Joachim, 420 guineas; Lady Lilford, 395 guineas; Pretty Lucy Bond, 1881, 370 guineas; Iris, 300 guineas; and "All the air a solemn stillness holds," 1881, 300 guineas.

But the first of the greatest sales of the year comprised the collection of modern pictures formed by the late John Graham, and sold on April 30th, ninety-five lots realizing £62,297 17s. Mr. John Graham resided at Skelmorlie Castle, Ayrshire, and was the uncle of William Graham, of Grosvenor place, whose collection was dispersed in 1886, and is described in the preceding chapter. Mr. Redford writes in his "Art Sales": "Mr. John Graham was a very well-known figure at Christie's for many years, a spare, contented-looking man in black frock coat and necktie, wearing a soft felt hat, always ready with his invitation, 'Ye are welcome to Skelmorlie,—happy to show ye the peectures.' He began to buy pictures forty years ago, and every season was generally present when his friend, Mr. Agnew, was to bid for him; and no doubt enjoyed the sensation of giving £6,615, the highest price ever known at the time (1873), for the beautiful portrait by Gainsborough, of the Sisters in Colonel Towneley's sale. . . . It is said that when the pictures were exhibited at Christie's before the sale, that the executors had refused an offer of £12,000 for this picture." The principal lots, taken in the order of sale, were as follows: David Roberts, Caerlaverock Castle, on the Dee, 1853, 310 guineas, and On the Grand Canal, Venice, 1854, 330 guineas; J. F. Nasmyth, a Woody Landscape, with figures, 1822, 580 guineas; and The Falls of Shirra, Inverary, 1820, 1,210 guineas; P. Delaroche, A Christian Martyr, engraved, 550 guineas; Ary Scheffer, Mary Magdalen, 1854, 620 guineas, and the Apostle St. John in Patmos, 1854, 580 guineas; Baron H. Leys, Antwerp during the Spanish Occupation, 1857-65, 1,400 guineas ; J. L. Gérôme, The Nile Boat, 1863, engraved, 1,500 guineas ; Rosa Bonheur, Early Morning in Fontainebleau Forest, 1876, 17 × 26, 810 guineas, and a Highland Raid, 1860, engraved, 3,900 guineas ; L. Gallait, A Roman Mother and Child, 300 guineas ; W. J. Müller, The Dogana, Venice, 24 × 38, 1835, 640 guineas, and The Acropolis, Athens, in the artist's transitional style, 39 × 64, 760 guineas ; Sir E. Landseer, The Shepherd's Bible, the engraved picture exhibited at the Royal Academy 1849, 1,020 guineas—at the Farnworth sale, in 1874, this realized 1,400 guineas ; F. Danby, the Vale of Tempe, 1842, 67 × 94, 210 guineas ; Sir A. W. Callcott, the Rift in the Cloud, 29 × 24, 250 guineas, and the Gulf of Spezzia, 550 guineas ; W. Holman Hunt, the Finding of our Saviour in the Temple, engraved, from the Manley Hall collection, 18 × 28, 1,200 guineas ; five works of J. Linnell, the Edge of the Wood, 18 × 24, 1872, 550 guineas ; Christ and the Woman of Samaria, 45 × 50, 1866, 570 guineas ; Under the Hawthorn Tree, 39 × 53, 1853, 1,020 guineas ; the Sheep Drove, 36 × 50, 1857, 1,850 guineas, and the Return of Ulysses, from the Royal Academy of 1849, 48 × 72, 1,400 guineas ; J. Linnell and D. Cox, Peat Gatherers, a moorland landscape, 215 guineas ; Sir J. E. Millais, A Dream of the Past : Sir Isumbras at the Ford, Royal Academy, 1857, 66 × 84, 1,300 guineas ; C. Stanfield, Moonlight on the Coast of Holland, 1857, 31 × 47, 700 guineas ; three works of D. G. Rossetti, including Venus Verticordia, 32 × 27, 550 guineas, and Pandora, signed, and dated 1871, painted for Mr. Graham, 51 × 31, 550 guineas; Sir David Wilkie, The School, the last work of this master, engraved, 41 × 63, 1,650 guineas; T. S. Cooper, Drovers halting on the Fells, 56 × 92, 1847, 480 guineas; Edward Burne-Jones, Fides, in tempera, 70 × 24, 440 guineas, and Sperantia, also in tempera, 70 × 24, 640 guineas; four works by J. M. W. Turner, An Italian Landscape, 34 × 46, 1,100 guineas; The Wreck Buoy, Royal Academy, 1849, 37 × 48, 1,000 guineas; Antwerp: Van Goyen going about to choose a subject, Royal Academy, 1833, 35 × 47, 6,500 guineas, (it is said that this picture was bought of Turner by Mr. Bicknell for £300; at the Bicknell sale, in 1863, it realized 2,510 guineas); and Mercury and Argus, Royal Academy, 1836, engraved by Willmore, 35 × 47, 3,600 guineas; Sir J. Reynolds, The Masters Gawler: John Bellenden and Henry Gawler, engraved by J. R. Smith, 2,300 guineas—at the E. Harrison sale, in 1873, this sold for 550 guineas; and T. Gainsborough, “The Sisters,” portraits of the Misses Ramus, afterwards Lady Day and the Baroness de Noailles, Royal Academy, 1775, 48 × 39, 9,500 guineas—at Colonel Towneley’s Sale in 1873 this beautiful work sold for 6,300 guineas.

The sale of the collection of drawings and pictures of Mr. W. Lee of Downside, Leatherhead, June 22nd (total £9,866), included some good things, notably L. Alma Tadema, The First Course, 740 guineas; J. McWhirter, Valley by the Sea, 1879, 350 guineas; Sir J. E. Millais, St. Martin's Summer, 840 guineas; F. Guardi, entrance to the Grand Canal, Venice, 390 guineas; Rosa Bonheur, Stag, Fontainebleau, 24 × 20, 1879, 840 guineas, etc. The last great sale of the season comprised the splendid collection of arms and armour of the Earl of Londesborough, which brought a total of £25,153, and included a very rare pig-faced bascinet, £425; a breast-plate of steel repoussée work, damascened with gold, 500 guineas; a pair of steel gauntlets, with captives and trophies at the sides, £677; a mentonnière, engraved with scrolls and borders richly gilt, £651; and a cap-à-pie suit of armour, engraved with semicircles, lions' heads, etc., originally gilt, 1,000 guineas. This sale also included an ivory hunting horn, carved with the legend of St. Hubert, from the Debruge collection, £1,071; and the ivory chairs and sofa presented by Tippoo Sahib to Warren Hastings, 1,000 guineas.

The art sales of 1889 were considerably below the average. The first of any note comprised the water-colour drawings of the late Mrs. Sara Austen, of Montague Place, Russell Square, was sold on April 11th. Many of these drawings were painted for the late owner's husband, or were purchased at the various water-colour exhibitions. The 206 lots realized a total of £11,452 14s., and this represents perhaps one of the best investments ever made in drawings. For instance, three Coxes, which originally cost 28 guineas, fetched 475 guineas; three de Wints, purchased for about £25, realized 347 guineas; four Copley Fieldings advanced in cash value from 143 guineas to over £2,500; five Prouts, acquired by Mr. Austen for the sum of 105 guineas, advanced to 2,047 guineas; and three Turners, the original price of which was 81½ guineas, realized a total of 915 guineas. The more important lots in this truly remarkable sale were the following: D. Cox, Haddon Hall, going out hawking, 18 × 24, 210 guineas; and Crossing Lancaster Sands, 8 × 11, sunset, 1836, 230 guineas; P. de Wint, View near Keswick, 12½ × 18½, 260 guineas; four examples of C. Fielding, the Fairy Lake, 40 × 30, 860 guineas; View from Bow Hill, Isle of Wight in the distance, 17 × 24, 640 guineas; Harlech Castle, 17 × 24, 550 guineas; and Morning, 7 × 23, exhibited at the Paris Exhibition, 1855, 200 guineas; several important examples of S. Prout, Wurtzburg Market and Cathedral, 29 × 45, 780 guineas; Augsburg Street and Golden Hall, 26 × 19, 588 guineas; the Cathedral, Rouen, the Butter Tower, 20 × 19, 413 guineas; and the Ducal Palace, Venice, engraved in the "Landscape Annual," 1830, 200 guineas; C. Stanfield, Lago Maggiore, 11 × 18, 360 guineas; and Ghent, engraved in Heath's "Picturesque Annual," 1833, 200 guineas; J. M. W. Turner, The Castle of St. Angelo, 5½ × 8½, engraved in Hakewill's "Italy,"

400 guineas; L'Ariccia, $5\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{1}{2}$, engraved in the same work, 310 guineas; and a View off Holy Island, $6\frac{1}{4} \times 9\frac{1}{2}$, 205 guineas.

The modern pictures and drawings of the late Felix Vigne, of Pembridge Place, Hyde Park, were sold on April 13th; those of the late Colonel W. J. Houldsworth, of Halifax, the late R. Peacock, M.P., of Gorton Hall, Lancashire, and others on May 4th; and those of the late C. B. Courtney, T. Robinson and others, on May 11th. The Houldsworth property included H. B. W. Davis, A Breezy Scene on the French coast, 1882, 26×47 , 430 guineas; F. Goodall, Sarah and Isaac, 340 guineas; P. Graham, A Sunny Day, 1881, 800 guineas; J. C. Hook, Kelp Burners in the Shetlands, 1,020 guineas; and Market Morning, 390 guineas; and J. M. W. Turner, a drawing of Criccieth Castle, 300 guineas. The Peacock property included Sir E. Landseer, Alpine Mastiffs, 1820, from the Jesse Watts Russel collection, 1,850 guineas. The extensive collection of water-colour drawings of the late William Quilter came up for sale on May 18th, and produced a total of £21,801. Many of these drawings were, as we have already pointed out, bought in at the three days' sale in April, 1875, and to the account of the earlier sale the reader is referred for particulars.

The modern pictures of the late Henry Hill, sold on May 25th, brought a total of £13,426, and included an exceptionally long series of the works of Frank Holl, notably Leaving Home, 28×41 , 530 guineas; The Firstborn, 42×60 , 290 guineas ; Deserted, 44×66 , 340 guineas ; The Wide, Wide World, 29×24 , 1873, 315 guineas ; Newgate, 27×37 , 1878, 370 guineas ; The Seamstresses, 18×25 , 285 guineas ; Going Home, a sketch, 1877, 255 guineas ; "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away," sketch, 200 guineas ; and A Deserter, sketch, 1874, 400 guineas. There were also G. Mason, Blackberry Gatherers, 1870, 29×22 , 1,410 guineas ; F. Walker, The Right of Way, 30×44 , 950 guineas ; J. C. Hook, Friends in Rough Weather, 1877, 30×51 , 480 guineas ; P. R. Morris, "The Sons of the Brave," 1879, 105×73 , £750 ; W. Q. Orchardson, Hamlet and the King, 320 guineas ; J. M. Strudwick, Isabella, 360 guineas ; and Love's Music, 300 guineas.

The great picture sale of the season comprised the seventeen ancient and modern pictures, of the highest importance, until recently forming part of the celebrated Secrétan collection. This small selection, which produced the handsome total of £27,825, was as follows : J. B. Pater, A pair of Camp Scenes, each with numerous figures, $6\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{3}{4}$, 710 guineas ; and a pair of Fêtes Champêtre, each with numerous figures in gardens, $21\frac{3}{4} \times 25\frac{1}{4}$, 800 guineas ; M. Hobbema, View of a Watermill and adjoining cottages, situated in a well-wooded country, a man angling, and other figures, signed, 23×33 , from the Hamilton Palace collection, 3,300 guineas ; and a Landscape, representing a richly-wooded country, with a high road on the left, leading obliquely into the distance, with several figures by Adrian Van de Velde, signed, 38×50 , from the Holderness,

Charles Hanbury Tracy and San Donato Palace collections (at the last of which it realized 8,000 guineas), 5,200 guineas; Isaac Ostade, the Cabaret, a party of peasants assembled outside an inn door under a pine tree, signed, and dated 1646, 26×23 , from the San Donato Palace sale of 1880, engraved by Gaujean, 1,500 guineas; Adrian Van de Velde, Milking-Time, a female peasant in blue dress with yellow sleeves, carrying a milkpail, and driving a red-and-white cow, $5\frac{1}{4} \times 6\frac{3}{4}$, 270 guineas; P. Perugino, The Madonna, in crimson dress and blue mantle, her hands clasped in prayer, 21×18 , from the Princess of Sagan collection, 330 guineas (H. Quilter); A Décamps, A Courtyard, an Eastern scene, with four children in the foreground, two others beyond, 1838, from the Naryshkine collection, 2,040 guineas; E. Delacroix, Christopher Columbus at the Monastery, a composition of seven figures, 1838, 34×45 , from the Edouard André collection, 1,150 guineas; and The Giaour, 1856, 25×32 , from the Baron Beurnonville collection, 1,250 guineas; J. F. Millet, "Le Vanneur" (the Winnower), a peasant in a barn, winnowing corn, signed, 22×30 , 3,400 guineas; C. Troyon, Le Garde Chasse, a keeper in blue blouse and black hat, with gun and four hounds, at the edge of a wold, 1854, 35 × 28, 2,800 guineas; and The Heights of Suresnes, a herd of cows going to the farm in the foreground, followed by a peasant driving two horses, 1856, 34 × 51, 2,900 guineas—the last three are from the Crabbe collection.

The picture sales of 1890 were both numerous and important, being especially rich in fine works of the great masters of the early English school. An interesting sale was that of the late William Carver, of Kersal, Manchester, which took place on March 22nd, and included four drawings and thirteen pictures by G. F. Watts—one of the largest collections formed by one collector of this artist's works, and recalling the Rickard sale of 1887. The pictures were: The Red Cross Knight and Una, 33 × 60, 1,650 guineas; Love and Death, 1875, 60 × 29, 1,320 guineas; The Rider on the White Horse, 60 × 48, 1,450 guineas; The Rider on the Red Horse, 225 guineas; The Rider on the Black Horse, 370 guineas; Death on the Pale Horse, 225 guineas; Hope, 460 guineas; Cupid, 190 guineas—the last five measure about 26 × 20; The Penitent, 39 × 29, 400 guineas; The Dove that Returneth no More, 68 × 27, 470 guineas; Mount Ararat, 56 × 28, 316 guineas; Rain Passing Away, 42 × 18, 120 guineas; and The Rainbow, 84 × 45, 510 guineas. A few of these were understood to be bought in.

The first Saturday sale of the first importance—April 26th—comprised the pictures of the late J. C. Harter, of The Cedars, Leamington, and property from other sources, notably: Sir E. Landseer, Uncle Tom and his Wife for Sale, 1857, 27 × 35, engraved by Mottram, 1,230 guineas; W. Müller, Felucca leaving the port of Rhodes, 1843, 15 × 22, 450 guineas; W. Mulready, Landscape with peasants and horses, 1819, 300 guineas; L. Alma Tadema, The Studio, 1867, 460 guineas; Sir J. E. Millais, Asleep, 34 × 28, engraved by Barlow, 1,400 guineas; G. Barret, Classical river scene, 160 guineas, and a View in the Weald of Kent, 150 guineas. The modern pictures of C. Neck, sold May 3rd, included a long series of works chiefly measuring about 28 × 39, by the elder Linnell, of which the most important were: Landscape, with sheep, 305 guineas; Pons Asinorum, 900 guineas; the Barley Harvest, 1,150 guineas; the Happy Valley, 940 guineas; A Stormy Sunset, 870 guineas; A Sultry Day, 700 guineas; Sunrise, 720 guineas; The Fisherman, 700 guineas; Woods and Forests, 1,900 guineas; and Pointing the Way, 1,140 guineas; four works by J. C. Hook: The Nearest Way to School, 1881, 1,350 guineas; Cornish Mermaids, 35 × 55, 1,350 guineas; the Cowherd's Mischief, 600 guineas, and 'Tis an ill Wind, etc., Paris Exhibition, 1889, 2,450 guineas; Colin Hunter, Daybreak, digging for bait, 1882, 325 guineas; W. Q. Orchardson, A Morning Call, 32 × 25, 450 guineas; and In the Trifolium, 300 guineas; John Pettie, Dost know this Waterfly? 400 guineas, and Eugene Aram, 620 guineas. There were also sold on the same day, but from another property: Vicat Cole, Sinodun Hill, 700 guineas; F. Dicksee, Too Late, 940 guineas; E. Long, The Easter Vigil, 800 guineas, and a Scene in the Welsh Mountains, 420 guineas; B. Rivière, After Naseby, 700 guineas; and Stuart Wortley, The Big Pack, 320 guineas.

But quite the most important event of the year 1890 was the dispersal of the celebrated collection of ancient and modern pictures, formed many years ago by the distinguished patron of art, William Wells, of Redleaf, Kent. The sale of the collection was in consequence of the death of William Wells, of Holme Wood, Peterborough, for which place he sat in the House of Commons from 1868 to 1874. We have already alluded to the founder of this collection, and to the various sales to which his name is attached. That now under notice was held on Saturday, May 10th, and the following Monday, 238 lots realizing £78,312; whilst the valuable collection of Oriental porcelain and objects of art, sold on Tuesday and Wednesday, May 13th-14th, brought £12,812. The more important of the pictures were as follows: Sir A. W. Callcott, View in Holland, a market, figures in the foreground, 25 × 38, 280 guineas; W. Collins, Hop-pickers, 1835, 20 × 26, 340 guineas; T. Creswick, At Killarney, 22 × 31, 200 guineas; W. Etty, A Bacchante, 38 × 29, 425 guineas; T. Gainsborough, woody Landscape, with three cows on the bank of a stream, 14 × 12, 360 guineas; Sir F. Grant, Portrait of Sir E. Landseer—the dog by Landseer—exhibited at the Royal Academy, 1855, 120 guineas. The thirty-one pictures by Landseer, included: Dead Pheasant, 350 guineas; Death of the Woodcock, 640 guineas, both measuring 19×26 , and painted in 1823; Heads of Sheep and Cattle, 19×23 , 1828, 570 guineas; Roe's head and Ptarmigan, 9×12 , exhibited at the British Institution, 1830, as "Ptarmigan and Roebuck," 400 guineas—the foregoing have not been engraved; Trim: "the old dog looks like a picture," 18×24 , engraved by J. Webb for the New Sporting Magazine, and inscribed, "To W. Wells, Esq., with the author's respects. Painted by E. Landseer, in two hours and a half, Redleaf, August, 1831," 750 guineas; A Highland Interior, 28×34 , Royal Academy, 1831, engraved by Finden and Ryall, 2,300 guineas; Grouse, 19×26 , exhibited at the Royal Institution, 1833, 1,060 guineas; Ptarmigan, similar in size, exhibited at the same time, and neither engraved, 600 guineas; Pointer, 17×24 , 1833, engraved by T. Landseer, 850 guineas; Black Cock and Grey Hen, 19×26 , exhibited at the British Institution, 1833, 1,200 guineas; Snipe and Woodcock, 19×26 , 1833, 1,150 guineas; Partridges, 19×26 , 1833, 1,400 guineas; Dead Wild Duck, 20×26 , 1833, 550 guineas; Black Highland Ox, "Sketch painted in one morning, at Dunrobin Castle, by E. L., 1834," 330 guineas—the last five have not been engraved; The Reaper, 24×18 , exhibited at the British Institution, 1836, as the "Highland Harvest Girl," engraved by H. T. Ryall in 1834, and again by him in a large style, 1846, 400 guineas; the Shepherd's Grave, 1837, 12 × 14, engraved by B. P. Gibbon, 1,200 guineas; the Woodcutter, 1837, 19 × 24, 2,200 guineas; The Hawk, and the Peregrine Falcon, the companion, both measuring 24 × 16, and exhibited at the Royal Academy, 1837, together £1,000—the last three engraved by C. G. guineas; J. Steen, The Skittle - Players, 660 guineas; and a pair by Teniers, The Guard Room, 1,400 guineas, and Playing La Morra, 700 guineas. A number—about one - half—of the pictures in this sale were bought in.

In some respects the remarkable collection of drawings formed by Mr. Ayscough Fawkes, of Farnley Hall, Otley, Yorkshire, was the most noteworthy sale of the year, inasmuch as it contained no fewer than sixty-two lots catalogued under Turner's name.

Mr. Fawkes—apparently the grandfather of the present vendor—was one of Turner's intimate friends, a warm and sympathizing admirer of his genius, and a generous patron. It was whilst on a visit to Mr. Fawkes at Farnley Hall, in 1805 or 1806, that a fellow-visitor took a sketch of the artist—it shows us a little Jewish-nosed man in an ill-cut coat, striped waistcoat, and enormous frilled shirt, with feet and hands notably small. This sketch, here reproduced, was first published in Willis's Current Notes, January, 1852. The Rhine drawings, of which there were thirty-five in this sale, were made during a tour up the Rhine in 1819; Mr. Fawkes purchased these drawings, which had for over seventy years been kept in a special case. They were exhibited at Burlington House in 1889. The sale took place on June 27th, and the entire collection realized £21,736, the Turner drawings including: Mayence, $8\frac{3}{4} \times 13\frac{7}{8}$, 410 guineas; Palace of Beibrich, $8 \times 13\frac{1}{2}$, 260 guineas; Rudesheim, looking to Bingenklopp, $8\frac{1}{4} \times 13\frac{1}{2}$, 200 guineas; Oberwesel, $7\frac{3}{4} \times 12$, 310 guineas; Cologne, $7\frac{3}{4} \times 12$, 280 guineas; View from Mr. Walter Fawkes's house, at 45, Grosvenor Place, $9\frac{6}{8} \times 15\frac{2}{8}$, 250 guineas; Windermere, $11\frac{1}{4} \times 15\frac{1}{2}$, 1,200 guineas; Ulleswater, $11 \times 15\frac{1}{2}$, 305 guineas; High Force, fall of the Tees, $11 \times 15\frac{1}{2}$, 210 guineas; Loch Tyne, signed in full, $11 \times 15\frac{1}{2}$, 690 guineas; Vevey, lake of Geneva, $11 \times 15\frac{1}{2}$, 950 guineas; Sallenches, $11 \times 15\frac{1}{2}$, 400 guineas; Valley of Chamouni, $12 \times 13\frac{1}{2}$, 800 guineas; Lausanne and the Lake of Geneva, $11\frac{1}{2} \times 15\frac{1}{2}$, 700 guineas; Rome, from Monte Mario, $11 \times 15\frac{1}{2}$, 450 guineas; Rome, another view, signed in full, date 1820-21, $11 \times 15\frac{1}{2}$, 350 guineas; Vesuvius in eruption, $11 \times 15\frac{1}{2}$, 350 guineas; Venice, from Fusina, $11\frac{1}{4} \times 15\frac{1}{2}$, 630 guineas; Stonehenge, frontispiece to "Chronology. Modern History," by Walter Fawkes, 220 guineas; Lucerne, from Fluelen, 26×39 , signed with initials, 2,200 guineas; and Mont Blanc, from the Val d'Aosta, signed in full, 26×39 , 1,000 guineas.

The last great picture sale of the year 1890 was formed in part by the St. Maur heirlooms known as the Stover collection, late the property of his Grace, Edward Adolphus, twelfth Duke of Somerset, and in part with property from other sources. The sale took place on June 28th, and of the seventy-six lots in the Somerset portion we may mention the following: Two portraits by Gainsborough, both from the Duke of Hamilton's collection, Lord A. Hamilton, in blue silk Vandyck dress, with lace collar and sleeves, 4,200 guineas; and Alexander, Duke of Hamilton, in black Vandyck dress with lace collar, 1,500 guineas—each of these two portraits is in an oval and measures 30 × 25; J. Hoppner, Portrait of a lady with powdered hair, black dress and white kerchief, holding a muff, 30 × 25, 1,500 guineas; Sir H. Raeburn, Portrait of Professor John Playfair, holding his spectacles in his right hand, seated at a table, 50 × 40, 210 guineas; P. Potter, The Dairy Farm, with numerous figures and cattle, an afternoon of a fine day, 19 × 24, signed, and dated 1646, from the Van Slinglant, La Perier, 1817, A. Delahante, 1821, and Lepeyriere, 1825, collections, exhibited at the British Institution, 1828, and described in Smith's "Catalogue," 5,800 guineas; M. Hobbema, Woody landscape, with a cottage under a group of trees, several figures, signed, 23 × 32, 2,600 guineas; A. Ostade, Village Scene, with four peasants seated round a barrel outside a cabaret, bagpiper and other figures, 17 × 18, 240 guineas; G. Dow, Interior of an apartment, with a trumpeter seated at a table, drinking, 21 × 18,

The Somerset property was followed by the large number of thirteen works of George Romney, the property of Mr. Walter J. Long, of Preshaw, Hants., in whose family they had been since they were painted. No such collection had hitherto appeared in the market, and Romney's rapidly growing popularity was very fully demonstrated. The great-uncle of the present vendor was a surgeon in a large way of practice; he was an intimate friend of Romney, and is frequently mentioned in letters to and from the artist. The collection included: Head of Lady Hamilton, a sketch, 21×17 , 195 guineas; Portrait of William Hayley, 22×16 , 135 guineas; Nessus and Dejanira, a sketch, 36×28 , 62 guineas; Macbeth and the Witches, with Henderson as Macbeth, engraved, 54×64 , 250 guineas; Cupid and Psyche, 50×39 , 160 guineas; Lady Hamilton as Circe, whole length, 1782, 93×58 , 3,850 guineas; Mother and Child, 23×19 , 175 guineas; The Coy Child, 23×21 , 620 guineas; The Bashful Child, 21×17 , 950 guineas; The Shy Child, 23×21 , 760 guineas; and Head of Lady Hamilton, her hands clasped, and with sketch on back, 23×20 , 380 guineas. It may be here mentioned that the Romney Portrait (the property of Mr. Engleheart) of Lady Hamilton as "Sensibility," for which Hayley, the poet, paid 100 guineas, was sold on March 29th of this year for 2,900 guineas; and that in the J. Carwardine sale of February 22nd, two important works of this master were sold—Lady Hamilton as Contemplation, 1,050 guineas, and a portrait of Mrs. Butler (Miss Carwardine), 1,750 guineas.

Although only two collections—those of Mr. C. P. Matthews and Mr. Bolckow—of the first importance came under the hammer in 1891, the average number of important pictures sold at auction was fully maintained. The first noteworthy sale of pictures, February 28th, comprised the collections of the late J. F. Buller, of Morval House, Sandplace, Cornwall, of Lord Haldon, of Torquay, and property from other sources; but we need only specify Sir Joshua Reynold's Portrait of Mrs. Buller, 50 × 39, engraved by S. W. Reynolds, 4,500 guineas; W. Collins, Scene at Aberystwith, with portraits of the three children of E. Antrobus, 1842, 410 guineas; J. Hoppner, Portrait of Lady Braithwaite Boughton, 1786, 370 guineas; G. Romney, Portrait of a lady in white and gold drapery, 650 guineas; Claude Lorraine, Embarkation of St. Paulina, 43 × 54, 870 guineas; F. Hals, Portrait of a gentleman in black dress and hat, seated, 29 × 23, 470 guineas; Rembrandt, Portrait of an elderly woman, in black dress, ruff, and cap, seated, 510 guineas; Ruysdael, River Scene, with watermill, 600 guineas; W. Van de Velde,

Departure of King Charles II. from the Scheldt, signed, and dated 1660, 49 × 69, 1,870 guineas ; J. Van Goyen, Frozen river scene, 1642, 380 guineas ; A. Van der Neer, Winter scene, 360 guineas ; and P. Weenix, A grand Garden Scene, 1,050 guineas. The collection of modern pictures formed by the Marquis de Santurce (Adriano de Murrieta), was sold on April 25th, and realized £13,164. It contained many interesting works, notably five pictures by David Cox, some of which were bought in, Welsh river scene, 21 × 29, 400 guineas ; View in North Wales, with boys fishing, 18 × 24, 380 guineas ; Mountain Shepherd, with sheep, 25 × 31, 600 guineas ; Pont-y-pier, Bettws-y-Coed, 18 × 24, 750 guineas ; and Changing Pastures, 1850, 13 × 21, 360 guineas ; six examples of J. Linnell, The Reapers, 1862, 18 × 24, 550 guineas ; Noon : the mid-day rest, 1871, 28 × 38, 600 guineas ; Changing Pastures, 1859, 15 × 28, 460 guineas ; a Richly Wooded Landscape, with peasant and cattle, 28 × 39, 1873, 620 guineas ; Milking Time, 30 × 20, 360 guineas ; and Landscape, with peasants and children on a road, 20 × 26, 320 guineas ; J. Phillip, Dolores at the Balcony, 1863, 17 × 12, 360 guineas ; D. Roberts, High Altar, Rouen Cathedral, 1844, 50 × 42, 570 guineas ; several examples of J. Stark, Trumps Mill, near Virginia Water, 36 × 53, 500 guineas ; The Weir, with figures, 36 × 52, 430 guineas ; The Ferry, 36 × 52, 325 guineas ; Wood Scene, with gipsy encampment, 12 × 17, 220 guineas ; and an extensive Landscape, with sportsmen, 24 × 36, 210 guineas ; three important examples of L. Alma Tadema, An Audience with Agrippa, 1861, 2,550 guineas; A Portion of the Vintage Festival, 1872, 2,250 guineas; and Un Amateur Romain, 1869, 2,650 guineas (the last two were bought in); Vicat Cole, Autumn Leaves, 1869, 500 guineas; T. Faed, Worn Out, 1868, 400 guineas; F. Goodall, Mater Dolorosa, 190 guineas; Mater Purissima, 225 guineas (both engraved by S. Cousins); and The Inundation of the Nile, 490 guineas; three by P. Graham, Landscape, with peasants driving sheep, 1871, 36 × 55, 650 guineas; Spathe in the Highlands, 30 × 43, 570 guineas; and A Mountain Torrent, 19 × 23, 310 guineas; Rosa Bonheur, Group of three sheep and a lamb, 1866, 640 guineas; W. Phillip were: The Balcony, painted in Seville, 1857, 24 × 20, 300 guineas; The Gipsy Duet, an oval, engraved for the Art Journal, 1855, 26 × 22, 300 guineas; The Early Career of Murillo, 1634, painted in 1866, 305 guineas—these three were exhibited at the International Exhibition of 1873; The Signal, 1862, 19 × 16, 450 guineas; and Al Duena, Royal Academy, 1858, 25 × 19, 510 guineas; the eight examples of P. F. Poole included, Solomon Eagle exhorting people to repentance during the Plague of the year 1665, referred to in Defoe's narrative, Royal Academy, 1845, 60 × 87, 315 guineas; and The Goths in Italy, Royal Academy, 1851, 56 × 83, 250 guineas; Briton Riviere, Persepolis, Royal Academy, 1878, the engraved picture, 29 × 54, 950 guineas; and a study for the picture known as Victims, 1878, 14 × 20, 220 guineas; and C. Stanfield, The Island of Mazorbo and Torcello, Venice, Royal Academy, 1843, 34 × 50, from the collections of G. Knott, 1845 (405 guineas), and J. Hargreaves, 1873 (1,400 guineas), 1,000 guineas.

The collections of pictures formed by the late Miss James, of Norfolk Square, Hyde Park, collected by her father the late Andrew James, of Harewood Square, Colonel McMurdo, and properties from other sources, sold on June 20th; and Miss James' collection of water-colour drawings sold on June 22nd and 23rd (£8,607) included some noteworthy examples. The principal pictures in Miss James' property were: F. Hals, Portrait of Cornelius Riedwagen, 430 guineas, and one of Johannes Hoornbeck, 230 guineas; J. Ruysdael, Rustic Cottage, at the edge of a pond, with old willow and man angling, 12 × 11, 590 guineas; four examples of A. Watteau, L'Occupation selon l'âge, an interior engraved by Dupuis, from the Marquis of Camden's collection, 14 × 16, 5,200 guineas; L'Accord Parfait, 14 × 11 (see Chap. XIII. p. 173), 3,500 guineas; and A Garden Scene, from Sir Joshua Reynolds' collection, 12×8 , 500 guineas; and An Encampment, catalogued under Watteau, but the work of Pater, $6\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{1}{2}$, 410 guineas. Miss James' water-colour drawings included J. M. W. Turner, Colchester Castle, engraved in "England and Wales," 11×16 , 250 guineas, and London and the Thames from the South, 160 guineas; and a superb series of nearly eighty by Watteau, of which the principal were: Leçon d'Amour, 10×8 , 225 guineas; La Toilette, 60 guineas; Comedien Italien, 300 guineas; Boys and Flute Players, 130 guineas; Three studies of Ladies, 210 guineas; Seven women's and two boys' heads, 650 guineas; Madame Duclos, 350 guineas, and Lady's head, 100 guineas.

The extensive collection of pictures, objects of art, old Italian decorative furniture, and silver plate of the late Right Hon. George Augustus Frederick Cavendish Bentinck formed the last great sale of 1891. Mr. Cavendish Bentinck, who was born in 1821, was a well-known connoisseur, and for many years sat in the House of Commons; the collections now sold adorned his residences at 3, Grafton Street, London, and Brownsea Island. The sale occupied nine days, from July 8th to July 17th, and the 1,425 lots realized a total of £69,546. We have only space to refer to the more important pictures which were sold on Saturday, July 11th, and the following Monday: G. Stubbs, Portrait of a horse and jockey, with lake scene in the background, 1774, 23×38 , 360 guineas; G. Morland, a Hunting Scene, 1793, 17×23 , 295 guineas; T. HE art sales of 1892 were considerably above the average, whilst the dispersal of the Dudley collection was unquestionably the great event of the season. The compiler of The Year's Art points out the interesting fact that whereas in 1890, thirty-nine pictures realized 1,400 guineas and upwards, in 1891 thirty-seven passed that limit, no fewer than fifty-five occurred in the 1892 list. The first important art sale comprised the stock-in-trade, porcelain, furniture and pictures, etc., of the late Samson Wertheimer, of 154, New Bond Street, the well-known dealer, showing a total of upwards of £57,000. The pictures were sold on March 19th, and included : K. du Jardin, The Travelling Musicians, 20 × 19, signed and dated, from the Spencer Lucy collection, 220 guineas ; D. Teniers, A Village Fête, a scene of merriment in front of a large public house, from the window of which flies a flag with a figure of a warrior on it, 22 × 28, 1,430 guineas ; and Interior of a Guard-room, four military men at a table gaming, 21 × 28, 1,700 guineas ; Rembrandt, Portrait of a young woman, Hendrikje Stoffels, rising up in bed, putting the curtains back with her hand, signed, and dated 1650, engraved in mezzotint by Cooper, 32 × 26, arched, from the collections of Prince Carignan and Lady Mildmay, 5,000 guineas—the four foregoing are described in Smith's "Catalogue ;" F. Guardi, An Italian Seaport, with ruins, figures unloading a boat, and vessels, 57 × 77, from the collection of the King of Wurtemberg, 300 guineas ; A. Watteau, L'Accord Parfait, lady and gentleman seated under a tree, he is playing the flute, other figures, 14 × 11, engraved by Baron, from the James (see ante, p. 168) collection, 2,100 guineas ; Sir J. Reynolds, Portrait of Lady Sondes, in white dress, black hat, seated in a landscape, three-quarter length, 50 × 40, 4,100 guineas ; three works by G. Romney, Lady Hamilton as a Welsh girl, 49 × 39, from the collection of J. F. Jesse, of Ruthin, 2,100 guineas ; Portrait of Mrs. William Morton Pitt and her son, 48 × 39, from Mrs. Hoare's collection, 1,100 guineas ; and Portrait of a little girl, in a landscape, feeding a fawn, 510 guineas.

Important pictures from different private collections sold on the same day, included five works of George Romney, Portrait of Lady Augusta Murray, Duchess of Somerset, in white and blue dress, with primrose sash, seated before a statue, 49 × 39, 3,800 guineas; Portrait of Richard Cumberland, the dramatist, 30 × 25, 100 guineas; George Cumberland, a midshipman, aged 14, son of the foregoing, 28 × 21, 220 guineas; Miss Sophia Cumberland, playing a mandoline, daughter of R. Cumberland, 30 × 25, 490 guineas, and Lady Edward Bentinck and her sister Miss Sophia Cumberland, aged 12 and 13, 30 × 25, 940 guineas; Sir J. Reynolds, Portrait of the Hon. Caroline Gawler, painted in 1776, 30 × 25, 300 guineas, and of Mrs. Barnard, wife of Dean Barnard, painted in 1774, 50 × 40, 305 guineas; T. Gainsborough, The Market Cart, 26 × 36, 565 guineas, and Portrait of Lieutenant Colonel Jonathan Bullock, of Faulkbourne Hall, M.P. for Essex, whole length in uniform, 89 × 60, 500 guineas; P. Nasmyth, A Rivulet, 17 × 22, from the collections of Keith Barns and Malcolm Orme, exhibited at the Art Treasures, Manchester, 1857, 420 guineas; George Morland, The Cornish Plunderers, 57 × 79, fully described in Hassell's "Life" of the painter, 800 guineas; Murillo, Head of a Bacchante, 15 × 12, from the Wells collection, exhibited at Manchester, 1857, and described in Curtis (p. 283), 800 guineas; N. Lancret, a Fête Champêtre, 280 guineas; J. Stark, Fair on the Banks of the Yare, near St. Benet's Abbey, 35×54 , 1,400 guineas; F. Snyders, Interior of a Larder, with female servant carrying a basket of artichokes and dead game, 73×102 , 500 guineas. The late F. Lehmann's property, also sold on the same day, included three important drawings by F. Walker, The Fishmonger's Shop, $13\frac{1}{2} \times 23$, 600 guineas; Marlow Ferry, 12×18 , 1,120 guineas—these two were exhibited at Paris in 1878, and have been etched by R. W. Macbeth—and Coaching and Cabbage, 7×10 , 260 guineas.

The collection of modern pictures of the late Arthur C. Burnand, of Hyde Park Gate, sold on March 22nd, included: T. S. Cooper, Cows in a Meadow, 1852, 24×36 , 220 guineas; J. Phillip, Aqua Benedita, Royal Academy, 1863, 37×31 , 670 guineas; F. R. Lee, and T. S. Cooper, "The Chequered Shade," Royal Academy, 1854, 78×66 , 250 guineas; E. W. Cooke, Bella Venezia, Royal Academy, 1860, 35×54 , 480 guineas, and French Lugger running into Calais, 1854, 41×66 , 700 guineas; C. Stanfield, Old Holland, Royal Academy, 1858, 48×42 , 530 guineas; T. Creswick and R. Ansdell, The Nearest Way in Summer Time, 48×72 , 600 guineas; D. Roberts, The Chancel of the Collegiate Church of St. Paul, Antwerp, Royal Academy, 1862, painted for Mr. Burnand, 48×42 , 300 guineas; and three works by F. Goodall, Felice Ballarin reciting Tasso to the people of Chioggia, 57×95 , 270 guineas; The Messengers from Sinai at the Wells of Moses, Proverbs, xxv. 25, 70 × 48, 260 guineas; and Hagar and Ishmael, Genesis, xxi. 14, 54 × 96, 320 guineas — exhibited respectively at the Royal Academy of 1852, 1864, 1866. The same day's sale included: Sir F. Leighton, After Vespers, 585 guineas; C. Daubigny, River Scene, with female peasant driving cows, 450 guineas; T. S. Cooper, River Scene, with cows, sunset, 380 guineas; J. Linnell, The Woodcutters, 560 guineas; C. Stanfield, Le Pic du Midi, from Turner of Clapham's sale, 250 guineas; Sir E. Landseer, Alpine Masters, exhibited at the British Institution, 1820, and at Manchester, 1857, engraved by John Landseer, and from the Jesse Watts Russell collection, 74 × 93, 800 guineas; and a water-colour drawing by P. de Wint, Bolton Abbey, exhibited at the Water Colour Society, 1846, 900 guineas.

The renowned collection of modern pictures by English and Foreign Artists, formed during the last half century by the well-known amateur and patron of art, the late David Price, of 4, Queen Anne Street, many of which were bought direct from the artists and exhibited at the Royal Academy and other exhibitions; also artists' proof engravings of some of the pictures in the collection, etc., came under the hammer on Saturday, April 2nd, 4th, and 5th. The total realized was £69,577. David Price was rather a remarkable man. Coming to London from Wales about sixty years ago, backed only by an apprentice's knowledge of the drapery and an indomitable will, he obtained employment in the firm now known as Cook, Son, and Co., St.

Paul's-churchyard. After a few years there he started on his own account, first as London agent for one or two big woollen manufacturers, and then for himself solely. As senior partner and directing genius generally in the firm of Price, Coker and Co., Gresham Street, he amassed a big fortune. Outside his business he had no thought for anything but art, and so far back as thirty-six years before his death he began to be known in art circles as a connoisseur. The collection, which received a special notice in the Art Journal, November, 1891, cost the late owner as a whole a sum of about £90,000. Mr. Price died in 1891.

The principal English pictures were as follows:— Vicat Cole, View on the Thames, 255 guineas; View on the River Avon, 260 guineas (each about 15 × 24); and the Thames at Streatley, 35 × 54, 1876, 690 guineas; J. Phillip, A Spanish Volunteer, 17 × 13, 1862, 730 guineas; and El Cortejo, 24 × 18, Royal Academy, 1858, 630 guineas; J. Stark, Woody Landscape, View in Norfolk, 17 × 24, 650 guineas; and Road through a Wood, with pool and sportsman, 13 × 18, 360 guineas; J. B. Burgess, An Artist's Almsgiving, 1886, 265 guineas; E. W. Cooke, On the Bristol Channel, 1853, 210 guineas; and Dutch Fishing Craft, Katwyk, North Holland, 1852, 370 guineas; T. Creswick, Richmond, Yorkshire, Royal Academy, 1836, 31 × 47, 1,250 guineas; H. B. W. Davis, Afternoon on the Cliffs, Royal Academy, 1878, 250 guineas; W. Etty, A Bivouac of Cupid and his Company, Royal Academy, 1838, and from

Regnard in his Studio, 1862, $8\frac{1}{4} \times 6\frac{1}{4}$, 1,800 guineas; this picture cost Mr. Price about £700.

The financial disaster which overtook the Messrs. Murrieta was the cause of throwing an exceedingly extensive collection of pictures on the market. The sale was in three instalments: the first portion comprised 523 lots, and was sold on April 30th, May 2nd and 3rd, 1892, and realized £50,092; the second of 350 lots, on May 14th and 16th, £23,588; and the third, of 1,282 lots, in January, 27th, 28th, 30th, 1893, and five following days, £21,336. It will be convenient to group the three together. First Portion: Drawings:—D. Cox, Going to the Hayfield, 1,050 guineas; Barden Tower, 1,100 guineas—both these drawings measured 24×34 , they were from Lady Buxton's collection, and were exhibited at the Old Water Colour Society, 1851 and 1849 respectively; Welsh Cornfield with Reapers, 18×30 , 340 guineas; The Road by the Wood: Man on Pack-horse, 1849, 20×18 , 280 guineas; A Welsh Landscape, with Children and Fowls, 1843, 18×27 , 540 guineas; and The Hay-Waggon, 11×19 , 240 guineas; Copley Fielding, A Grand Scottish Landscape, with Mountains, exhibited at the Old Water Colour Society, 1849, 30×44 , 1,200 guineas; and Off the Isle of Wight, 1852, 11×15 , 245 guineas; Birket Foster, A Country Lane: children and ducks in the foreground, 13×28 , 330 guineas; and In The Hayfield, 16×31 , 290 guineas; Carl Haag, A Bedouin Sheikh, 1869, 19×13 , 235 guineas; and the Entrance to a Mosque, 1864,

The great picture sale of the year comprised the highly important Gallery of the late Right Hon. Earl of Dudley. The sale took place on June 25th, and 91 lots realized the handsome total of £99,564. This Gallery comprised works by the greatest masters of the Italian, Spanish, Flemish, Dutch, French, and English schools: was commenced early in the century by the first Earl of Dudley, and continued by the late Earl by a large purchase from Cardinal Fesch's sale at Rome in 1845, which included the celebrated pictures of the Crucifixion, by Raffaele, and Christ Preaching, by Rembrandt, and enriched from time to time from the best collections which have been dispersed since that date, including Bisenzio, Durazzo, San Donato, Duca Litta, Salamanca, Prince Napoleon, Lord Bessborough, Lord Exeter, Bredel, Bruce, Eastlake, Lucy, Novar, Constable Maxwell, and Scarisbrick. The entire collection was exhibited at Burlington House in 1871, and some of the finest works reappeared in recent

One of the first pictures Lord Dudley bought, at the age of twenty-five, was the Raphael from the Cardinal Fesch sale at Rome, which yielded the handsome profit of over £8,000, and turned what would otherwise have been a heavy depreciation into an advance.

Taking the pictures in the order of sale, the following were the principal :—A. Cuyp, A Grand Landscape, with a distant city and cattle and figures in the foreground, 52 × 77, 1,800 guineas ; N. Berghem, Milking the Goats, from the Scarisbrick collection, 21 × 24, 240 guineas ; K. Fabritius, Portrait of a Man, 26 × 22, 195 guineas ; M. Hobbema, View in Holland, representing a rural scene in which industry has triumphed over local difficulties, and from a marshy bog created a luxuriant landscape ; two fine cows of a yellowish red colour, by A. Van de Velde,¹ signed and dated 1663, 36 × 50, described by Smith, from the collection of the Right Hon. Edward John Littleton, for whose ancestor the picture is said to have been painted, and purchased privately by Lord Dudley from Lord Hatherton (for about 3,000 guineas), 9,600 guineas (see full-page plate) ; and two others by the same, a Richly Wooded River Scene, with peasants and a dog on a winding road on the left, signed, from the Novar collection, 26 × 34, 1,900 guineas ; and a Landscape, with travellers passing

¹ “A masterpiece of Hobbema, both for extent and excellence ; a picture which is equal to a whole gallery. For striking truth of Nature, delicacy of aerial perspective, effect of bright afternoon sun, and masterly lightness of execution there are probably very few pictures in the world which can bear a comparison to this.”—DR. WAAGEN.

1847 avec d'autres tableaux à lord Ward. Ce tableau, en général bien conservé, a été fait d'après ceux du Perugin ; il est tellement dans la manière de ce maître, qu'on y remarque seulement quelques parties qui par la faiblesse du dessin et du modèle, trahissent un peintre encore jeune et inexperimenté ; mais la génie de Raphael se révèle déjà dans la beauté des têtes et surtout dans celle de la Madeleine. . . . Cette peinture n'avait jamais été gravée, avant que nous en eussions donné dans l'édition allemande de notre livre une gravure faite par L. Gruner."

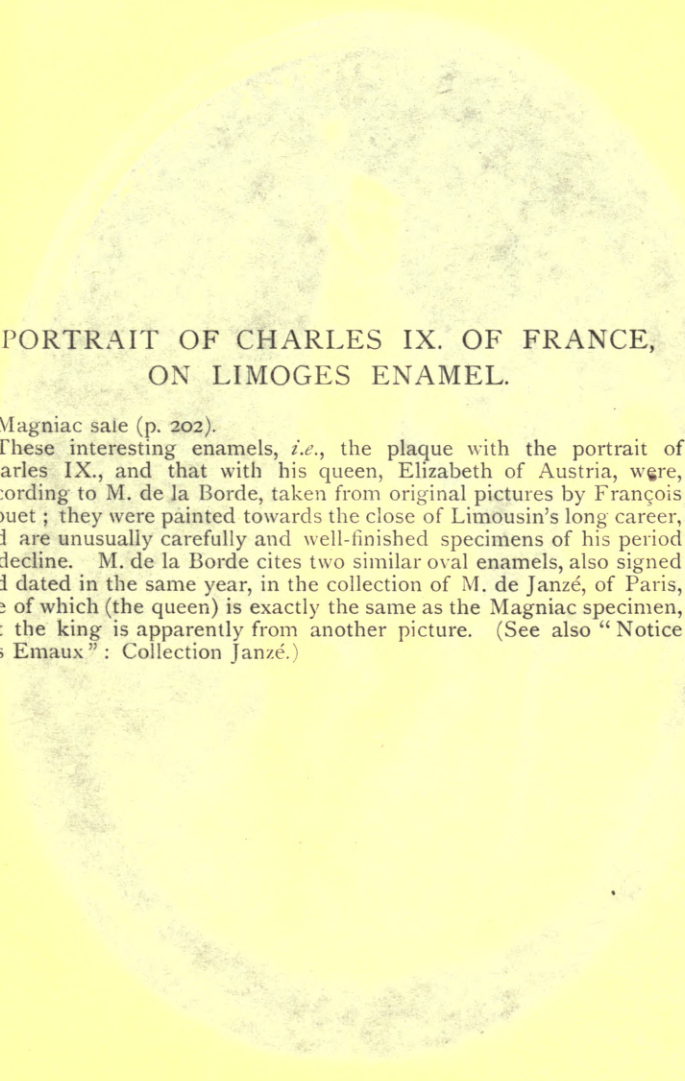

A CANDLESTICK OF LIMOGES ENAMEL,
BY J. COURTOIS.

Magniac sale (p. 202).

The last sale of the year comprised the renowned collection of works of art, chiefly formed by the late Hollingworth Magniac, known as the Colworth collection. The sale of 1554 lots occupied eleven days, from Saturday, July 2nd, to Friday, July 15th, and produced the total of £103,040. A considerable number of these objects were exhibited at the Society of Arts Exhibition, in 1850, and again at the South Kensington Loan Exhibition, in 1862. An admirable descriptive "Notice" of the collection was written by Sir Charles Robinson, in 1862, and this formed the basis of Messrs. Christie's exhaustive sale catalogue. It is obviously impossible for us to enter very fully into details in connection with this sale, but the following résumé gives a very good idea of the extraordinary variety and richness of the collection:—HISTORICAL PORTRAITS (July 2nd): Mary Queen of Scots when Dauphine of France, in rich dress embroidered with gold, wearing a richly jewelled cap, in frame of ivory inlaid with tortoiseshell, $3\frac{7}{8} \times 2\frac{7}{8}$, 350 guineas; Lucas de Heere, Portrait of the Artist, from the S. Rogers collection, 11×9 , 105 guineas; Quentin Matsys, Louis XI. of France, $8\frac{7}{8} \times 5\frac{1}{2}$, arched top, from Strawberry Hill, 160 guineas; Janet, François Duc d'Alençon, 12×8 , 160 guineas; Sir A. More, Queen Elizabeth when young, $8\frac{3}{4} \times 7$, 179 guineas; Holbein, Henry Howard, Earl of Surrey, 12×10 , 170 guineas, and Sir H. Wyatt, in fur-trimmed robe, and black cap, gold chain and badge, $14\frac{3}{4} \times 12$, 305 guineas. A series of twenty-seven portraits of historical personages included:—

Marguerite de Valois, Queen of Navarre, 1570, 470 guineas; Emperor Charles V., by an early Flemish master, circa 1511, from Strawberry Hill, 28×20 , 340 guineas; Albert Dürer, in his twenty-sixth year, 23×17 , 410 guineas; Mary Tudor, sister of Henry VIII., painted on a circular-topped panel, 16×12 , 390 guineas, and Lorenzo de Medici, Duke of Urbino, said to be the lost picture by Raffaele, 1518, 39×32 , 540 guineas. The series of portraits by the two Janets, i.e., Jean and François Clouet, included:—Eleonore d'Autriche, Queen of Francis I., ascribed to Jean, 29×23 , 175 guineas; Equestrian Portrait of François I., ascribed to Jean, $11 \times 8\frac{1}{4}$, 870 guineas; a similar one of Henri II., ascribed to the same, $10\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{3}{4}$, 840 guineas; a similar one of Charles IX., by François, $11 \times 8\frac{1}{4}$, 280 guineas; Claude de Clermont, Sieur de Dampitiere, ascribed to Clouet, $7\frac{1}{4} \times 5\frac{3}{4}$, 105 guineas; a Gentleman, unknown, ascribed to François, $6\frac{3}{8} \times 5\frac{1}{4}$, 430 guineas, and a similar portrait, also ascribed to the same, $6\frac{3}{4} \times 5\frac{1}{4}$, 190 guineas—these three are from Strawberry Hill, the last two are respectively lots 20 and 53 in the sale; and a Family Portrait Group of Catherine de Medicis and four of her children, Charles IX., the Duc d'Anjou, afterwards Henri III., the Duc d'Alençon, and the Princess Margaret, afterwards Queen of Navarre, painted in 1561, ascribed to "Janet," 80×55 , 270 guineas. PORTRAITS AND OTHER PICTURES (July 4th): Sir Philip Sidney, in richly embroidered dress and cloak, and lace ruff, whole length, 79×45 , 135 guineas; J. H.

PORTRAIT OF CHARLES IX. OF FRANCE, ON LIMOGES ENAMEL.

Magniac sale (p. 202).

These interesting enamels, i.e., the plaque with the portrait of Charles IX., and that with his queen, Elizabeth of Austria, were, according to M. de la Borde, taken from original pictures by François Clouet; they were painted towards the close of Limousin's long career, and are unusually carefully and well-finished specimens of his period of decline. M. de la Borde cites two similar oval enamels, also signed and dated in the same year, in the collection of M. de Janzé, of Paris, one of which (the queen) is exactly the same as the Magniac specimen, but the king is apparently from another picture. (See also "Notice des Emaux": Collection Janzé.)

Fragonard, Mademoiselle Guimard, the celebrated French dancer, 17×14 , 255 guineas, and Portrait of a lady, child sleeping in a cradle, signed, 17×14 , 205 guineas; F. Boucher, The Muse Erato, reclining, with Cupid, formerly owned by Madame de Pompadour, 39×52 , 820 guineas; Nicholas Bel, Two Children of Louis XV., one in richly embroidered orange dress, and the other in embroidered lace dress, from the Petit Trianon, 30×32 , 1,010 guineas; Coello, Donna Maria, Infanta of Spain, in embroidered white satin dress, with crimson sleeves and lace ruff, 43×30 , 545 guineas; H. Schopfer, View in Rome, with numerous figures in the costume of the beginning of the sixteenth century, representing the story of Virginia and Appius Claudius, 1535, 36×65 , 245 guineas; J. F. Herring, Sen., Market Day at St. Albans, 1858, 265 guineas. Miniatures in Water-colours: Henry VIII., by Holbein, on vellum, from Strawberry Hill, $2\frac{1}{8} \times 1\frac{7}{8}$, 210 guineas; Catherine of Arragon, Queen of Henry VIII., by the same, and of the same size, 165 guineas; Darnley, Earl of Lennox, by R. Hilliard, 1560, $1\frac{1}{2} \times 1\frac{1}{4}$, 130 guineas; Lady Hunsdon, by Isaac Oliver, from Strawberry Hill, $2\frac{1}{8} \times 1\frac{3}{4}$, 275 guineas. METAL WORK, LIMOGES ENAMELS, CARVINGS, etc., (July 5th): A tazza in Limoges grisaille enamel, by P. Reymond, 1555, $6\frac{1}{2}$ inches high, 155 guineas; a coffer, by an artist of the Penicaud School, early sixteenth century, composed of thirteen plaques in grisaille, with subjects from the Old Testament, $6\frac{3}{4}$ long, $5\frac{1}{4}$ high, 450 guineas; a casket, by the same hand as preceding, composed of fourteen plaques, 6 inches long, $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches high, 265 guineas ; a pair of Candlesticks, by Jean Courtois, circa 1570, $6\frac{1}{2}$ inches high, of the low or short Italian type, one of these splendid candlesticks was acquired at the Strawberry Hill sale, and the other purchased afterwards at Mr. Vernon's sale in Piccadilly, 1,250 guineas—see full-page illustration ; a large oval dish of Limoges enamel, in brilliant colours, by Martial Courtois, 1580, the centre is a very elaborate and highly finished composition from the Apocalypse, $21\frac{3}{4} \times 15\frac{3}{4}$, 1,150 guineas ; A pair of Portraits : Charles IX. of France and his Queen, Elizabeth of Austria, by Leonard Limousin, 1573, painted on concave plaques, each 12×9 , 3,000 guineas (see full-page illustration of the former) ; and another pair by the same : Cardinal de Guise and his mother, Anne d'Este, Duchess of Guise, circa 1556-7, 18×12 , in frames, 2,900 guineas. An ivory oliphant, or hunting-horn, probably a work of the Byzantine school of the twelfth century, 21 inches long, 220 guineas ; an ivory casket, carved with the legend of St. Eustace, with silver-gilt and enamelled mounts, French or English work of the first half of the fourteenth century, 7 inches long, 3 inches high, formerly in the possession of the ex-royal family of England, 1,400 guineas. GOLDSMITH'S WORK, ENAMELS, etc. (July 6th) : A pair of oval vase-shaped salt-cellars, Limoges enamel, circa 1550, painted in grisaille, heightened with gold on a dark-blue ground, $4\frac{1}{2}$ long, $3\frac{3}{4}$ high, 290 guineas ; a plate of the same, in with jewels, etc., Swiss work, 1470, $9\frac{1}{4} \times 5\frac{1}{2}$, formerly in the treasury of the Cathedral of Basle, and by far the richest and most beautiful specimen of this type of reliquary now extant, 714 guineas; a morse, or brooch for a cope, applied translucent enamel on silver, in setting or framework of gilt bronze, Florentine or Siennese work, circa 1420, 5 inches diameter, 575 guineas; another, Italian work of the first half of the fifteenth century, $4\frac{3}{4}$ inches diameter, 340 guineas,—the last three objects are noticed and illustrated in Shaw's "Decorative Arts." POTTERY, ARMOUR, OBJECTS OF VERTU, etc. (July 12th): A two-handled vase, of Hispano-Moresco lustred earthenware, fifteenth century, 22 inches high, 670 guineas; a richly gilt metal triple powder-flask, in the form of a stag's horn, embossed with Adam and Eve, German work, sixteenth century, $9\frac{1}{2}$ inches long, 200 guineas; an embossed steel breastplate, the work of the Milanese armourer, Paolo de Negroli, circa 1530-40, 400 guineas. The last day's sale of this extraordinary collection included the magical speculum of Dr. Dee, from the Strawberry Hill, Smythe Pigott (1853), and Londesborough collections, 78 guineas.

The art sale season of 1893 suffers severely by comparison with that of the previous year. Nevertheless a number of highly interesting and important pictures came under the hammer within the period indicated. The choice collection of water-colour drawings formed by the late Peter Allen, of Overbrook, Kersal, near Manchester, sold on March 11th (eighty-nine lots), included twenty-five examples of D. Cox, the more important being Taking the Left Road, 16 × 23, 205 guineas; Lugg Meadows, near Hereford, 17 × 27, 170 guineas; and Hardwick Hall, 18 × 24, 315 guineas—all exhibited at the Cox exhibition, Birmingham, 1890; thirteen by P. de Wint, notably: Wet Meadows, 10 × 17, 135 guineas; Hay Harvest, 14 × 21, 265 guineas; Corn Harvest, 16 × 21, 270 guineas; and Saltwood Castle, Kent, 17 × 33, 110 guineas—all exhibited at the Jubilee Exhibition, Manchester, 1887; several examples of Copley Fielding, Glen Falloch, 20 × 29, 200 guineas; Fairlight Downs, looking toward Dungeness, 18 × 24, 270 guineas; and Off the East Coast, 1841, 16 × 24, 310 guineas, also exhibited at Manchester, 1887. The choice collection of water-colour drawings and pictures of the English school, the property of the late Sir William Bowman, LL.D., M.D., F.R.S., of Joldwynds, Dorking; and property from other sources came under the hammer on March 24th and 25th; and included: J. F. Lewis, The Commentator of the Koran, interior of a Royal Tomb, Brussa, Asia Minor, painted for Sir W. Bowman, 1867, and exhibited at the Royal Academy in the following year, 25 × 29, 2,550 guineas. The properties from other sources included: B. W. Leader, A Summer Flood, 35 × 53, 320 guineas; and Whittington Church, 23 × 36, 225 guineas; J. Linnell, Gleaning, 12 × 18, 240 guineas; J. Stark, Sheep Washing, 32 × 42, 550 guineas; T. S. One of the most interesting sales of the year took place on May 6th, and comprised a selection of thirty-six ancient and modern pictures formerly in the collection of the late Right Hon. Lord Dover, at Whitehall, the property of Viscount Clifden.¹ These realized a total of £25,112, and included the following: Sir E. Landseer, "Too Hot :" a breakfast party, exhibited at the British Institute, 1831, 13 × 17, engraved by Finden, Outrim (for the Amulet), and J. C. Webb, 880 guineas; P. Codde, Interior of an apartment, with a burgomaster in a black dress with hat, with lace collar and cuffs, seated, signed "P. C.," and dated 1640, 19 × 25, 500 guineas; P. Wouverman, La Moisson: an open landscape, bounded by hills, four peasants with a horse and dog on a road, signed, 15 × 14, from the Le Brun collection, and twice engraved; a celebrated pair of portraits by Rembrandt, both described by Smith, 37 × 30, the wife of Burgomaster Six, 6,700 guineas, and the Burgomaster Six, 5,500 guineas—both from the collection of a descendant of the Burgomaster Six settled in the north of Holland, the latter picture being the finer of the two, but not so well preserved as the portrait of the wife; G. Bellini, Portrait of a Gentleman, in black dress trimmed with fur, with the seal of the Academy of Venice on the back, 23 × 19, 480 guineas; Antonio Moro, Portrait of Alonzo de Ercilla y Zuniga, 21 × 16, from the collection of the Duc d'Albe, 250 guineas; and three superb portraits of Velasquez: Mariana of Austria, second wife of Philip IV. of Spain, in court mourning, 58 × 47, 4,100 guineas; the Infanta Maria Teresa, wife of Louis XIV. of France, in white lace and tulle dress, with gold necklace, 27 × 20, 1,200 guineas; and Isabel de Bourbon, wife of Philip IV. of Spain, in brown hooped dress, enriched with ornaments, white ruff and cuffs, 48 × 39, 2,500 guineas. It was understood that several of the more important pictures in this sale were bought in: two of the Velasquez portraits were again offered in the sale referred to in the footnote on p. 209, when the Marianna fetched 2,300 guineas, and the Isabel sold for 430 guineas. Neither of the three works by Velasquez is mentioned by Curtis. The same day's sale included a few important pictures from other sources, notably: W. Hogarth, The Price Family, 40 × 62, 300 guineas; Sir J. Reynolds, The Lady Caroline, wife of Sir Uvedale T. Price, painted in November, 1786, engraved by Jones and J. W. Reynolds, and from the Duke of Buckingham's collection, 30 × 25, 3,700 guineas; B. West, Portrait of the Hon. Mrs. Shute Barrington, second wife of the Bishop of Durham, 325 guineas; A. Ostade, The Hurdy Gurdy Player, with an audience of a peasant, seated, and two figures at an open door of an inn, 12½ × 10¼, 550 guineas—this picture was purchased in Paris by the Empress Eugenie, and presented by her to Mr. Stone, her landlord at Chislehurst (it cost £1,300); and T. Gainsborough, Portrait of Mary, wife of Sir Robert Carr, 50 × 31, 1,190 guineas.

The financial disaster which overtook the firm of Baring Brothers, the bankers, resulted in the dispersal of the collections of pictures formed by the partners in the firm—Lord Revelstoke, the Hon. Francis Baring, Mr. J. S. Hodgson, and Mr. H. Bingham Mildmay. The sale which took place on June 3rd comprised the property of the three first mentioned,¹ and included the following among other pictures: J. M. W. Turner, The Falls of the Tees, Yorkshire, a water-colour drawing, engraved by E. Goodall and published in the "England and Wales" series, from the Ball collection, 735 guineas; and the following pictures: E. W. Cooke, Fishing Boats Ashore, 25 × 37, from the Earl of Wharncliffe's collection, 205 guineas; T. Creswick, The Forest Farm, with figures by W. P. Frith, from the Heugh collection, 253 guineas; Jules Breton, A Brittany Shepherdess, 1867, 23 × 17, 400 guineas; Mignard, Portrait of Cardinal Mazarin, 140 guineas; and Bronzino, Portrait of Leonora di Toledo, Duchess of Florence, 34 × 26, 145 guineas—both from the Hamilton Palace collection, and the latter also from the Rogers sale. The foregoing were Mr. Baring's property. Mr. Hodgson's collection included: W. Holman Hunt, The Hireling Shepherd, 1851-61, the small picture, 12 × 18, 395 guineas; G. Mason, The Cast Shoe, 12 × 20, engraved, 650 guineas, and A Girl driving Calves, 12 × 22, 370 guineas; J. C. Hook, "Luff, Boy!" Royal Academy, 1859, engraved, 920 guineas; Sir F. Leighton, The Daphnephoria, Royal Academy, 1876, the engraved picture, 67 × 204, 3,750 guineas, and "Lieder Ohne Worte," Royal Academy, 1861, painted for Mr. Hodgson, 40 × 25, 160 guineas; J. Constable, Hampstead Heath, dated 1830, 26 × 39, from the collection of Captain Constable, and one of this master's finest works, 2,550 guineas; N. Largilliere, Miss Frances Stewart, cousin of Charles II., from the A. Barker collection, 245 guineas. Lord Revelstoke's pictures included two fine works of T. Gainsborough, both of which were at Burlington House in 1890: Mrs. Drummond of Stanmore, three-quarter length, in low cut pearl-grey dress with pearls, powdered hair in ringlets, 49 × 39, 6,700 guineas; and Lady Rodney, wife of the famous admiral, three-quarter length, in low cut blue dress, 49 × 39, 2,300 guineas; Memlinc, Virgin Enthroned, with the Infant Saviour in her arms, under an arcade, angel kneeling in front, landscape with church and other buildings in the background, 25 × 18, from the collections of J. P. Deering, R.A., T. Gandy, and Hanbury Williams, (1888, 750 guineas), 1,100 guineas; and Rubens, Elizabeth Brandt, the artist's first wife, in black dress, from Hamilton Palace, 650 guineas.

On the following Saturday, June 10th, the very choice collection of pictures of the late George Field was sold by order of the executors of the late Barclay Field, of Hill Street, Berkeley Square; forty-six lots realizing £24,558. The following interesting synopsis, from The Westminster Gazette, shows at a glance the fluctuations of the more important pictures in this sale:

From the collection of the late Bishop of Winchester (Samuel Wilberforce, D.D.), came an example of Raffaele, La Belle Jardinière, 48 × 31, 380 guineas.

This picture was formerly in the possession of the late Baronne de Fleury, in whose family it had been for many generations; it differs in many respects from the Louvre picture; it has the stamp of Francis I. in the left-hand corner—no such mark exists on the Louvre picture. The remaining works of the late Vicat Cole, R.A., comprising nearly 600 sketches and finished studies in oil and water-colour, principally views in Surrey, England, Wales and Scotland, and on the Thames, came under the hammer on June 16th, 17th and 19th.

The great sale of the season, June 24th, comprised the highly important collection of pictures of Mr. H. Bingham Mildmay, of 46, Berkeley Square, and Flete, Devon. It included ninety pictures, to nearly every one of which is attached a long and interesting pedigree. All the pictures are in the highest possible state of perfect preservation, and several have never before been offered for sale at auction. A great many were at one time in the renowned collection of Baron Verstolk van Soelen, which was dispersed in 1846; others were from the Hamilton Palace collection. The importance of the majority is further attested by the fact that a great many of them are described either in Smith's "Catalogue Raisonné" or in Dr. Waagen's "Art Treasures in Great Britain." The total amounted to £44,021. The more important items are as follows:—L. Backhuysen, View on the Dutch Coast, with fishing boats on the left, and a pier, a fresh breeze prevails, 22 × 30, 365 guineas; and a Coast Scene, with men-of-war under full sail, from the Saltmarshe collection, 150 guineas; N. Berghem, View of a Mountainous Country, with a broad road and a pool of water in front, with animals, from the collection of Randon de Boissett, 1777, Le Boeuf, 1782, Sir C. Bagot, 1836, and Baron Verstolk van Soelen, 400 guineas; and Milking-Time, female milking a white cow, signed, 13 × 16, from Sir W. W. Knighton's collection, 280 guineas; J. and A. Both, Abraham with Agar and Ishmael, imported by Mr. Smith, from the C. H. Wade, 1827, Major Dunn, 1828, H. J. Munro and Rev. J. Lucy collections, 1,090 guineas; J. Both, The Muleteer, a grand Italian landscape, from the Boursault and Saltmarshe collections, 370 guineas; A. Bronzino, Leonardo di Toledo, wife of Cosmo di Medici, in a rich dress, with pearl necklace, her son at her side, half length, 48 × 39, from Hamilton Palace, 780 guineas; T. Gainsborough, Portrait of Lord Mulgrave, whole length, in naval uniform, 91 × 60, 570 guineas; F. Guardi, The Dogana and Church of St. Maria Della Salute, with gondolas and figures, 19 × 26, 575 guineas; Guercino, Christ and the Woman of Samaria, landscape background, from the collection of the Duke of Lucca, Sir Simon Clarke, and Lord Northwick (1859, 505 guineas); 630 guineas; J. Van der Heyden, View in a City, with a large, ancient and picturesque brick building on the right, numerous figures by A. Van de Velde, 16 × 23, from the collection of Mdlle. Hoffman, Haarlem, 1,100 guineas;

M. Hobbema, View of a Lock, with its quays and adjacent buildings on the Haarlem Sluice at Amsterdam, from the collections of Van Alphen, 1810, T. G. Campbell, 1831 (£213), Nieuwenhuys, 1833, and Van Soelen, 2,200 guineas; W. Hogarth, Portrait of the Artist's Wife, from the Willett, Adye (£351) and Heugh collections, 1,160 guineas; Holbein, Queen Catherine Parr, in a rich crimson dress embroidered with gold, from Hamilton Palace, £200; and Portrait of Erasmus, in black cap and dress lined with fur, 20 × 15, 175 guineas; M. Hondecoeter, La Famille, signed, 39 × 46, 570 guineas; Honthorst, Portrait of the Princess Mary Stuart, in yellow silk dress, signed, and dated 1639, and Portrait of William II. of Nassau, when a boy, in pink and silver dress, the pair 440 guineas—both these are from Hamilton Palace; P. De Hooghe, Interior of a Room, with a window at the back, near which a woman in a dark jacket and blue skirt is seated cutting bread and butter for a boy who stands by her side, 26 × 21, 2,800 guineas; and an Interior of an Apartment, with lady playing on a spinette, large open window showing a suite of two other rooms, 38 × 43, described by Smith in his Supplement, p. 574, as the work of Emanuel de Witte, 700 guineas; C. Janssens, Portrait of James I., from Hamilton Palace, 150 guineas; J. Lingelbach, Scene before a Farm Building, with group of three peasants and three horses near a trough, signed, 14 × 16, 200 guineas; N. Maas, Interior, with a girl seated, making lace, from the Bredel collection, 1,600 guineas; D. Mytens, Portrait of William, Second Duke of Hamilton, 275 guineas; J. Van Ostade, The Cabaret, party of peasants outside an inn door, signed, and dated 1646, engraved by Gaujean, from the San Donato and Secretan collections, 1,450 guineas; and a Woody Landscape, from the Saltmarshe collection, 380 guineas; Palma Vecchio, Portrait of Andrea Palladio, the architect, from the collections of Lord Radstock, Nieuwenhuys (1833), and Constable Maxwell, 180 guineas; P. Perugino, A Saint, her hands clasped in prayer, from Hamilton Palace, 220 guineas; Rembrandt, Portrait of a Young Lady, styled the artist's wife, from the Redleaf collection, 2,540 guineas; Sir J. Reynolds, Portrait of Charles Watson Wentworth, second Marquis of Rockingham, K.G., and in his robes and collar of the Garter, engraved in Lodge's "Portraits," and from the collection of the Earl of Hardwick at Wimpole, 660 guineas; J. Ruysdael, View on the Shore of Scheveningen, signed, 21 x 26, engraved by Le Bas in No. 117 in the Choiseul Gallery, from the collections of the Duc de Choiseul, Prince de Conti, Marquis of Marigny, and Van Soelen, 2,900 guineas; and the Companion, View on the Coast with the town of Mayden, engraved by Le Bas, No. 118 in the Choiseul Gallery, 1,700 guineas; S. Ruysdael, River Scene, from the Levy collection, 1876, 870 guineas; J. Steen, a Candlelight Scene, five persons around a table, and seven persons on the opposite side of the apartment, 16 x 21, 310 guineas; Tintoretto, Portrait of a Venetian Admiral, from Hamilton Palace, 860 guineas; J. Van de Capelle, Calm Sea, with the Royal yacht at anchor on the right, several fishing and other boats, 23 × 33, 950 guineas; Aart Van der Neer, View on a Frozen River, with numerous figures skating and playing golf, signed, 17 × 20, 720 guineas; A. Van de Velde, The Bagpiper, from the collection of T. Emmerson, 500 guineas; W. Van de Velde, View on the Dutch Coast during a Calm, from the Bredel collection, 660 guineas; and a Calm, with two fishing-boats at anchor in shallow water, 13 × 15, 610 guineas; J. Van Stry, Sunny River Scene, with peasants and animals, from the Saltmarshe collection, 235 guineas; A. Watteau, Le Bal Champêtre, 36 × 49, from the Orleans Gallery, engraved by J. Couché, 3,350 guineas; J. Wynants, Highwayman attacking Travellers, with figures and horses by Wouverman, from the collection of Lord C. Townshend, 1835 (185 guineas), 410 guineas; and a Boy Angling, from the Bredel collection, 1,280 guineas; P. Wouverman, a Battle, exhibiting a desperate rencontre of cavalry, and a conflict between bodies of infantry, 21 × 31, 1,290 guineas; and Zuccherò, Queen Elizabeth, three-quarter length, life size, 50 × 40, 110 guineas.

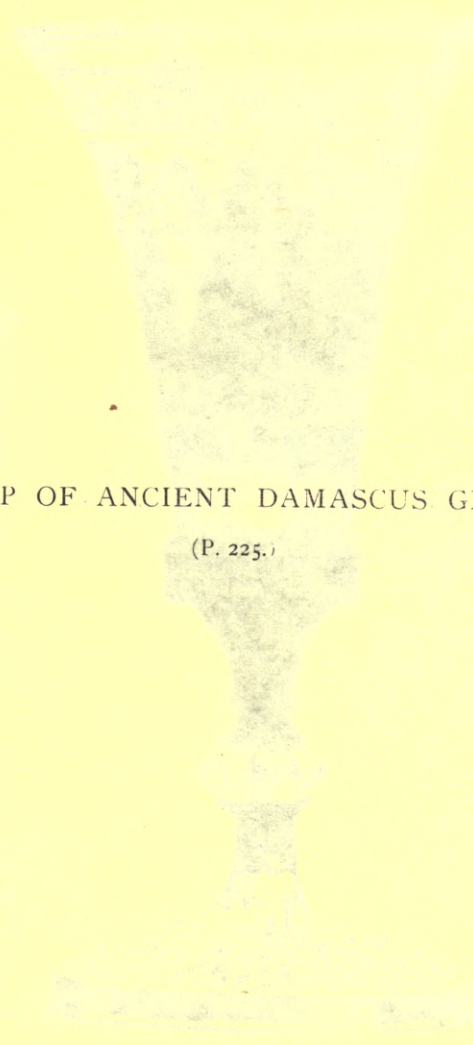

The last sale of the year, July 22nd, comprised property from several sources. The ancient and modern pictures from the collection of the late Right Hon. Arthur George, Earl of Onslow (who died in 1870) included: P. De La Roche, Napoleon Crossing the Alps, 110 × 85, painted for the Earl of Onslow in 1848, engraved by François, 750 guineas : J. Ruysdael, a Waterfall, lofty hill partially covered with verdure and crowned with a cluster of trees, and shepherd driving a flock of sheep, 39 × 33, from the collection of Baron Lockhorst, 1826, 1,210 guineas ; and a View in Guelder Land, with a river falling in a cascade over rocks, figures, signed, 39 × 55, 1,300 guineas ; J. Both, grand Italian Landscape, with muleteers and peasant in a bullock waggon, signed, 46 × 62, 830 guineas. The pictures collected early in the century by the late Right Hon. George, fifth Earl of Essex (who died in 1839), included Sir A. W. Callcott, Rotterdam, Royal Academy, 1819, 33 × 44, 380 guineas ; W. Collins, The Fish Auction, a view on the south coast of Devonshire, Royal Academy, 1823, 32 × 42, 750 guineas—these two were painted for the Earl of Essex ; W. Hogarth, A Music Party, containing portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Fricke Hogarth, and Millar the bookseller and his wife, and others, 24 × 33, 200 guineas ; Sir E. Landseer, Cat's Paw, 1824, engraved by C. G. Lewis, 29 × 27, 890 guineas ; three works by J. M. W. Turner, The Trout Stream, stream and fisherman in foreground, bridge in right distance, on the left high hills enveloped in clouds, 35 × 47, 4,800 guineas ; Walton Bridge, looking up the Thames, sheep-washing in the foreground, 34 × 37, 4,100 guineas—both exhibited at Burlington House, 1878 ; and The Nore, agitated sea, signed, and dated 1808, Burlington House, 1884, 35 × 48, 4,100 guineas; and Sir D. Wilkie, Interior of a Highland Cottage, a highland warrior returned from battle, Royal Academy, 1825, 23 × 33, 340 guineas. Properties from other sources included:—D. Cox, Collecting the Flocks, signed, and dated 1848, 36 × 54, one of the artist's three largest works, from the Bullock collection, 1,150 guineas; P. Nasmyth, A Woody Landscape, from the collection of John Bentley, 415 guineas; and W. J. Müller, A Frosty Scene, the Gamekeeper, 1837, 65 × 49, 300 guineas.

This season's sales ought not, perhaps, to be passed without a notice, however brief, of the famous collection of armour and arms formed by the well-known connoisseur, the Baron de Cosson, F.S.A., which had been on loan to the South Kensington for the two years preceding its dispersal on May 2nd and 3rd. There were in all 240 lots, which realized a total of £8,458 10s.,—a cap-à-pie suit of fluted armour, of the Maximilian epoch, in superb condition, one of the finest in Europe, complete in every respect and absolutely without restoration of any kind, from the armoury of Lord Stafford, 1,680 guineas; a part of a suit of Milanese armour, consisting of the gorget, globose breastplate with its skirt, back plate with its garde-reins, and the two arms complete from the shoulder to the wrist, 755 guineas; and an embossed Milanese casque, of classic form and great artistic beauty, dating from the first half of the sixteenth century, 405 guineas.

place on July 11th, and three following days, and comprised the magnificent collection of etchings, engravings by and after old masters formed by the late Robert Stayner Holford, of Dorchester House, Park Lane. The collection of 696 lots realized £28,119 9s. 6d. We have only space to refer to a few of the principal Rembrandts, viz., Rembrandt Leaning on a Sabre, first state (only four known, the other three are in national collections), £2,000; Christ Healing the Sick, called the Hundred Guilder piece, first state, on Japan paper, £1,750; another impression, second state, £1,290; Our Lord Before Pilate, first state, £1,250; The Three Cottages, first state, £275; A Village with a Square Tower, first state, £210; The Canal, on Japan paper, £260; Ephraim Bonus, first state, with the black ring, only two other impressions exist in this state, £1,950; John Cornelius Silvius, £450; Coppenol, the large plate, first state, £1,350; Portrait of Van Tolling, second state, £530; and The Burgomaster Six, second state, £380.

We may here refer to one of the most interesting articles sold during the year—a rare beaker-shaped cup, of ancient Damascus glass, enamelled above with Arabic inscription in colours, and six allegorical Eastern figures below, on silver gilt stem and foot, decorated with fleur-de-lys and arabesques, and with knop of rock crystal in the centre of stem, 10½ inches high. This article, of which we give an illustration, was sold on July 17th, and realized 1,650 guineas.

Only one important collection of pictures—that of Mr. Adrian Hope—was sold during the year 1894, during which season only twenty works sold for 1,400 guineas and upwards as compared with the fifty-five of 1892. The first noteworthy sale took place on April 28th, and included property from various sources. The more notable of the drawings and paintings in oils collected by Mr. Birket Foster, the eminent artist, and removed from The Hill, Witley, Surrey, were a series of seven pictures illustrating the story of St. George and the Dragon, painted by Sir E. Burne-Jones over thirty years ago for the dining-room of The Hill, Witley, and never exhibited, realized 2,000 guineas—the sizes varying from 42×37 to 42×72 . From another property there came a series of four pictures by L. Alma Tadema, 29×15 , exhibited at the Royal Academy, 1877, and engraved by A. Blanchard, Spring, Summer, Autumn, and Winter, which realized 260 guineas, 230 guineas, 240 guineas, and 460 guineas respectively. Vicat Cole, Oxford, from Iffley, Royal Academy, 1884, 51×84 , 530 guineas; J. C. Hook, "Little to Earn and Many to Keep," Royal Academy, 1879, 760 guineas; J. Linnell, Philip Baptizing the Eunuch, Royal Academy, 1840, 550 guineas. The twenty important modern pictures of the late Richard Hemming, of Grosvenor Place, included:—J. Ferneley, The Quorn Hunt, 1837, 200 guineas; Ary Scheffer, Dante and Beatrice, 1856, 68×37 , the celebrated picture, engraved, the earlier of the two on the same subject, and for which Messrs. Agnew paid £2,000 before it was finished; Sir E. Landseer, Chevy, the celebrated work, 3,750 guineas; W. Mulready, The Barber's Shop, Royal Academy, 1811, from the collection of the Earl of Ducie, 240 guineas; J. Phillip, The Water-Carrier of Seville, 1859, 53 × 36, 240 guineas; Sir T. Lawrence, Portrait of Mrs. Whittington, of Thebaston Hall, Suffolk, painted about 1785, 83 × 53, £750; T. Gainsborough, View near King's Bromley, on Trent, Staffordshire, with cows, and four figures with a dog in a boat, 46 × 65, painted for the family of John Newton Lane, and from the collection of W. Delafield, 1870 (750 guineas), 360 guineas; W. Collins, The Dead Robin, 1872, 36 × 31, from the collection of T. C. Higgins, for whom it was painted, 460 guineas; and J. Constable, A Scene on the River Stour:¹ the river runs across the foreground, with cottages and thatched boathouse on the opposite bank, cows watering on the left, a barge with a white horse in it is on the right. From this it was afterwards called "Constable's White Horse," signed, "J. Constable, A.R.A., London, 1819," 51 × 73, exhibited at the Royal Academy in 1819, in which year the artist was made an Associate, and purchased from the Academy by the artist's friend, Archdeacon Fisher, of Salisbury; exhibited on loan at the British Institute, 1825, and at Lille, 1825, and awarded a gold medal; from the collection of B. Archer Burton, 1855 (600 guineas), 6,200 guineas.

The pictures of the late Arthur Anderson, of Wimpole Street, sold on May 19th, included G. H. Boughton, Afternoon in Minden, Holland, purchased from the artist, Royal Academy, 1882, 285 guineas; B. W. Leader, An Evening in the Surrey Wolds, 30 × 48, 300 guineas; P. H. Calderon, Andromeda, purchased from the artist, Royal Academy, 1885, 280 guineas; E. Long, An Assyrian Captive, Royal Academy, 1880, 440 guineas (this picture is said to have cost 1,500 guineas); L. Fildes, An Alfresco Toilette, painted for the owner, Royal Academy, 1889, 1,300 guineas; L. Alma Tadema, Water Pets, Royal Academy, 1874, 620 guineas; D. G. Rossetti, Venus Verticordia, 32 × 27, 500 guineas; P. Joanowitz, A Sword and Dagger Fight, 41 × 61, 750 guineas; and The Winning Card, 38 × 55, 370 guineas; L. C. Müller, Almee's Admirers, 1882, 30 × 50, 610 guineas; G. Chierici, La Polenta, 49 × 63, 255 guineas; and L. Deutsch, The Guard, 51 × 32, 310 guineas.

An extraordinary amount of interest was taken in the sale of pictures by George Romney, also of a large number of sketch-books, autograph correspondence, etc., on May 24th and 25th, the property of the late Miss Romney, of White-stock Hall, Ulverston. The books and autographs included the following items:—Romney's receipt and memorandum books, with names of the portraits and prices paid, from 1779 to 1796, £23 2s. Nearly fifty of Romney's sketch-books were also sold in about twenty lots, the highest price paid for any single book being £15 4s., whilst each of the other lots realized prices which can only be regarded as remarkable, considering the extremely "sketchy" nature of the contents. As regards the portraits engraved after Romney, it can only be said that in spite of the generally poor condition which the majority of them were in, the prices ruled uniformly high. Mrs. Jordan as the Romp, by Bartolozzi, proof before any letters, brought 28 guineas. The framed prints included: Emma, Lady Hamilton, as Nature, by H. Meyer, printed in colours, £100; The Right Hon. Edmund Burke, by Jones, first state, 41 guineas; Mrs. Ann Warren, by C. Hodges, 110 guineas; another copy of the same, 94 guineas; Mrs. Carwardine and Child, by J. R. Smith, first state, 90 guineas; Mrs. Stables and her Daughters, by the same, second state, 125 guineas; Lady Isabella Hamilton, by J. Walker, first state, 112 guineas; Miss Frances Woodley, by the same, first state, 118 guineas; Henrietta, Countess of Warwick, by the same, 211 guineas. The second day's sale included the following:—Portrait of the artist, painted in the year 1795, 210 guineas; another portrait of the artist, 50 × 40, painted at Eartham in the autumn of 1782, when he was forty-eight years old, and engraved by T. Wright, 420 guineas—this striking portrait was purchased by Mr. Agnew, for the National Gallery; Mrs. Tickell (Miss Linley) 24 × 20, 1,150 guineas; Head of Miranda, 280 guineas; Titania, Puck, and the Changeling, engraved in 1810 by Scriven, and from the artist's sale in 1807, 205 guineas; the Rev. John Romney, the painter's only son, painted in the year 1794, in two sittings occupying three hours, 250 guineas; Mrs. Crouch, oval, 75 guineas; Mrs. Inchbald, the authoress, seated, in white dress and cap, 30 × 25, 950 guineas; James Thomas Pain, with Pomeranian dog, signed, and dated 1776, 800 guineas; Mrs. Billington as St. Cecilia, painted in 1787, 900 guineas; Lady Hamilton as a Bacchante, leading a goat, 50 × 40, painted probably in 1792, a replica of the one which was sent to Sir William Hamilton at Naples, and which is believed to have been lost at sea, 300 guineas; Lady Hamilton as a Bacchante, dancing on a heath, 1791, 60 × 48, 600 guineas. The result of the two days' sale was £9,745.

A few interesting pictures from the collection of the late John Gibbons, of Hanover Terrace, Regent's Park (who died in 1851), and from other sources, were sold on May 26th, the more notable being :—Sir A. W. Callcott, The Shrimper, 38 × 55 850 guineas; W. Collins, Returning from the Haunts of the Sea Fowl, 18 × 15, painted for the Rev. E. Coleridge of Eton, 1833, 310 guineas; J. Constable, Yarmouth Jetty, signed and dated, 1820, 12 × 20, 490 guineas; T. Creswick, A Squally Day, Coast Scene, with pier in the distance, figures and animals by R. Ansdell, 41 × 59, 350 guineas; B. Denner, Head of an old Woman, originally in the possession of Charles VI., 345 guineas; T. Gainsborough, The Market Cart, waggon drawn by two horses, and in it three women and two children, a man leaning over the side helps a girl (the painter's daughter) to climb up, 47 × 58, said to have belonged to George IV., 4,500 guineas; and A Girl with pigs, 39 × 48, engraved by Earlom, from the collection of Sir J. Reynolds, who purchased it from the Royal Academy, and afterwards in the collection of M. de Calonne, 800 guineas; J. Linnell, Barking Trees, a clearing in a forest, number of figures in the foreground, 1817, 30 × 41, 460 guineas; and The Mill, a view over wild heathland, with windmill in the foreground, Royal Academy, 1847, 14 × 19, painted for Mr. Gibbons, and sometimes known as "The Gateshead Windmill," 530 guineas; G. Morland, A Farmyard, signed and dated 1791, 27 × 35, 440 guineas; P. Nasmyth, View in a Valley, with old cottages at the edge of a wood, 14 × 21, 390 guineas; Sir J. Reynolds, The Duchess of Gloucester and child, 50 × 39, arched top, 300 guineas; J. M. W. Turner, A Sea Piece, with fishing boats lowering sail in a squall, 17 × 23, painted for the "inimitable Jack Banister," the Comedian, bought from his family, 1,200 guineas; T. Webster, The Slide, 29 × 60, Royal Academy, 1849, engraved by R. Graves, 520 guineas; R.

Wilson, Sion House, 40 × 53, 380 guineas ; Sir D. Wilkie, Sheep-washing, 35 × 53, from the Baring collection, 1848 (660 guineas), the celebrated picture engraved by Finden, 710 guineas ; S. de Vlieger, Scheveningen Beach, with stranded boats, signed and dated 1633, 26 × 41, 380 guineas ; J. T. Gainsborough, Edward Judge Willes in his robes, engraved by J. Heath, 1792, 50 × 40, 360 guineas.

The collection of pictures, chiefly by the Old Masters, formed by the late Sir C. L. Eastlake, P.R.A., and sold June 2nd (total £9,040), included Andrea Cordelle Agi, The Marriage of St. Catherine, 1504, from Stowe, 240 guineas ; Giovanni Bellini, Madonna and the Infant Saviour in the act of blessing the donor, 28 × 48, formerly an altarpiece of the property of the Pesaro family, 510 guineas ; and a similar subject, the child seated on a parapet, and castle on rocks in the background, 30 × 23, 410 guineas ; Gentile Bellini, an Altarpiece, with the Madonna enthroned, with a canopy and gorgeous drapery, on her knee the Child holding an apple, signed, 48 × 32, arched top, 650 guineas ; Beltraffio, Portrait of a man, in profile, black dress and cap, from the Frizzoni collection at Bellaggio, 22 × 18, 360 guineas ; Bonifazio, Madonna and Infant Saviour in a landscape, with St. Catherine offering fruit, from the Northwicke collection, 39 × 59, 450 guineas ; A. Borgognone, Madonna and Child, the Façade of the Certosa di Pavia in the course of building in the background, 21 × 14, 420 guineas ; S. Botticelli, Madonna, with the Infant Saviour in her arms, holding a pomegranate, and the infant St. John on the right, 23×17 , 720 guineas ; D. Ghirlandaio, Madonna with the Infant Saviour, her left hand holds a veil which crosses the Child, river scene and buildings in the background, 34×22 , 1,170 guineas ; Filippo Lippi, St. Catherine with wheel, study from the picture of the Holy Family in the Uffizi Gallery, 16×12 , 450 guineas ; B. Montagna, Madonna and Child, 25×19 , 200 guineas ; and Vandyck, Rinaldo and Arnida, with river nymph and cupids, in grisaille, 22×16 , 400 guineas—the pendant picture, from Sir Robert Peel's collection, is now in the National Gallery. Pictures from other sources sold on the same day included Rembrandt, A Girl in a rich brown dress and white chemise, seated, with her hands crossed, signed, 31×26 , 670 guineas ; Nattier, Portrait of a lady (? Princess Victoire) of the Court of Louis XV. in gauze dress, pearls and gems, 21×17 , 500 guineas ; Pesellino, Madonna, in rich dress and blue mantle, holding the Infant Saviour, 25×18 , 430 guineas ; and Francesco Francia, St. Roch, the patron saint of prisoners and the sick, full length, 83×58 , 950 guineas. The more important of the collection of ancient and modern pictures of the late Alexander Dennistoun, removed from Golfhill, sold on June 9th, and property from other sources, were :—J. Linnell, The Timber Waggon, 1856, 35×47 , 620 guineas ; G. Morland, African Hospitality, 33×47 , engraved by J. R. Smith, 280 guineas ; J. and A. Both, Landscape, from the Bredel collection, 750 guineas; and Soldiers conducting prisoners, a grand landscape view in Italy, described by Smith (No 94), 37×62 , 300 guineas; J. Ghirlandaio, Virgin and Child, small three-quarter length, landscape scene through opening behind, from the collection of the late G. B. E. Hodges, 20×22 , 340 guineas. On Saturday June 16th, several properties were sold. The late Sir Hugh Hume Campbell's collection included:—M. de Hondecoeter, Cockatoo, Green Parrot, and other birds, in a garden, 26×32 , 420 guineas; P. de Hooghe, Golf Players, 24×17 , 660 guineas; G. Metsu, a lady in a grey bodice, trimmed with swan's down, seated before a window, $8\frac{1}{4} \times 7$, 335 guineas; J. Ruysdael, A Forest Scene, man and woman with some sheep in the distance, signed, 40×51 , 1,250 guineas; J. Vandyck, portrait of Don Livio Odescalchi, nephew of Pope Innocent XI., in black dress, from the collections of the Earl of Ashburham and Lord C. Townshend, 560 guineas. The pictures of the late Mr. Onley Savill-Onley, of Stister Hall, Essex, included:—J. Hoppner, Mrs. Jordan as Rosalind, 35×27 , engraved by J. Jones, and said to have been suppressed, 1,100 guineas; G. Morland, Interior of an Ale-house kitchen, with five figures, signed and dated 1795, 29×24 , 360 guineas; J. Stark, View on the river Yare, at Thorpe, 24×39 , 495 guineas;

and a Woody Landscape, with a peasant and four cows going to the water, 16 × 21, 380 guineas; and G. Terburg, Drinking the King's Health, armed cavalier, bareheaded, with long hair, seated near a table, in the act of emptying a tall glass, other figures, signed and dated 1658, 37 × 32, 1,060 guineas. The late Captain C. W. Selwyn's pictures included J. Crome, Senr., A Yarmouth Water Frolic, with numerous boats and figures, 42 × 68, from the collection of Dr. Turton, Bishop of Ely, 2,600 guineas; G. Romney, Portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Browne, a pair, 30 × 25, 510 guineas; J. Stark, a Forest Scene, with timber waggon, horses and peasant, 350 guineas; and J. Hoppner, Henrietta Elizabeth Frederica, wife of Sir W. Langham, whole length, 90 × 56, 400 guineas.

The great sale of the season took place on June 30th, when the renowned collection of Old Masters formed by the late Mr. Adrian Hope (who died in 1863), was dispersed. Mr. Hope was one of the first picture collectors to recognize the high position which the best works of Dutch and Flemish masters would in the course of time take as articles of commerce, but it is probable that no one would have been more surprised than he at the results of the dispersal of his collection. He possessed not only uncommon taste and judgment, but he was one of the few who availed themselves of advantages which can never again occur. He secured examples from all the best collections dispersed before 1860; in other words, he ceased collecting when the works of his favourite artists became fashionable and consequently expensive. Unfortunately we have no means of striking a complete comparison between the prices paid as against those received for the seventy odd pictures constituting the collection, but we have data which justify us in expressing the opinion that the entire body of pictures cost well under £10,000—and it realized a total of £49,884 for 75 lots.

The principal lots were as follows :—P. T. Van Brussel, Vase of Flowers on a marble slab, signed, and dated 1787, 20 × 15, 340 guineas ; N. Berghem, An Italian Scene, 1657, 25 × 31, 260 guineas ; G. Berkheyden, View in Haarlem, with the Great Church, and numerous figures, 1674, 20 × 26, 450 guineas ; J. Both, Hilly Landscape, with a broken and varied foreground enriched with clusters of trees, signed, Smith, No. 31, 580 guineas ; A. Caneletto, The Grand Canal, Venice, View from the Church of St. Maria Della Salute, numerous gondolas, shipping, etc., 28 × 44, 890 guineas ; G. Coques, Portraits of a Gentleman, with his wife and child, from the Brind collection, Smith No. 12, 490 guineas ; A. Cuyp, A Grand Landscape, from the Emmerson and Saltmarshe collections, Smith, "Supplement," No. 48, 2,000 guineas ; and Two Travellers Halting at an Inn, from the R. Winstanley collection, Smith, No. 270, 530 guineas ; G. Dow, The Flute Player, from the Saltmarshe collection, Smith, No. 73, 3,500 guineas ; J. B. Greuze, A Young Girl, with a blue ribbon in her hair, dressed in blue and white, from the Pierpoint and G. T. Braine collections, Smith, No. 69 ; B.

Netscher, The Cherry Seller, 13×11 , 260 guineas; A. Ostade, Interior, with four figures, woman in the foreground holding a music book, $9\frac{1}{2} \times 7\frac{1}{2}$, 235 guineas, and Interior of an Alehouse, two peasants seated at a table near a staircase, and other figures, $11 \times 8\frac{3}{4}$, 260 guineas; A. P. Stevaerts, A Lady in black silk dress, lace cap, collar and cuffs, pearl necklace and bracelets, 15×12 , 250 guineas; P. Potter, Four Oxen in a Meadow, 1653, Smith, No. 5, 900 guineas; Rembrandt, Portrait of Jonckur Petronella Buys, afterwards married to Burgomaster Cardon, in black silk dress, with a cluster of gold chains around her neck, 1635, Smith, No. 497, 1,300 guineas, and a Portrait of Nicholas Ruts, in black gown and cap, from the collection of William II. of Holland

PORTRAIT OF NICHOLAS RUTS.

From the collection of the late William II., King of Holland (sold August, 1850, £283); purchased by the Queen of Holland from the Rooms Winkel Family of the Hague; described in Nieuwenhuys catalogue as "Portrait d'un Rabin"; Adrian Hope sale (p. 238).

(1850, £283), purchased by the Queen of Holland from the Rooms Winkel family of the Hague, 4,700 guineas ; P. P. Rubens, a Wild Boar Hunt, in a woody landscape, a party of seven huntsmen on foot, and four on horseback, from the King of Holland's collection, Smith (Part 2, 276), 1,660 guineas ; and An Illustration to Euripides' tragedy of "Alcestis," a composition of fourteen figures, 17 × 26, probably a design for a tapestry, 340 guineas ; J. Ruysdael, a Waterfall, a splendid landscape, painted with admirable breadth and with singular delicacy, from the W. Theobald collection, 1851 (355 guineas), Smith, No. 114, 1,600 guineas ; and An Old Fort, from the Braine collection, Smith's Supplement, No. 10, 610 guineas ; J. Steen, Scene on the Terrace of a Chateau, with a man in puce jacket and blue and white striped shirt, lady in orange silk petticoat, signed, 17 × 14, 780 guineas ; D. Teniers, "Le Docteur Alchymiste," engraved by Tardieu, Smith, No. 78, 260 guineas ; G. Terburg, Portrait of a gentleman in black dress, with white collar and sleeves, holding a black hat in his right hand, small whole length, 24 × 17, 400 guineas ; W. Van de Velde, A Sea View, under the effect of a light breeze, from the Casimir Perier and Wyatt (of Oxford) collections, Smith, No. 154, 300 guineas ; J. Weenix, The Garden of a Chateau, dead hare suspended from the branch of a tree, under which are some flowers, a dead white cock, etc., 47 × 40, 670 guineas ; P. Wouverman, Les Quartiers des Vivandiers, view of an encampment on an extensive plain, Smith,

No. 178, 700 guineas, and J. Wynants, The Weary Traveller, 1658, Smith, No. 12, 205 guineas.

The pictures from the celebrated Fountaine collection, chiefly formed by Sir Andrew Fountaine in the early part of the last century, were sold on July 7th, and included W. Etty, The Choice of Paris, 72×108 , painted in 1825 for the Earl of Darnley, engraved by Wass, 500 guineas; P. P. Rubens, The Prodigal Son, from the W. Wilkins collection, engraved by Bolswert, Smith, No. 804, 800 guineas; J. Ruysdael, The Lake of Haarlem, 21×36 , from the Duval collection at Geneva, 940 guineas; and a View on the Brill River (or perhaps one of the branches of the Zuyder Zee) under the appearance of strong breeze and impending rain, 39×57 , Smith, No. 44, 1,300 guineas; A. Watteau, A Masquerade Scene, group of five small three-quarter length figures in masquerade dress, engraved, $9\frac{1}{4} \times 7\frac{1}{4}$, 400 guineas; and Guido, Il Diamante,¹ Venus stealing Cupid's Bow,

D. TENIERS, "LE DOCTEUR ALCHEMISTE."

Signed; engraved by Tardieu under the above title; Smith's Catalogue Raisonné, Vol. III., No. 78; Adrian Hope sale (p. 239).

ROMNEY—SIR JULIAN GOLDSMID'S COLLECTION—MR. ARTHUR SEYMOUR—MR. WILLIAM ANGERSTEIN—LORD LEIGHTON'S SALE.

REGARDED as a whole, the most striking features of the season of 1895 were the exceedingly high prices paid for the best works of the early English masters, and for portraits of beautiful women by French and English artists. In only a very few instances were the pictures which come within these two phases entirely untouched by the restorer—who so often “restores” a work of art until there is little left of it save the canvas. The editor of The Year's Art makes the interesting observation, that of the forty-five pictures which reached or exceeded the sum of 1,400 guineas, no less than thirty-one are by English masters.

Passing over a number of minor sales, the collection of the late Thomas Hakewell, of Harrington Square, February 23rd, included three noteworthy Gainsboroughs, which, if offered a few months later in the season, would, doubtless, have caused some sensation, and possibly have realized considerably higher prices. There is no record of the excellent Portrait of the artist himself in a blue coat having appeared in the auction room since Jonathan Buttall's sale in 1799, when it realized a few pounds; it is an oval, 25 × 19, 360 guineas; a Group of three children and a donkey under a tree, 35 × 27, 580 guineas; and the companion, a Landscape with four children and a donkey, 420 guineas. The former of this pair was purchased by Mr. White, of Westbourne Green, at the Gainsborough Dupont sale for a very trifling amount. Three days in April, 25th to 28th, were occupied in selling a portion of the valuable collection of pictures and water-colour drawings of Mr. James Orrock, R.I., and also a portion of the collection of Sir James Linton, P.R.I. These collections contained a number of charming drawings in excellent states, by J. Varley, G. Chambers, G. Barret, W. Hunt, David Cox, De Wint, S. Prout, and T. Collier, which, however, for most part, realized comparatively small prices. The pictures were not particularly notable, and not a few of them were understood to be bought in. Frans Hals, Laughing Girl, 240 guineas; J. Phillip, Holy Water, 1857, 220 guineas; J. Linnell, Woodcutters, from the collection of Thomas Webster, R.A., 290 guineas; two works of John Constable, which were once in the possession of the Constable family, Brighton Beach, 310 guineas, and A View near Bergholt, 330 guineas; J. Crome, A View near Whitlingham, 270 guineas; D. Cox, Welsh Pass, with flock of sheep and dog, 300 guineas, and J. M. W. Turner, The Trossachs, painted for Mr. Munro, of Novar, 600 guineas.

During May the famous collections of Caroline, Duchess of Montrose, and Mrs. Lyne Stephens, were dispersed. The Montrose pictures, 114 in number, realized a total of slightly over £14,000. All, or nearly all, the best examples had been offered on July 14th, 1894, and were withdrawn or bought in, much to the disgust and disappointment of a large number of buyers.¹ However, the death of the eccentric Duchess prevented a recurrence, so far as she was concerned, of a similar proceeding, and the pictures were sold for what they were worth. The dealers and buying public generally are invariably suspicious of such proceedings, and the diminished interest in the sale compared to that of the year previously was very marked. Moreover, nearly all the best works have been restored, cleverly in some instances, but not so cleverly as to escape detection. In addition to this, some of the so-called Sir Joshuas and others were obvious copies or repetitions of well-known originals. It is a curious fact that nearly every one of the pictures bought in last year now sold for considerably less than the figures at which the hammer fell on the former occasion. F. R. Lee, The Ferry at Cliveden, 90 × 105, from the collection of the late Sir J. Warrender, of Cliveden, 300 guineas; Lee and T. S. Cooper, A Woody Scene, with cows watering, 1853, 360 guineas—in 1894 this was bought in for 330 guineas; T. S. Cooper, Sheep and Goats, previously bought in for 350 guineas, now experienced an advance of 10 guineas; W. Collins, The Disposal of a Favourite Lamb, 1813, receded from 400 guineas to 350 guineas. Mr. Faed's well-known work, The Poor Man's Friend, from the Academy of 1867, which originally cost about 1,500 guineas, was bought in in 1894 for 650 guineas, and now dropped to 590 guineas; Sir Frederick Leighton, Helen on the Walls of Troy, 1865, the engraved work which, like the last mentioned, cost probably 1,500 guineas, declined from 410 guineas to 310 guineas. The great picture of the sale was the Reynolds Portrait of Lady Smyth and her children, a three-quarter length, with hat and feathers, white dress, and black lace mantilla. This work, which was painted in 1787, and has been engraved by Bartolozzi, was purchased at the sale of the collection of T. G. White, grandson and heir of Sir G. H. Smyth, of Benchurch Hall, Essex, in 1878, for 1,250 guineas, it subsequently became the property of the Duchess of Montrose for about 5,000 guineas. It was once a masterpiece, but unfortunately the face of the lady is entirely repainted. It realized 4,800 guineas, probably half the amount it would have fetched had it been untouched, in which condition it would undoubtedly have been one of the very finest pictures ever sold at auction. The picture catalogued as Sir Joshua's Portrait of Lady Anne Fitzpatrick, as Sylvia, in white dress with blue skirt and sash, is a good but obvious copy of the picture which is or was in the possession of Lord Lyveden; it realized 1,550 guineas,—a very good price indeed for a copy. Reynolds's Portrait of Mrs. Pownall as Hebe, bought in in 1894 at 600 guineas, was knocked down for just half the amount. The second great Portrait of the sale was Gainsborough's three-quarter length of Madame le Brun, in white dress, trimmed with lace; it was exhibited at the Royal Academy in 1780, was bought in in 1894 for 3,100 guineas, and now fetched 2,150 guineas.

A large number of the Lyne Stephens pictures, sold May 11th, particularly of the less famous examples, more than quadrupled in value during thirty or forty years. The collection was for the most part formed by the late S. Lyne Stephens (who died in 1861), of Lynford Hall, J.P., and D.L.; on the death of Mrs. Lyne Stephens, better known to fame as Mademoiselle Duvernay, the actress, the collection was thrown into the market. It is stated that some of the choicer pictures were actually willed to the Trustees of the National Gallery, but Sir William Harcourt's Death Duties Bill so enraged Mrs. Lyne Stephens, that she cancelled this bequest a few months before her death. One of the choicest pictures of the sale, a Troyon, consisted of a group of three sporting dogs and gamekeepers in a wood, 29 × 33, sold for 2,850 guineas; and it is understood to have become the Lyne Stephens property for a very small sum. Of the seven works of which the Spanish school was comprised only two can be regarded as unquestionably original. First, the Velasquez full-length Portrait of a young lady called an Infanta, with blonde crimped hair inclosed behind in a red net. This was in the Duc de Morny sale of May, 1867, when it fetched 51,000 francs, or rather more than £2,000; in twenty-eight years it had advanced to 4,300 guineas. The second was a fine and important work of Murillo, representing Faith presenting the Eucharist, 64 × 96; it was originally painted for a semicircular space on the wall on the epistle nave of the Church of Sta. Maria la Blanca, and forms a companion to the Immaculate Conception now in the Louvre, which was purchased at the sale in 1882 of Marshal Soult for 586,000 francs. The Lyne Stephens picture was brought from Spain by General Faviers, but it was not in his sale in 1837; in the Pourtales sale, March, 1865, it realized 67,500 francs; it was now sold for 2,350 guineas. A very fine old copy of the three-quarter length Portrait of the Velasquez, Philip the Fourth, which realized the price of an original—71,000 francs—in the Salamanca sale of 1867, dropped to 390 guineas; and a frequently repeated bust by the same artist of the Infanta Maria Teresa in black and white dress, realized as much as 770 guineas. The second Murillo in this sale has an exceedingly interesting history. It is a picture of St. Joseph and the Infant Jesus, 42 × 34; it was in the Spanish gallery at the Louvre of King Louis Philippe, at the dispersal of which in 1853 it only realized £440, being in bad condition, having sustained injury from sea-water and ill-usage. This exceedingly popular composition, or one of its numerous repetitions, has been engraved and lithographed a number of times, and now realized 950 guineas.

The principal picture in the Dutch school was a very important work of Cuyp—a Portrait of the Prince of Orange with his sons, prepared to start for the chase—the Prince is elegantly habited in a purple dress, and is mounted on a dappled grey horse, this work measures 44 × 61, and was brought to this country by M. Delahante; at the Sander-son sale in 1848 it fetched 530 guineas, and now realized 2,000 guineas. Karel du Jardin, View in Italy, 19 × 18, described by Smith, 300 guineas; J. Van der Heyden, View in a Dutch town, in front of a Gothic Church, with several pigs admirably introduced, by Adrian Van de Velde, 17 × 21, 650 guineas. Isaac Ostade, Scene in front of an inn door, with a gentleman about to mount a gray horse, signed and dated 1665, possibly from the collection of the Duchesse de Berri, and certainly from that of the Comte de Morny, 19 × 25, Smith's "Supplement," p. 127, 1,660 guineas. An exceedingly beautiful combination of Rubens and Breughel, the Holy Family, surrounded by a garland of flowers, 26 × 20, 555 guineas—its price at the Pommersfelder sale was £1,440: Terburg, A Gentleman paying his addresses to a lady, the engraved picture, 29 × 27, described by Smith, page 131, 1,950 guineas; William Van de Velde, a Calm, with yacht at anchor, 20 × 25, 660 guineas; and a Sea Piece, storm coming up, sloop with numerous figures in the centre, 1663, 13 × 15, 580 guineas; J. Weenix, Gardens of a Palace, 60 × 64, 720 guineas. The French pictures in this sale realized extraordinary prices; the works were for the most part in excellent condition, and fairly authentic. The three Greuzes were not very remarkable, the best being a Portrait of a young girl praying, kneeling by a bed, 26 × 21, 560 guineas; a pair by J. B. Pater, The Swing and The Dance, each realized 770 guineas; Claude, The Artist sitting on the shore drawing, 13 × 19, experienced the fall which seems to have attended nearly all the examples of his work which have come into the market during the past forty years; the picture under notice is engraved in the "Liber Veritatis," and at the Dubois sale in 1840 it realized 700 guineas; it now changed hands for 485 guineas. The prevailing fashion for first-class portraits of beautiful women manifested itself in a number of striking instances at this sale. Madame Vigée le Brun, Portrait on panel of a lady in white muslin dress and claret-coloured jacket, 41 × 32, 2,250 guineas (see full-page plate); Nattier, Portrait of a lady of the court of Louis XV., supposed to be one of his daughters, seated on clouds and holding two doves, 1737, 48 × 38, 3,900 guineas; Two other portraits by Nattier occurred in this sale, one of the Princess de Conty, a daughter of Louis XV., seated on clouds and holding flowers, 48 × 40, 300 guineas; and Portrait of a lady in white dress with blue drapery, dated 1754, 390 guineas; F. H. Drouais, Madame la Comtesse du Barri, with powdered hair, in pink robe trimmed with fur and lace, 22 × 18, respectively in the collections of the Marquis de St. Clou and of the Baron de Beurnonville, 690 guineas. Lancret was represented by a pair illustrative of La Fontaine, the first, Nicaise, 1,300 guineas (see full-page plate); and the second, Les Deux Amis, 1,050 guineas; both were small pictures, 11 × 14. The only example of Watteau to which reference need be made is the celebrated Game d'Amour, well known through the engraving by P. L. Le Bas; this picture is of the most beautiful quality, and works of this master which answer this description occur in the market only at long and irregular intervals; this example now realized 3,350 guineas. The seventy-eight pictures in this sale realized £46,786. The Lyne Stephens collection of objects of art, sold May 9th, and eight following days, realized £134,206.

The third Saturday in May (18th) was taken up with the dispersal of the choice collection of modern pictures and water-colour drawings formed by the late Frederick Craven, of Thornbridge, Bakewell, the cabinet of water-colour drawings and pictures of the late T. S. Kennedy, of Park Hill, Wetherly, Yorkshire, and some excellent pictures, the property of the late Thomas Woolner, R.A., the sculptor. The Craven portion was comprised in sixty-three lots, which brought a total of £21,452. The drawings in this property by Sir Francis Powell, F. W. Topham, G. Cattermole, W. Hunt, and F. Tayler need not detain us, although it may be mentioned that most of them were exhibition pictures, and that they sold exceedingly well. The works of D. Cox included: a drawing of a Welsh Funeral, Bettws-y-Coed, 29 × 40, given as an Art Union prize of the value of £20, now brought the enormous sum of 2,400 guineas; Windsor Great Park, 28 × 38, which in 1867 fetched 177 guineas, now brought 1,350 guineas; Gravel Pits, 22 × 32, 200 guineas; The Vale of Clwyd, 23 × 37, 455 guineas; Bolsover Castle, 22½ × 36½, 470 guineas; Broom Gatherers, Chat Moss, 24 × 34, 470 guineas; and Beeston

Castle, 25×35 , 600 guineas. Turner's drawing of the Land's End, 11×17 , engraved in the "England and Wales" series, realized 830 guineas. The chief of the fine drawings by Ford Madox Brown were Elijah and Widow's Son, 37×24 , 310 guineas, and The Dream of Sardanapalus, 18×22 , 225 guineas. Five drawings also were by Dante G. Rossetti, and the highest price paid for a single example was for "Washing Hands," 1865, 17×14 , which in 1881 sold for 175 guineas, and now advanced to 480 guineas; next to this in value was the Return of Tibullus to Delia, 19×23 , 265 guineas. Sir Edward Burne-Jones was represented by four drawings, by far the most important of which was the magnificent composition "The Hesperides," 47×38 , exhibited at the Guildhall in 1894, 2,560 guineas; a pair of exquisite works, Vespers and Night, each 30×22 , 450 guineas and 430 guineas respectively. Of the pictures, we need only mention the set of four painted by Sir E. Burne-Jones for Mr. Craven, illustrating the story of Pygmalion, respectively The Heart Desires, The Hand Refrains, The Godhead Fires, and The Soul Attains; this set was exhibited at the Grosvenor Gallery in 1879; one, and only one, offer of 3,500 guineas was received for the four. The Kennedy property contained an uncommonly fine series of Turner drawings, eleven in number. The highest price went for the Lake and Town of Zug, 11×18 , formerly in the collection of Mr. Ruskin, from whom Mr. Kennedy obtained it, 1,100 guineas; another example from Mr. Ruskin's collection, Arona, $11\frac{1}{2} \times 16$, 700 guineas, at which price the well-known drawing of Carew Castle, 11×18 , from the Addington and Heugh collections, was also knocked down; the latter is engraved in Turner's "England and Wales;" an interesting little view of Oxford engraved by Goodall in 1841, was made for a Mr. Ryman of Oxford in 1839, Turner received 100 guineas for it, and it was afterwards in the Munro sale, 490 guineas. Mr. Kennedy's twenty drawings and four pictures realized a total of £6,447. The late Thomas Woolner's pictures included:—W. Mulready, Idle Boys, 1815, 1,000 guineas; T. Gainsborough, Portrait of General Wolfe, 520 guineas; and the celebrated picture by J. F. Lewis, The Bezestein Bazaar of El Khan Khalil, Cairo, from the David Price collection, 1,400 guineas.

Two important picture sales were going on simultaneously on the 25th of May, for while Messrs. Christie were selling the collection of the late George Orme, of the Manor House, Sutton, Surrey, and selections from those of Mr. J. M. Keiller, the late Richard Hemming, Messrs. Robinson and Fisher were selling the pictures of the late Viscount Clifden, to the latter of which the limits of this work do not allow us to refer more fully (see ante, p. 209). Mr. Orme's pictures were all modern, and the only two high prices were paid for works by J. C. Hook, Gold of the Sea, from the Bunbury and other collections, 1,000 guineas, and Hearts of Oak 1875, 38×57 , 740 guineas. From another source came—J. C. Hook's The Boat, 350 guineas ; Sir David Wilkie, The Abbotsford Family, a finished sketch of Sir Walter Scott and his family, signed and dated 1817, exhibited at the Royal Academy in the following year, engraved by J. Smith as the frontispiece to the 12th volume of the Waverley Novels, 11 × 14, 600 guineas ; T. Faed, Conquered but not Subdued, 660 guineas ; Sir E. Landseer, Chevy.

“Weel, sir, if the deer got the ball,
Sure's Deeth Chevy will no' leave him—”

Royal Academy, 1868, and widely known through T. Landseer's spirited engraving, 5,700 guineas ; and The Sentinel, portraits of Lion and Dash, the Duke of Beaufort's dogs, 1,850 guineas ; John Phillip, Early Career of Murillo, 1634, from the McConnel sale of 1886, 3,800 guineas. A few highly desirable pictures were sold on June 8th, from the property of the late John Clark, of Curling Hall, N.B., at the head of which came Rosa Bonheur, Going to Market in Brittany, 1854, from the Bullock and Walker sales, 1,440 guineas ; W. Q. Orchardson, Story of a Life, 710 guineas ; David Cox, The Vale of Clwyd, reapers returning home, 1846, 36 × 55, 600 guineas, and Erskine Nicol, The Fisher's Knot, 1863, 530 guineas.

The highly important collection of modern pictures, chiefly of the early English school, formed during the last thirty years by the late Mr. James Price, of Barcombe, Paignton, South Devon, constituted the chief sale of the season (June 15th). The collection itself was far from perfect, the Sir Joshuas were all ugly pictures, three of the Turners had suffered seriously, and the nomenclature of many was more than questionable. In spite of these and other defects, the ninety-one pictures brought a total of over £87,140. The picture of the day, and, indeed, so far as that goes one might add of the season, was the Gainsborough Portrait of Lady Mulgrave, an oval, 29 × 24, in white dress, black mantle, and hair poudré. Waltner has etched this picture, which thirteen years ago realized 1,070 guineas, before, indeed, the boom in Gainsboroughs came into vogue. To what an extent the fashion has changed may be gauged by the fact that the bidding for this portrait now started at 5,000 guineas, and in a few minutes had reached 10,000 guineas. This is the second highest amount ever paid for a Gainsborough at auction, the record price being obtained by the celebrated portrait of the Duchess of Devonshire in the Wynn Ellis sale of 1876, namely 10,100 guineas. This latter picture, which so mysteriously disappeared a few days after its purchase from the Agnew galleries, was nearly double the size of the Lady Mulgrave. It is said that at the private view, Burlington House, 1885, the late Mr. Price was offered and refused 7,000 guineas for this "perfect example of Gainsborough at his best moment, and a perfect portrait of one of the most attractive of women" (see full-page plate). There were nine other works catalogued under Gainsborough's name, but some of these he probably never saw. The Portrait of the second Viscount Mountmorres, in light-green coat, lace ruffles, and bob wig, a bust to left, nearly full face, 2,000 guineas. This and the Lady Mulgrave were by far the best of the Gainsboroughs in regard to quality and perfection. The half-length Portrait of Viscount Hampden, somewhat stiff but otherwise successful, brought only 650 guineas; the three-quarter length Portrait of Lady Clarges, seated at a harp, and in golden-brown dress edged with gold, brought 2,000 guineas, a considerable advance on the 350 guineas at which it was acquired seventeen years ago. Gainsborough's renowned chef-d'œuvre, Repose, 47 × 58, which was presented by the artist to his daughter as a marriage gift, from the Gillott sale, 1,400 guineas. The other works catalogued as by Gainsborough included:—Landscape: evening, herdsman, dog and three cows, clump of trees to the left, hilly distance, 29 × 24, 550 guineas; Portrait of John Palmer, M.P., half-length, in green coat, powdered wig and lace cravat, 29 × 24, 360 guineas; James Wolfe (afterwards General), half-length, oval, in blue uniform with red collar, and embroidered with gold, 29 × 24, 300 guineas; and Mrs. Buchanan McMillan, nearly full face, blue dress, white berthe, hair poudré, large straw hat, 29 × 24, 310 guineas.

The seven works of Sir Joshua Reynolds excited considerably less interest than those of his great contemporary. The principal ones were the half-length Portrait of Lady Melbourne in a white dress, with a blue robe lined with ermine over it, 2,300 guineas; the three-quarter length of the Hon. Mrs.

Seymour Damer, the distinguished amateur sculptor and a frequent exhibitor at the Royal Academy from 1785 to 1818: this lady, who is in a white dress embroidered with gold, over which is a peach-coloured robe lined with pale blue, was a cousin of Horace Walpole, and was one of the "pretty fellows" who adopted, with the Lady Melbourne above mentioned, and the Duchess of Ancaster, the male dominoes at a famous masquerade at the "Pantheon" in 1772. Her portrait, which now realized 2,200 guineas, was painted in the year previously, and is well known through J. R. Smith's engraving. The three-quarter length Portrait of the Countess of Rothes—there were three contemporary Countesses-Dowager of Rothes, each of whom married a second husband—-who married Bennet Langton, brought 1,660 guineas, the face is an unattractive one. One of the many Portraits of Kitty Fischer, three-quarter length, in white dress, dove nestling in her lap, and another on the back of the settee, 35 × 27, 1,300 guineas (see full-page plate). Reynolds's Portrait of himself, formerly in the collection of Sir Thomas Lawrence, P.R.A., engraved by Finlayson, 29 × 24, and sold among his effects after his death, is a satisfactory one, and brought 1,050 guineas. The other portraits attributed to Reynolds were: Mrs. Angelo, wife of the celebrated fencing master of that name, half-length, seated, dark dress, open in front, with rose at breast, 1760, 29 × 24, 600 guineas; and Anthony Chamier, M.P. for Tamworth, one of the Under-secretaries of State, and much assailed by "Junius," 1767, engraved by Ward, three-quarter length, sitting, in puce-coloured coat, holding a book, 49×39 , 450 guineas.

The five Romneys were not of the best quality or of even second-rate importance, but three of them brought good prices, the sketchy Portrait of Emma Hart, Lady Hamilton, a bust, reached 2,030 guineas (see full-page plate); a three-quarter length of Lady Urith Shore, 1,800 guineas; and a half-length of Miss Harriet Shore, 1,860 guineas. The others were:—A Child, in a white dress with a blue sash, one of the Romney family, from whom it was privately purchased, $23\frac{1}{2} \times 18\frac{3}{4}$, 400 guineas; and Mrs. Willett, half-length seated figure, facing to the right, in classical white dress, blue band at the waist, chin resting on the left hand, oval, 27×22 , 700 guineas. The six Turners brought highly satisfactory prices on the whole. The chief example of this master, Helvoetsluys, brought what was then regarded as the high amount of 1,600 guineas at the Bicknell sale of 1863, and now advanced to 6,400 guineas. The Val d'Aosta, which realized 910 guineas at the Munro sale in 1878, now advanced to 4,000 guineas. The luminous and beautiful view of the Thames from the garden of a house at Mortlake, Royal Academy, 1827, 35×47 , 5,200 guineas (see full-page plate),—each of these three pictures was exhibited at Burlington House in 1895. A. APPIANI, PORTRAIT OF NAPOLEON I.
IN CORONATION ROBES.

On the 26th May, 1805, by request from the Senate of the Italian Republic, Napoleon was crowned King of Italy at Milan by the Archbishop of that city, but it was stipulated that the two crowns—of France and Italy—should remain united only on his head. Napoleon, therefore, appointed his stepson, Eugene Beauharnais, his viceroy of the Kingdom of Italy. Three-quarter length, standing and looking sternly to the right; the hair brushed forward on to the forehead. Napoleon wears a green uniform, richly embroidered with gold, and a green cloak lined with white silk, which is also embroidered. Across his breast is a red ribbon bordered with green, and round his waist a white silk scarf, in which is a sword with hilt ornamented with the head of Medusa and an eagle. He wears the chain of the Order of the Golden Eagle, and several other Orders on his breast; his left hand is on a crown which rests on a cushion.

inches, each of which appeared at the Royal Academy of 1846, and again at the Royal Jubilee Exhibition of 1887, and were in the Windus and Gillott collections, were now sold for 5,600 guineas the two. The best of the three Hoppners was a three-quarter length Portrait of Lady Coote, seated on a bank under trees, in a black dress with short sleeves, 1,800 guineas (see full-page plate); a half-length of Lady Gordon in a brownish yellow dress brought 1,090 guineas; and Master Russell, three-quarter length, full-faced portrait of a little boy, in white frock with pale pink sash, 30 × 24, 1,000 guineas (see full-page plate). Sir W. Beechey, a three-quarter length Portrait of Frederica Charlotte Catherine, Duchess of York, eldest daughter of the King of Prussia, married in 1791, Frederick, Duke of York, second son of George III., 1,200 guineas; and a nearly full-length of Lady Barnard, seated in a landscape under a tree, 1,180 guineas. G. Morland, Mutual Confidence, from the Levy sale, 1876, 940 guineas; and The Labourer's Home, 1790, 15 × 12, 320 guineas. The only other pictures in this sale to which we need refer are J. S. Colman, Grand Marine subject, 43 × 54, 2,200 guineas; W. J. Müller, Carnarvon Castle: Sunrise and Mist, 1837, 39 × 59, purchased privately from the Manley Hall collection, 2,300 guineas, purchased for the National Gallery; and Ruins at Smyrna, one of the finest and most perfect works of this master, 12 × 16, 520 guineas; J. F. Rigaud, Portraits of Sir Joshua Reynolds, in red, J. Bacon, the sculptor, in brown, and Sir W.

Chambers, the architect of Somerset House, in green, 610 guineas, which was secured for the National Portrait Gallery; David Cox, View of one of the towers of Haddon Hall, with high trees in front of it, 1850, 24×17 , 600 guineas (see full-page plate); and The Hayfield, farmer on a white horse, with two women by his side, grey sky, $10\frac{1}{2} \times 15\frac{1}{2}$, 400 guineas. W. Hogarth, Portrait of Peg Woffington, oval, $6\frac{1}{2} \times 5\frac{1}{4}$, 600 guineas—this picture was purchased from the artist himself by James, Earl of Charlemont, and was subsequently in the collection of the Earl Granville, from whom it was acquired by the late Mr. Price; Jules Dupré, Landscape, with cattle drinking, signed, $13\frac{1}{2} \times 16\frac{3}{4}$, 590 guineas (see full-page plate); A. Appiani, Portrait of Napoleon I. in coronation robes, three-quarter length, 38×28 , painted at Milan in 1805, 750 guineas (see full-page plate); Mad. Vigée Le Brun, Princess Elisabeth, sister of Louis XVI., half-length, in a low-necked white dress, with blue sash, a wreath of pale pink roses encircling her head, an oval, 31×24 , exhibited at the Grafton Gallery, 1894, 500 guineas; J. Phillip, Seville: a Spanish beauty in green dress, yellow shawl, black mantilla, and holding a fan, 1859, 24×17 , 410 guineas; P. Nasmyth, View in Hampshire, 1826, $11\frac{3}{4} \times 15\frac{1}{2}$, 410 guineas; Sir A. W. Callcott, Scene in the Channel, 26×38 , 310 guineas; Sir E. Landseer, Browsing: a white goat nibbling at a mossy trunk of a tree, engraved by Lewis, and presented by the artist to C. R. Leslie, $14 \times 17\frac{1}{2}$, 530 guineas; J. Constable, The Mill Tail, $5\frac{3}{4} \times 8\frac{1}{2}$, mezzotinted by David Lucas 360 guineas; J. Crome, On the Norfolk Coast, 24×29 , from the Mendel collection (185 guineas), 420 guineas; Sir D. Wilkie, The Letter Writer, a scene in Constantinople, exhibited at the British Institution, 1842, at the International Exhibition, 1874, and at the Royal Jubilee Exhibition, 1887, 26×21 , 1840, 400 guineas; and a Turkish Coffee House, a Tartar narrating in a Café the news of the taking of Acre by the Allied Forces, 26×21 , 400 guineas—both these pictures were published in Wilkie's "Sketches in Turkey, Syria and Egypt"; W. Etty, "The Bather," 1843, from the Novar (150 guineas), and Gillott (460 guineas), 410 guineas; and The Return of the Prodigal Son, 33×42 , 460 guineas; R. P. Bonington, Pont des Arts, Paris, $13\frac{1}{2} \times 17\frac{1}{2}$, 350 guineas; and Near Bologne, $12\frac{1}{2} \times 17$, 340 guineas; and R. Wilson, View on the Arno, 39×49 , 620 guineas.

The pictures of the late Mr. Henry Doetsch, which occupied the next Saturday (June 22nd) and the following Monday and Tuesday, were 448 in number, and cost, as it is said, about £100,000, only showed a gross total of £12,899. The portentous catalogue of this collection occupied 126 pages, and was burdened not only with a superfluous preface from Dr. Richter, but with pedigrees more or less imaginary. The average result of this sale gives about £25 to each work of art, whereas few reached that amount, three figures being quite an exceptional event. The three or four fairly good pictures were an altarpiece ascribed to Jacopo da Pontormo, 86×73 , 400 guineas; Frans Hals, Portrait of a gentleman and one of a lady, a companion pair, 640 guineas and 200 guineas respectively. The last picture sale in June (29th) was an uninteresting one, and contained only a few articles of importance. A pair of pictures by David Cox, The Hayfield, and Changing Pastures, each $14 \times 20\frac{1}{2}$, for which the artist received £30 in 1850, now brought 740 guineas; J. Linnell, A Coming Storm, Royal Academy, 1873, 49×72 , 580 guineas, a very considerable drop from nearly double the amount which it realized in 1888; but the picture is understood to have sustained a considerable amount of damage through its journey to Chicago in 1893; and Sir F. Leighton, Greek Girls playing at Ball, from the Academy of 1889, 700 guineas. The best of a collection of modern French pictures sold on the same day were a fine example of Millet, a Winter Scene, with a woman carrying faggots on the outskirts of a wood, 1,100 guineas; Troyon, Hay Cart and Horses, 17×25 , 800 guineas; and nine Corots, the chief of which was Les Saules, 17×23 , 600 guineas.

The late C. F. Huth's highly important collection of modern pictures and drawings (July 6th) was evidently made with great good taste and excellent judgment. Nearly all the drawings were in perfect condition, having been chiefly purchased direct from the artists and kept in portfolio ever since. The artists represented were J. Constable, David Cox, Birket Foster, W. Hunt,

J. Linnell, J. M. W. Turner, P. De Wint, and others. Of the drawings, it must suffice to say that they sold very well indeed. The great picture of the sale was an unsurpassed example of Constable, a view of Stratford Mill on the Stour, not far from Bergholt. It was purchased from the artist by his friend, Archdeacon Fraser, of Salisbury, for 100 guineas; it was painted in 1820, and appeared at the Academy of that year, and at the British Institution five years later. It is well known through the engraving by Lucas, and became Mr. Huth's property for about £600 some thirty-five years ago, and now found a ready purchaser at 8,500 guineas. Mr. Huth had great faith in Morland's work, and he purchased some good examples at a time when the tide of fashion had not yet turned towards the quiet domestic pictures of this artist. The choicest specimen was the refined and beautiful Visit to the Child at Nurse, 24 × 30, engraved in mezzotint by W. Ward, 1788, 1,050 guineas; a pair, Partridge Shooting, etched by Rowlander, and Pheasant Shooting, 15½ × 20, which cost the late owner less than £100, now brought 480 guineas; and a characteristic example, a Cottage Door with a peasant kneeling and tying his shoe, 33 × 45, 710 guineas. James Holland, A View in Venice, with the Dogana, Doge's Palace and Library, and the Piazzetta of St. Mark's from the Lagoon, 23 × 39, 500 guineas; three excellent examples of J. Linnell were A River Scene, 1847-53, 24 × 29, 540 guineas; The Woodman's Dinner Hour, 1854, 17 × 21, 520 guineas ; and The Cornfield : Reaping, 1855, 26 × 38, 550 guineas ; D. Wilkie, The Errand Boy, the engraved picture, from the collections of Sir J. Swinburne and J. Knowles, 810 guineas ; T. Webster, The Cherry Seller, 14½ × 14, from the Young sale of 1866 (800 guineas), 200 guineas. The day's sale of sixty-eight drawings and fifty-three pictures brought a total of £23,982. The second and third days' sales were entirely composed of drawings which call for no further mention, except to state that the two days' total amounted to £3,565. Mr. Huth's choice collection of old mezzotint and other engravings, miniatures, and enamels brought over £7,000.

The last sale of any consequence of the season (July 13th) comprised pictures by old masters and of the early English school, from a great many sources. It was, on the whole a very remarkable sale. The first nineteen lots offered were from the collection of the late Sir John Chandos Reade, sixth baronet, of Shipton Court, Oxon. The two chief pictures in this collection were portraits by Romney of Sir John Reade, the fifth baronet, and Lady Reade, his wife, the latter in white and gold dress ; these realized 510 guineas and 1,050 guineas respectively. As an illustration of the value of a pedigree to a picture, it may be mentioned that the portrait of Lady Reade was offered at Christie's two years previously, simply as that of "a lady in a white dress," when it was bought in for 500 guineas. Sir W. Beechey's portrait of Sir John and Lady Reade brought 320 guineas and 235 respectively. J. Hoppner, whole-length portrait of Admiral Viscount Nelson, the battle of Copenhagen in the background, 2,550 guineas; Sir J. Reynolds, Portrait of Admiral Viscount Hood, 520 guineas; and his Portrait of Captain Winter, 725 guineas. W. Van de Velde, a View on the River Y during a Calm, painted in his early time, and formerly in the collection of the Marquis of Bute at Wroxton, 16 × 22, Smith, No. 165, 810 guineas; M. Hobbema, a View of a canal in Winter, 19 × 27, Smith, No. 104, 1,450 guineas; and Watteau, Les Plaisirs du Bal, one of many repetitions, 1,050 guineas; both these works were also at Wroxton Abbey for many years. Three pictures, withdrawn from the Clewer Manor sale in 1876, were now offered, and will be found mentioned in vol. i., p. 255.

Among the choicer examples of the early English school in this sale, none created so much interest and, it may be added, surprise, as the appearance of a second portrait by Gainsborough of Lady Mulgrave. This picture, which is said to be the earlier of the two works, came direct from Mulgrave Castle, but it is not to be compared with the beautiful work in the Price sale, which realized 10,000 guineas. The mystery of the two portraits was cleared up by a letter from Lord Normanby in The Times of the 19th of July. Both pictures were at one time at Mulgrave Castle, and the example offered on the 13th of July was bought in at 3,500 guineas. Other pictures which sold well included J. Hoppner, Portrait of Maria Pelham

Carleton, in white dress, carrying flowers, 1,050 guineas; George Morland, Storm, with a farmer on a white horse, 600 guineas; G. Romney, Portrait of the Hon. Mrs. Beresford, one of the ladies painted by Sir Joshua Reynolds in the celebrated picture of the Three Graces, direct from the family for whom it was painted—a beautiful example of this artist, 30 × 25, 1,650 guineas; and T. Lawrence, whole-length Portrait of Lady Owen, 95 × 98, 950 guineas. A number of excellent pictures of the Dutch school also occurred in this sale, notably a Portrait of a young man by Rembrandt, formerly at Stowe, 1,100 guineas; a curiously clever combination by Van Balen and Breughel, Pomona presenting Fruits to Flora, surrounded by allegorical figures of the Seasons in an oval, and encircled by garlands of fruits and flowers, etc., 280 guineas; Peter Codde, an Interior of an apartment, 1640, 19 × 25, from Lord Dover's collection, 1893, 410 guineas; and Hubert Van der Goes, The Stem of Jesse (see vol. i., p. 256), 610 guineas.

Only one important collection of porcelain came under the hammer during 1895, and this comprised the old Sèvres of the late Mr. W. J. Goode, of South Audley Street. The sale took place on July 17th and following day, 301 lots showing a total of £24,302 (which includes bought-in property). We have only space to enumerate a few of the more important lots:—old Sèvres, ewer and cover, turquoise ground, painted with fisherman on a quay, and a Coast Scene with children in two large medallions by Morin,¹ $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches high, and an oval-shaped bowl with similar subjects, 370 guineas; a portion of the celebrated dessert service made originally for Louis XVI., and afterwards purchased by George IV., and now at Windsor Castle—the ground is gros-bleu, richly decorated with wreaths of leaves, sprays of roses, and scrolls in gold, and medallions with classical subjects, dating from 1784-1792—the plates for this service averaged 100 guineas each; an oval dish, with four medallions by Dodin, $10\frac{1}{4}$ inches long by $7\frac{3}{8}$ inches broad, 255 guineas; a Sceau, painted with Hercules, Omphale and Cupid, and Diana and Nymph in a landscape in two large medallions, $6\frac{3}{4}$ inches high, 305 guineas; another, $7\frac{1}{2}$ inches high, 230 guineas; and a fine large vase and cover of elegant form, exquisitely painted with Venus, Adonis, and Cupid in front, and with a bouquet of flowers on the reverse, $16\frac{1}{2}$ inches high, from the Bernal, S. Rucker, and Dudley collections, 500 guineas; and the celebrated Coventry vases forming a matchless garniture de cheminée, consisting of a vase and cover, formed as a “Vaisseau à mat,” $14\frac{1}{2}$ inches high, and a pair of eventail jardinières and stands, $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches high, Rose-du-Barri ground, with bands of green, richly gilt and exquisitely painted with subjects of peasants and flowers in medallions, by Morin, marked with the letter G, of the date 1759, from the collections of the Earl of Coventry and the Earl of Dudley (from whom Mr. Goode is said to have acquired them for £10,000), 8,000 guineas (see full-page plate),—it was understood that the reserved price was not reached, and that consequently the lot was not sold. There were several plates from the magnificent service made at Sèvres in 1765 for the Empress Catherine II. of Russia, and these sold from 120 guineas to 155 guineas each.

J. M. W. TURNER, MORTLAKE.

Exhibited at the Royal Academy in 1827, under the title of "Mortlake Terrace, seat of William Moffat, Esq. : Summer Evening ;" and at the Winter Exhibitions, Burlington House, 1872 and 1895 ; James Price sale (p. 258).

The season of art sales with which we bring this work to a close cannot be described as one of particular interest or importance, although it has been in some respects one considerably above the average. The earliest sale of note took place on March 4th, 5th, 6th, 9th and 10th, and comprised the first portion of the important collection of porcelain, objects of art, and decorative furniture of Sir Edward J. Dean Paul, Bart., deceased, late of Cambridge House, Twickenham, and St. George's Place, S.W., and included old Chinese enamelled porcelain; Chinese and Japanese carvings, embroideries and other Oriental objects of art; old Dresden, Sèvres, Berlin, Vienna, Frankenthal, Höchst and other European porcelain; French, and other decorative bronzes and metal work; a large collection of old French decorative objects, including chased ormolu clocks, candelabra, wall-lights, hanging chandeliers and lanterns, fenders, etc., of the time of Louis XV. and Louis XVI.; also Louis XIV. Boulle caskets, mirrors, ink-stands, writing tables and cabinets; marqueterie and parqueterie secretaires, cabinets, commodes, tables, etc., chiefly of the time of Louis XV.; fine library tables and old leather screens, painted with Watteau and Boucher subjects; carved furniture, covered with old French tapestry; old French carved oak cabinets, carved and gilt pier tables and mirrors; also a large collection of old Flemish and other carved wood cabinets, tables, chairs, mirrors, etc.; old German, Dutch, and Flemish marqueterie; Italian carved pier tables, glasses, and other decorative furniture; statuary marble figures and busts, sculptured marble vases and pedestals. Also a collection of old Chelsea-Derby, Worcester and other English porcelain; Chippendale carved mahogany and other old English decorative furniture, including a number of fine Chippendale chairs, mirrors in carved and gilt Chippendale frames, Elizabethan carved oak cabinets, etc. The five days' sale of 856 lots brought a total of £20,378, very high prices ruling throughout, although none of the items calls for special mention. The Dean Paul valuable collection of old English and foreign silver and silver-gilt plate, jewels, bijouterie, and objects of vertu, majolica, Limoges enamels, Venetian and German glass, boxwood carvings, and a variety of other objects of art, chiefly of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, came under the hammer on June 23rd, and three following days, 664 lots realizing £10,134. Finally the Dean Paul collection of high-class pictures by Old Masters of the Dutch School was sold on June 27th, 128 lots showing a total of just over £11,571. The grand total, therefore, of the Dean Paul sale, exclusive of the wines, a small library of books, and the furniture sold on the premises, amounts to over £42,083. The pictures included, among much of a tenth-rate description, some works of high-class quality with "pedigrees" which cover their history for over a century. One of the most notable pictures was a view on the Zuyder Zee, with the fortress of Naarden in the distance, one of the most perfect works of Backhuysen ever offered for sale, and with none of the faults almost inseparably associated with his productions; this little picture measures 15 × 19. It was bought in a mixed sale at Amsterdam in 1828 for £270, was sold in Sir Charles Bagot's collection in 1836 for 370 guineas, and now realized 840 guineas. The most important example of Teniers was the picture known as The Alchemist, an interior of a laboratory furnished with crucibles, retorts, and other apparatus, 23 × 32, signed, and dated 1649. This work appeared in the sale of the collection of Minderhout de Neuville in 1765, when it realized £142; it was acquired at the sale of Baroness Thoms, near Leyden, in 1816, for £76, and now sold for 750 guineas; an Interior by the same artist, with a youthful peasant wearing a red cap and a blue jacket, 12 × 10, 245 guineas; and a still smaller work by the same artist, The Sense of Tasting, signed, 195 guineas. The finer of the two important examples of Adrian Van de Velde, but unfortunately in his late manner, was a Woody Scene with a shed at the side and a stream flowing along the front, with the figure of a cow, and on the bank a woman seated, suckling an infant, another child seated near her, caressing a puppy, 15 × 18, signed, and dated 1672; at the dispersal of the collection of M. Servad in Amsterdam in 1778 this work brought £144, and it passed through several other important cabinets at about the same price, until the second sale of the Chevalier Erard in 1833, when it realized 280 guineas; it now sold for 760 guineas. There was a somewhat similar work by A. Van de Velde, but distinguished from others by an antique pedestal standing near the centre of the foreground, at the base of which is seated a woman, with a child at her breast, 13 × 17, signed, and dated 1667. At the dispersal of the collection of M. Blondel de Gagny in 1776 this work realized £40; in 1832, at the sale of the pictures of George Morant, it realized 210 guineas, and now changed hands for 600 guineas. The former of these is described by Smith as No. 39, and the latter as No. 25.

Two very beautiful specimens of Philip Wou-verman, each on panel, excited much interest, and in view of their small size sold for comparatively high amounts. The first of these, engraved by Moyreau under the title of "La Chasse aux Canard," a landscape chiefly composed of barren sand hills, with numerous figures, including a man shooting at some ducks, 14 × 13, signed, and dated 1660; at the sale of M. Müller in 1827 this picture sold for £235, and it now fetched 450 guineas. The second example, engraved by Vischer, represents Three Horse Soldiers, halting before a sutler's booth on the right, and numerous other figures; this picture, 14 × 16, which has the arms of Elizabeth de Bourbon, Queen of Spain, on the back, realized £90 at the sale of M. Lorimer's collection at the Hague in 1763, and was now purchased for 480 guineas. These are respectively described by Smith as Nos. 328 and 373. Another picture which realized a very high price in view of its small size was a Woody Landscape by Hobbema, with an overshot mill on the right, the machinery of which has ceased to work, the water running to waste into the stream which flows along the extremity of the foreground; it is signed, and is 14 × 14—at the Nieuwenhuys sale in 1833 this "clear and good example of the master" (Smith, No. 54), was sold for 151 guineas, and now advanced to 1,050 guineas. An excellent work of Berghem, Peasants with Cattle fording a river, a fine autumnal morning scene, 26 × 31, signed, and dated 1680, realized 400 guineas—at the sale of M. Lambert in 1787, this work realized £332; it was acquired at the Wilkins sale in 1830 for 750 guineas by the late Mr. Richard Foster, of Clewer Manor, from whose possession it passed privately into the late owner's collection; it is described by Smith, No. 90.

The several examples by (or attributed to) Cuypp included a Landscape with a Cavalier in a red jacket and a hat with a feather, on a white horse, the cavalier conversing with a boy, with other figures, and a round tower beyond, signed,

$9 \times 11\frac{3}{4}$, 400 guineas; and a scene of travellers halting to refresh their steeds, painted in the artist's early time, on copper, $8\frac{1}{2} \times 11\frac{3}{4}$ —135 guineas (Smith, No. 168),—at the Morant sale in 1832 it sold for 62 guineas. One of several examples of F. Mieris, A Boy at a Window, blowing bubbles, and a woman with a dog in her arms in the background, dated 1663, on copper, $10\frac{1}{2} \times 7\frac{3}{4}$, arched top, 225 guineas (Smith, No. 6)—at Lord Rendlesham's sale in 1809 this picture sold for £131. A very good example of A. Van der Neer, a Frozen River Scene, with numerous figures skating and playing golf, a group of trees and some felled timber in the foreground, signed, 21×25 , 1,170 guineas; and a Coast Scene, with windmills, figures, and boats, 12×17 , 280 guineas; J. Ruysdael, a Woody Landscape, with a stream extending along the foreground, in which is reflected a cluster of trees, evening effect, signed, 26×21 , 500 guineas—at the Nieuwenhuys sale in 1833 this sold for 75 guineas; J. Wynants, a Landscape composed, on the right, of a high hill of a yellow sandy soil and of a broken and picturesque form, signed, 18×16 , 380 guineas; G. Metsu, The Sempstress, a lady in a light brown velvet jacket trimmed with white fur, seated at needlework, $8\frac{1}{2} \times 7$, 230 guineas; and G. Camp-huysen, Interior of a Shed, with two cows tethered, an old woman seated at needlework near a table, and other figures, signed, 15×14 , 94 guineas. The only two works of artists of the Early English school to which reference need be made are J. Hoppner, Portrait of a lady, in white dress, and pink scarf, 29×24 , 310 guineas; and Sir M. A. Shee, P.R.A., Portrait of young lady in a white dress with gold waistband and chain necklace, 29×25 , 185 guineas.

The collection of modern pictures and water-colour drawings of the late George Simpson, of Wray Park, Reigate, and property from other sources, sold on April 18th, included a few works of note. Drawings: Rosa Bonheur, Deer in the Forest of Fontainbleau, 1866, 17×21 , 155 guineas; Copley Fielding, View of Ben Cruachan, above Loch Awe, 1832, 16×22 , 155 guineas; and View of Ben Lomond, looking down Loch Lomond, 1833, 16×23 , 245 guineas; L. Gaillait, Reading the warrant of Execution to Counts Egmont and Horn, 1864, 16×22 , 100 guineas; and J. M. W. Turner, Hythe, the engraved drawing, $5\frac{3}{4} \times 9$, 120 guineas. Pictures: Rosa Bonheur, Landscape, with sheep, 1865, 12×20 , 700 guineas; W. Bouguereau, The Indigent Family, 1865, 49×60 , 430 guineas; Vicat Cole, Evening Rest, Abinger Mill Pond, Royal Academy, 1866, 29×47 , 250 guineas; T. Faed, "E'er Care Begins," 1865, 31×38 , 395 guineas; J. L. Gérôme, The Call to Prayer, 16×11 , 200 guineas; J. Linnell, The Quoit Players, 1810, from the collections of Sir Thomas Baring, 1848, and J. M. Threlfall, 1864, 500 guineas, and W. Q. Orchardson, Hamlet and Ophelia, Royal Academy, 1865—the Hamlet is a portrait of the artist, 550 guineas. The foregoing were included in the Simpson property. The pictures from other sources were: Lord Leighton, The Mermaid, Royal Academy, 1858 (see p. 58), 350 guineas; W. P. Frith, The Race for Wealth, the series of five well-known exhibited pictures, from the collection of Colonel J. J. Ellis, 1882 (660 guineas), 310 guineas; Marcus Stone, A Honeymoon, Royal Academy, 1893, engraved by G. Gilbert Hester, 550 guineas; J. Holland, Chiesa di Gesuati, Venice, from the F. S. Teesdale collection, 310 guineas; and B. W. Leader, a River Scene, 1866, from the same collection, 150 guineas. The collection of modern pictures of the English and Continental schools, formed by Mr. C. H. T. Hawkins, of 10, Portland Place, sold on April 25th and 27th, included: J. Brett, The Grey of the Morning, Royal Academy, 1882, 470 guineas; Sir J. Gilbert, The Field of the Cloth of Gold, Royal Academy, 1874, 400 guineas; E. Normand, Bondage, Royal Academy, 1895, 480 guineas; T. Benlliure, The Cardinal's Visit to the Nunnery, 32 × 58, 250 guineas; Gaetano Chierici, The Kitchen Invaded, 1881, 150 guineas, and A Frightful State of Things, Royal Academy, 1881, 180 guineas. Mr. Hawkins's collection of water-colour drawings was dispersed on April 30th, and included: Vicat Cole, a Sandpit, with sheep, in Surrey, 1876, 155 guineas; C. Fielding, View near the Coast, castle in the middle distance, figures and cows in the foreground, 25 × 38, 350 guineas—both these are from the collection of J. de Murrieta, 1873; a series of thirty-three drawings of the cathedrals of England, by Birket Foster, each 4 × 6, realized from 25 guineas to 42 guineas each; and a series of twenty-six drawings, by the same, of the Riviera and Italian lakes, each 5 × 7¼, ranged from 31 guineas to 45 guineas each. Mr. Hawkins's collection of pictures by old masters was sold on May 11th, and included: T. Gainsborough, Wood River Scene, with peasant on a rustic bridge, herdsman and shepherdess seated on a bank, and two cows, 25 × 30, 350 guineas; W. Hogarth, Head of Miss Rich, a sketch, 17 × 14, 415 guineas; G. Romney, Head of a Lady, a sketch, 28 × 23, 265 guineas; Sir J. Reynolds, Head of Miss Kemble, 16 × 11, 205 guineas; N. Berghem, A View of a mountainous country, from the H. Bingham Mildmay collection, 1893, 385 guineas; and G. Terburg, Portrait of a lady in a black dress, and black lace handkerchief over her head, seated, reading a letter, a silver rose-water ewer and dish, and a candlestick, on a table before her, 17 × 15, 1,100 guineas—at the R. Winstanley sale, 1850, this picture sold for 92 guineas. The same collector's choice assemblage of old French snuff-boxes, etc., of the periods of Louis XIV., XV. and XVI., and the first French Empire, was dispersed on May 6th, 112 lots realizing a total of £15,251—a single Louis XV. gold box selling for £1,100.

The collection of drawings and pictures by modern artists of the late Colonel John Hargreaves, of Maiden Erlegh, Berks., showed a total of £13,000 for 126 lots. Many of the pictures now sold occurred in the sale of the collection of the late owner's father, Mr. John Hargreaves, of Broad Oak, and were then either bought in or purchased for Colonel Hargreaves. We give in the following table a list of the principal pictures with the prices which they nominally realized in 1873, and those at which they were sold on May 2nd 1896. The comparison is a very striking one, but the result is one which almost invariably overtakes pictures on which absurdly high reserves are placed.

Müller, Dredge Boats on the Medway, formerly the property of Lord Dunmore, and from the Hootan Hall collection, 800 guineas; G. D. Leslie, The Fountain, Royal Academy, 1873, 230 guineas; and B. Riviere, Sympathy, engraved by F. Stacpoole, 260 guineas, and The Last of the Garrison, Royal Academy, 1875, 380 guineas.

The sale of May 9th comprised the collection of ancient and modern pictures of the Right Hon. Viscount Eversley, deceased; and the celebrated Haskett Smith collection of the works of George Morland; also the Thomson Bonar collection of family portraits formerly at Camden House, Chislehurst, and pictures from other sources. The first-named property included some pictures of note, namely, Van der Capelle, a River Scene, with boats and figures, 14×19 , 700 guineas; J. Ruysdael, A Woody Scene, with a river falling in a cascade, and sheep, signed, 15×13 , 250 guineas; but the chief interest of the day's sale commenced with a series of pictures of the early English school, beginning with a Portrait by Gainsborough, Samuel Whitbread, Esq., M.P., the younger, in brown coat, with white cravat and powdered hair, landscape background, half-length, 35×27 , 1,750 guineas; a Woody Landscape, with a wagon on a road, by the same, 13×11 , 145 guineas; J. Hoppner, Whole-length Portrait of Emma Laura Whitbread, as a child, in a white frock, with blue sash, red shoes, and coral necklace, 49×40 , 1,800 guineas; and a Portrait of Lady Elizabeth Whitbread, wife of Samuel Whitbread, in black dress, with jewels, her right arm resting on a table covered with a red cloth, 35×28 , exhibited at the Royal Academy, 1798, 520 guineas; G. Morland, Landscape, with gipsies around a fire, signed, and dated 1795, 65 guineas; and Sir Joshua Reynolds, Portrait of Samuel Whitbread, as a child, in gray frock, oval, 17×14 , 130 guineas.

In reference to the collection of the late Mr. H. Haskett Smith, of Trowswell, Goudhurst, remarkable on account of the number and quality of the examples of George Morland, it may be pointed out that the majority of these pictures were offered for sale at Christie's on May 28th, 1864. About one-half of those then offered were bought in at what now appear to be absurdly low amounts. Since that sale the late Mr. Haskett Smith made frequent additions of Morlands to his collection, which, at the time of his death, was quite as fine as it had been prior to 1864. There were twenty-five in all, and included: The Cherry Sellers, signed, 20 × 36, 1,000 guineas; The Death of the Fox, signed, and dated 1794, the engraved picture, 300 guineas—in 1864 this was bought in at 41 guineas; a Landscape, with gipsies round a fire, signed, 19 × 25, 380 guineas; The Market Cart, signed, and dated 1795, engraved, 25 × 30, 130 guineas—in 1864 it was bought in for 62 guineas; Temptation, signed, and dated 1792, engraved, 25 × 30, 410 guineas; The Piggery, signed, and exhibited at Burlington House in 1872, 18 × 24, 320 guineas; The Catastrophe, signed, and dated 1791, exhibited at Burlington House in 1872, 20 inches square—320 guineas—bought in in 1864 at 36 guineas; Interior of a Stable, with two peasants, a dog and donkey, 15 × 20, 100 guineas—in 1864, 45 guineas; the fine picture known as The Wreckers, signed, and dated 1791, exhibited at Burlington House in 1872, 41 × 54, 520 guineas—at the 1864 sale this picture was bought in at 161 guineas; and a Fishwife buying fish on the beach, signed, and dated 1794, 27 × 25, 240 guineas—its price in 1864 was 121 guineas. G. Harlow, Hubert and Arthur, the engraved picture, painted for Mr. Leader, and the work that first attracted the attention of the public, 94 × 57, 150 guineas. The Thomson Bonar pictures included Sir T. Lawrence, a three-quarter length Portrait of Mrs. Anastatia Jessy Bonar, in brown dress, 55×43 , 680 guineas; G. Romney, Mrs. Anne Bonar, and her daughter Agnes, aged about five years, both in white muslin dresses, with blue sashes, 60×48 , 1,500 guineas; J. Russell, Mrs. Anne Bonar, wife of Thomson Bonar, who was murdered with her husband by an Italian page, pastel, 39×30 , 105 guineas; and the Two Children of the above, pastel, 49×39 , 115 guineas; and Sir H. Raeburn, Portrait of Mr. Guthrie, of Hawkstone, 85 guineas.

The pictures from different private collections included a replica of the well-known Portrait by Sir Joshua Reynolds, now at Nuneham, of Lady Waldegrave, afterwards Duchess of Gloucester, in gray silk dress, with crimson silk cord sash, resting her chin on her left hand, 36×28 , 1,050 guineas; a Portrait catalogued as by Sir Joshua Reynolds, but really by Francis Cotes, of Miss Milles, in white silk dress, with blue and gold sash, 50×40 , 650 guineas; a Portrait also catalogued as by Sir Joshua, of Lady Pelham, in white and gold muslin dress tied by a sash, and pink robe, oval, 160 guineas; F. Cotes, Miss Milles, afterwards Lady Astley, in an oval, 135 guineas. Five pictures by F. Guardi were as follows:—View on the Grand Canal, with the Dogana and Church of Sta. Maria della Salute, boats and figures, 380 guineas; the companion picture of the islands near Venice, each 24×38 , 190 guineas; St. Mark's-place, Venice, with booths and numerous figures, 510 guineas; the Grand Canal, with the Rialto, numerous boats and figures, 23 × 38, 380 guineas ; and another view of the same, also with boats and figures, 25 × 35, 710 guineas. A work catalogued as by A. Watteau of a "Danse Champêtre," on panel, 14 × 17, described as "from the Glendonhall collection," 410 guineas ; Sir Joshua Reynolds, Portrait of Lady Louisa Conolly, in white dress, yellow cloak lined with crimson, seated on a terrace, three-quarter length, painted in 1775, 730 guineas ; three works by J. Hoppner, The Hurdygurdy Player, Portrait of Miss Matilda Fielding, daughter of Captain Fielding, R.N., in peasant costume, 30 × 25, £1,550 ; Miss Augusta Fielding, sister of the last, in white dress and straw hat, holding a pug dog, realized a sum much below its estimated value, 480 guineas ; and Mrs. Fielding, wife of Captain Fielding, in white dress and muslin tippet, 30 × 25, 330 guineas ; G. Romney, Portrait of Jane Viscountess Melville, daughter of the Earl of Hopetoun, in white dress and cap, with powdered hair, 28 × 24, 1,200 guineas ; J. Hoppner, Portrait of Mrs. Robinson as "Perdita," in gray dress, seated in a landscape, 30 × 25, 900 guineas. Of the five pictures from the late Miss Romney's sale in 1894, we may mention G. Romney's Portrait of his brother, Colonel James Romney, in uniform, 110 guineas ; and "A Conversation," portraits of the artist's brothers James and Peter, 200 guineas —at the 1894 sale these two pictures sold for 33 guineas and 70 guineas respectively, but they have since been cleaned and suitably framed ; and two Portraits by Sir H. Raeburn, Lord William Russell, grandson of the fourth Duke of Bedford, murdered in 1840 by his valet Courvoisier, 50×40 , 280 guineas; and John, sixth Duke of Bedford, born in 1766, died in 1839, in blue coat, 50×40 , 130 guineas.

A few choice modern pictures and drawings were included in the sale of May 16th, when the properties of the late John Morley, of Upper Clapton; and the late Charles T. Lucas, of 9, Belgrave Square, and of Mr. W. Houldsworth were dispersed. The Morley property included the following drawings:—Birket Foster, Holm Wood Common, with sheep, ducks, and figures carting bracken, 13×28 , 300 guineas; and a view near Arundel, with children and a flock of sheep, 13×28 , 210 guineas; six examples of W. Hunt, Plums and Apricots, $8\frac{1}{2} \times 12$, 166 guineas; Blowing Bubbles, 1835, $11 \times 7\frac{1}{2}$, 128 guineas; Pink and White May Blossom, with Chaffinch's nest, $9\frac{1}{2} \times 14\frac{1}{2}$, 200 guineas; Grapes, Pear and Holly Berries, oval, $9 \times 11\frac{1}{2}$, 135 guineas—the four foregoing drawings, which now realized a total of 629 guineas, each cost Mr. Morley 35 guineas; Negro Boy with a Tambourine, $11 \times 7\frac{3}{4}$, 76 guineas, and Roses in a Basket, 14×10 , 200 guineas—this drawing cost the late owner 80 guineas. The eight drawings by J. M. W. Turner were: Brighton, 6×9 , signed, 265 guineas; Dartmouth, $5\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{1}{2}$, 270 guineas; Minehead, $6 \times 8\frac{1}{2}$, 170 guineas; Tripoli, $5\frac{1}{2} \times 8$, 145 guineas; Edinburgh Castle, $3\frac{1}{4} \times 5\frac{1}{2}$, 60 guineas; Lulworth Cove, $5\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{1}{2}$, 160 guineas; Absalom's Tomb, $5\frac{3}{4} \times 8$, 185 guineas; and Loch Leven, $4 \times 6\frac{1}{4}$, 95 guineas. The principal pictures were: J. F. Lewis, The Greeting in the Desert, 1855, 17×24 , 280 guineas; J. Linnell, View in Windsor Park, with Shepherd and Sheep, 1863, 24×27 , 215 guineas; Sir J. E. Turner, The Devil's Bridge, 41×29 , 145 guineas; Boats carrying out anchors and cables to the Dutch men-of-war, 1665, from the Delamere and W. B. White collections, 1550 guineas, and The Deluge, $29\frac{1}{4} \times 29$, from the collection of the Rev. T. Judkins, 240 guineas. The Lucas drawings included Carl Haag, Es Salam: Sheikh Michael el Museab Anazeb at Palmyra, 45×30 , 400 guineas; and of the pictures we may mention, T. Creswick, River Scene, with cattle, 41×59 , 270 guineas; H. W. B. Davis, Spring Ploughing, Artois, Royal Academy, 1866, 220 guineas; C. Napier Hemy, Falmouth Natives, 1886, 275 guineas; and J. C. Hook, Caught by the Tide, 1869, 265 guineas.

One of the most interesting sales of the season, comprised the rare and valuable collection of drawings by old masters of the late Earl of Warwick, sold on May 20th, and following day, 454 lots realizing £8,061. The higher priced articles included three by Albert Dürer, Portrait of Lucas Van Leyden, bust, black chalk, 10×14 , £430; Portrait of a man in profile, black chalk, dated 1518, $9\frac{3}{4} \times 14\frac{3}{4}$, £410, and Bust of a man with a flat cap, black and white chalk on red-stained paper, $7\frac{1}{2} \times 10$, £245; Leonardo da Vinci, Head of a young girl in black and red chalks, 6×8 , £480; Michael Angelo Buonarotti, The Virgin supporting the body of Christ, and four other figures, black chalk, for a study of the Descent from the Cross, $10\frac{1}{2} \times 11$, £1,400; and Raffaele Santi, Various Studies on one sheet, sepia brightened with white, $8\frac{1}{4} \times 10\frac{1}{4}$, £355. The late Earl of Warwick's valuable collection of Limoges Enamel and sixteenth century objects of Art, came up for sale on July 17th, 33 lots realizing £10,497 18s. An elliptical Dish, by Jean Court, 21×16 , 350 guineas; A Ewer, 13 in. high 4 in. diam., 200 guineas; a Circular Dish, painted in blue and white grisaille enamel, $16\frac{3}{4}$ in. diam., 375 guineas; a set of twelve plates by M. Zoffany, Portraits of Garrick and Mrs. Pritchard in "Macbeth," 40×50 , 100 guineas.

The great sale of the season comprised the collection of pictures, old French furniture, porcelain, objects of art and vertu formed by the Right Hon. Sir Julian Goldsmid, Q.C., M.P. In announcing the dispersal of this collection, the Times observed : " Some idea of the magnitude and variety of these may be gathered from the fact that the old French furniture, objets d'art, and old plate extend to 1,621 lots, and the pictures and drawings to 82 more. Sir Julian was a somewhat promiscuous buyer ; he liked to be surrounded with pretty things and curious things of all kinds and all sizes ; he could find a home for almost anything, whether it was a gilt sedan chair, or a picqué box, or a picture by Sir Joshua Reynolds. He was not one of those collectors, like Beckford or Charles Bale, who keep themselves rigorously to the finest things and who stamp the impress of their own exquisite taste upon their collections ; in his early years he made, as far as his pictures were concerned, a certain number of unhappy purchases, but as time went on he came to be better advised and to know more, and his latest acquisitions were his best. The pictures which are to be sold this week are mostly of this latter class, and they form an important collection. First, however, come the furniture and objects of art, which are, as we have said, very numerous, and some of them very good. To-day the auctioneers sell the miniatures, the Chelsea and Dresden china, the picqué work (of this Sir Julian was very fond, and had probably the best existing collection), the snuff boxes, and many other things. Then follow some choice pieces of French furniture, old clocks and candelabra, German and Italian furniture, some fine pieces of Limoges enamel, more miniatures by Cosway and others, and such-like things, all in great demand just now among the wealthy cosmopolitan class which forms collections, partly from despair of finding better investments, partly from the love of collecting, and partly from rivalry.

The sale took place on June 8th, and the seven following week days, whilst the silver plate was sold on June 29th and 30th. The entire Goldsmid collection—including a five days' sale of the remaining furniture on the premises, conducted by Phillips, Son & Neale—amounted to £111,829. The pictures, to which we shall confine ourselves, were sold on June 13th, and the 82 lots realized the total of £67,342 16s. A number of articles were understood to have been purchased for members of the family. The sale commenced with a few drawings, including C. Stanfield, Ghent, engraved in Heath's "Picturesque Annual," 1833, 105 guineas; and Carl Haag, Eliezer Returning from his Mission, 220 guineas. Among the pictures were:—C. Kiesel, An Inmate of the Harem, head of an Eastern woman, 13 × 10, 160 guineas; L. Deutsch, An Egyptian Dealer in bric-a-brac, 1884, 245 guineas; A. Schreyer, Horses frightened by Fire, 47 × 76, 520 guineas; W. Hilton, Nature blowing Bubbles for her Children, Royal Academy, 1821, 68 × 89, 170 guineas; R. Ansdell, Crossing the Ford, Seville, signed and dated Seville, 1858, 41 × 77, 165 guineas—at the Threlfall sale in 1864 this picture realized 340 guineas ; D. Roberts, Interior of the Cathedral of Seville during the Ceremony of Corpus Christi, 23 × 16, 150 guineas ; F. Goodall, Cranmer at the Traitor's Gate, “On thro' that gate misnamed, thro' which before, Went Sidney, Russell, Raleigh, Cranmer, More,”

from a poem by Rogers, Royal Academy, 1856, 350 guineas ; E. Long, A Street Scene in Madrid, 56 × 84, 520 guineas ; Vicat Cole, Noon in the Cornfield, dated 1865, 185 guineas ; Keeley Halswelle, Il Madonnajo, an image seller of the kingdom of Naples, dated 1873, 205 guineas ; Hon. J. Collier, Pharaoh's Handmaidens, 155 guineas ; C. Hunter, Wintry Weather, 1894, 160 guineas ; J. B. Burgess, Una Limosnita por el amor de Dios, 56 × 43, Royal Academy, 1885, 320 guineas ; E. W. Cooke, Chioggian Fishing Vessels running into the Lagune of Venice on the approach of a borasco, or violent squall, 1856, 400 guineas—from Lord Londesborough's sale ; J. C. Hook, Catching Sand-Launce, 1814, 550 guineas ; T. S. Cooper, Canterbury Meadows, with cattle, sheep, and goats in the foreground, 1856, 330 guineas ; E. J. Poynter, Knucklebones, finished study for the picture exhibited at the New Gallery, 1891, 10 × 16, 460 guineas ; and “On the Temple Steps,” 1889, Royal Academy, 1890, 300 guineas ; L. Alma Tadema, Expectations, Grosvenor Gallery, 1885, and engraved by Lowenstam, 1,950 guineas—the artist received £1,500 for this charming little work ; Lord Leighton, Listening, Royal Academy, 1895, 24 × 19, 490 guineas ; Sir J. E. Millais, The Little Speedwell's Darling Blue, 38 × 28, Royal Academy, 1892, 1,400 guineas ; J. Linnell, Grand Landscape in Wales, signed, and dated 1863, 38 × 53, from the Mendel collection, 800 guineas ; J. Stark, A Country Lane, 10 × 14, 330 guineas ; P. Nasmyth, A View in Kent, landscape, with cottage and figures, shallow stream in the foreground, 11 × 15, 510 guineas ; C. Stanfield, A "Guarda Costa," riding out the gale at Fuentarabia, at the mouth of the Bidassoa, Basque Provinces, Academy, 1856, 48 × 71, 2,300 guineas ; from Lord Londesborough's sale ; J. Constable, The Embarkation of George IV. from Whitehall, on the occasion of the opening of Waterloo Bridge, June 18, 1817, large sketch for the finished picture in the possession of Sir C. Tennant, 58 × 93, 2,000 guineas ; J. M. W. Turner, Sea Piece, rough sea, with two boats in the foreground, and others, a squall coming up from the left, 17 × 23, painted for "the inimitable Jack Banister," the comedian, from whose family it was purchased by Mr. Gibbons, 2,050 guineas—this picture realized 1,200 guineas in 1894 ; and Rockets and Blue Lights to warn steamboats off shoal water, Royal Academy, 1840, 35 × 47, 3,700 guineas,—from the Hootan Hall collection, and the M'Connel sale of 1886 ; R. Cosway, three-quarter-length Portrait of Lady Carey, oval, 14 × 10, 205 guineas ; Sir W. Beechey, three-quarter length Portrait of Frederica Charlotte Catherine, Duchess of York, wife of Frederick, Duke of York, 35 × 27, presented to Mrs. Gwyn by her Royal Highness—1,400 guineas—from the Price sale, 1895; J. Hoppner, three-quarter Portrait of a Lady, seated in landscape under tree, in low-necked, short-sleeved white dress, 45 × 34, 1,100 guineas.

The five Romneys started with a half-length Portrait of James Oliver, in blue Windsor uniform, 260 guineas; Portrait of Mrs. Oliver (née Shakespeare), in brown dress, with baby asleep in her lap, 1785, 3,100 guineas (see full-page plate); Lady Urith Shore, three-quarter length, in white dress embroidered with gold flowers, 2,000 guineas; half-length Portrait of Miss Harriet Shore, seated in a landscape, in a white dress and cap, and a blue sash, and loosely arranged hair, 2,750 guineas, both from the J. Price sale; and a Portrait of Lady Hamilton as Contemplation, half length, in white dress, with a blue band at the waist, 1,210 guineas—from the Carwardine sale of 1890. The first of the three Gainsboroughs was a Grand Landscape, a view at Schockerwick, near Bath, three cows and a goat in the foreground by a pool, distant hilly landscape, 47 × 58, 3,100 guineas; half-length Portrait of Dorothea, Lady Eden, in lilac low-cut dress, scarf thrown loosely round her, 5,000 guineas—a lower amount than had been anticipated, having regard to the sensational sum paid in 1895 for the portrait of Lady Mulgrave, which it rivalled in quality; and Mr. and Mrs. Dehaney and their daughter, members of a family who were formerly owners of Hayes-place, Kent, 93 × 57, 2,100 guineas.

There were four important works by Reynolds: A full-length Portrait of Charles Manners, fourth Duke of Rutland (1754-1787) in his robes, with wand of office over his shoulders, engraved in mezzotint by Dickinson, 92×57 , 1,400 guineas; three-quarter-length Portrait, Barbara, Countess of Coventry, fourth daughter of the tenth Lord St. John, in low-necked white dress, engraved in mezzotint by James Watson, and also by Spicer, and exhibited at Burlington House, 1896, 49×39 , 3,800 guineas; full-length Portrait of the Hon. Mary Monckton, wife of the seventh Earl of Cork, painted in 1779, and in perfect preservation, white dress, with gold-embroidered scarf, blue cloak thrown round her, Burlington House, 1888, engraved by Jacobé, and by S. W. Reynolds, 93×57 , 7,500 guineas—this picture was formerly the property of Mr. Edward P. Monckton, and was sold in July, 1894, as “from the family for whom it was painted,” when it also realized 7,500 guineas; and whole-length Portrait of Mrs. Mathew, the well-known patroness of art, and the first to notice and encourage Flaxman, in light-coloured dress, cut low, with dog by her side, water and wooded landscape in the background, 1777, 92×56 , 4,000 guineas—from the Wynn Ellis and Duchess of Montrose sales.

The pictures by the old masters included Marieschi, The Grand Canal, Venice, with St. Mark's Place and the Palace, 22×43 , 330 guineas; F. Guardi, A Gondola Race on the Grand Canal, Venice, $9\frac{3}{4} \times 13\frac{3}{4}$, 200 guineas; F. Pourbus, full-length, life-size figure of a Boy, in a long white cloak, on the front of which is the red cross of Santiago, 360 guineas—from the Blenheim Palace sale, when it was catalogued and sold as the work of Baroccio; and Jan Steen, The Guitar Lesson, interior of a room, young lady in a white satin dress, with feathers and pearls in her hair, young man seated on a table, 24 × 20, 1667, 550 guineas—from the Clewer Manor and S. Addington collections.

The only noteworthy pictures in the sale of June 20th, formed of pictures derived from a variety of sources, were the following:—P. Mercier, View of Clifden, with Frederick, Prince of Wales, playing the 'cello, accompanied by three ladies (see Lord Ronald Gower's "Reminiscences"), 30 × 22, 235 guineas; P. Van Slinglandt, Two Boys, with a cat and bird cage at an open window, 15 × 12, from the Bouchier-Cleeve collection, 340 guineas; D. Teniers, a Kermesse, with numerous figures dancing and regaling, 22 × 30, 360 guineas—these three were from the collection of the late W. E. Briscoe, of Holton Hall, Oxford; J. Van de Cappelle, a View from the Shore, over a calm sea, numerous sailing boats, and party of men and women picnicking, 25 × 34, 600 guineas; M. Schon-gauer, The Annunciation, 34 × 33, from the collection of Francis Douce, the antiquary, and W. Twopenny, 480 guineas; A. Dürer, The Virgin, in a crimson robe edged with fur, and purple sleeves, seated on a cushion in a landscape with the Infant Saviour in her arms, town in the background, 35 × 23, arched top, £300; W. Mulready, The Origin of a Painter, Royal Academy, 1836, purchased from the artist, 240 guineas; and Boys Fishing, Royal Academy, 1814, 250 guineas; T. Gainsborough, Grand Landscape, from the Gillott collection, 1,000 guineas; Sir M. A. Shee, Portraits of Two Boys, of the Ashley family, in a landscape, 82 × 48, 460 guineas; and G. Romney, a Five-Leaf Screen, painted with "The Singers go Before, the Minstrels follow after, in the midst are the damsels playing on timbrals," 270 guineas—from the Romney sale of 1894, but completely restored since.

The last great sale of the season, July 4th, comprised the collection of pictures by old masters of Mr. Arthur Seymour, of 95, Piccadilly, and the pictures and portraits of the early English school, the property of the trustees of Mr. William Angerstein, of Weeting Hall, Norfolk. The Seymour collection comprised ninety-five lots, which brought a total of £11,246 3s. 6d., and included a large number of works catalogued under names to which they had a very remote claim. A few of the less doubtful were as follows:—N. Berghem, Landscape, exhibiting a grand mountainous country, varied with clusters of trees, a cascade of water with a bridge over it, and a party of peasants with laden mules, and other figures, a charming summer's evening effect, from the Trumbull collection, 1797, 46 × 78, 520 guineas; Fragonard, Portrait of a lady in a pink and blue dress trimmed with fur, and bird on her right hand, 37 × 30, 185

SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, THE HON. MARY MONCKTON.

Goldsmid sale (p. 296).

guineas; J. de Mabuse, Portrait of a Gentleman, in black dress, 12×8 , arched top, 150 guineas; A. Van der Neer, a Village on a River, with figures, moonlight effect, signed, 13×16 , 260 guineas; Eglon Van der Neer, Portrait of a Lady of fair complexion, elegantly dressed, holding a large glass globe in which are reflected the principal events in the life of Christ, 9×8 , signed, and dated 1693, 115 guineas; S. Ruysdael, A Dutch River Scene, with a windmill and old buildings, 30×42 , 145 guineas; J. Steen, a Festive Scene, a party of nine persons round a table covered with viands, a blind guitar-player on the right, and an old woman on the left singing a ballad, numerous other figures, the artist himself in the background laughing, signed, 37×42 , from the Whaley, Henry Grattan, and Dease collections, 435 guineas; A. Van de Velde, Landscape, with sportsman on horseback, in red coat, and cap with feather, conversing with a herdsman, 8×10 , signed, and dated 1670, 100 guineas; P. Wouverman, "Défilé de Cavalerie," with artillery and baggage waggons, defiling through an open country which is intersected by a river, 14×19 , 355 guineas—the picture engraved by Bedmont, and from Mrs. Bentley's collection, (1879, £236.) The examples of the Early English school in Mr. Seymour's collection commenced with a Portrait of Quin in the character of Falstaff. In the first edition of the sale catalogue, this picture was ascribed to Barker, of Bath, but in the more recent issue it was attributed to Gainsborough, to whose work it bears no resemblance whatever. Further, the catalogue describes it as having been painted in 1763, as having been exhibited at the British Institution in 1815, and as being described in Fulcher's "Life" of Gainsborough; as a matter of fact, the portrait referred to by Fulcher is a totally different work, in which Quin is represented sitting in an armchair, with a volume of plays in his hand. The Seymour picture was formerly in the collection of the Earl of Clare, and is said to have sold in Ireland for £1,500—it now realized 100 guineas; Sir J. Reynolds, Portrait of Lady Chambers, wife of Sir William Chambers, the distinguished architect, 30 × 25, painted in Paris, 1752, and several times engraved, 790 guineas—in 1886 this picture realized 525 guineas; T. Gainsborough, Portrait of a Lady, in blue silk dress, trimmed with lace, with white scarf and blue necktie, 30 × 24, 280 guineas; Sir J. Reynolds, Portrait of a Lady, in blue silk dress and white pelisse, trimmed with blue ribands and lace, 30 × 25, 260 guineas; and an exceedingly beautiful work by Romney, two full-length Portraits of Maria and Catherine, the children of Edward, Lord Chancellor Thurlow, in white dresses, standing at a harpsichord, looking at the spectator, one playing the instrument, while the other leans on it, 60 × 47, 2,550 guineas. The only two other pictures in this collection to which reference need be made were:—A. Canaletto, The Entrance to the Grand Canal, Venice, with the Dogana and the Church of Santa Maria della Salute, with boats and figures, 48 × 81, 750 guineas; and M. de Hondecoeter, Garden Scene, with a peacock and peahen near a stone wall, with ducks and other fowls, a pigeon flying above, signed, 49 × 61, 1,300 guineas.

The Angerstein pictures comprised twenty-seven lots, which realized a total of £8,935 10s. An exquisite little drawing by Sir Thomas Lawrence, a Portrait of Mme. Sabloukoff and Family, in a landscape, 20 × 16, dated 1794, and retouched in 1823, 1,000 guineas,—this is believed to be the highest price ever paid at auction for a pastel drawing. The pictures in oils were :—Sir Joshua Reynolds, half-length Portrait of John Julius Angerstein, seated, in Vandyck dress, 35 × 26, painted in 1765, 580 guineas ; and Portrait of Mrs. Angerstein, wife of the last mentioned, and child, in pink robe and lace head-dress, 56 × 44, Royal Academy, 1773, and engraved by Ridley, 1,550 guineas ; Sir T. Lawrence, half-length Portrait of John Julius Angerstein, in red robe, 35 × 28, 180 guineas ; J. Hoppner, Portrait of William Locke at the age of eighteen, in blue coat and red collar, oval, 30 × 25, 400 guineas ; and the following works by Sir T. Lawrence :—Portrait of Mr. Ayscough Boucherett when young, in black coat, 80 guineas ; Portrait of Mrs. Locke, widow of William Locke, of Norbury Park, half-figure, seated in red chair, in large white cap and black dress, 30 × 25, 1,350 guineas ; Portrait of William Locke the elder, in gray coat, 30 × 25, 210 guineas ; whole-length Portrait of Amelia, Mrs. Angerstein, and child, in white dress, with yellow scarf over her arm, landscape background, 107 × 72, exhibited at the Royal Academy, 1800 (the portrait of the child was added some time after the picture had been exhibited), 2,150 guineas; the Duke of Wellington, in the dress he wore, and the horse ("Copenhagen"), he rode at the Battle of Waterloo, 55 × 38, 180 guineas; John Julius Angerstein, in red robe, 35 × 28, 125 guineas, and Studies of the heads of Miss Boucherett, and her two sisters, 27 × 34, 430 guineas.

Finally, the dispersal of the extensive collections of old Rhodian, Persian, Anatolian, and Hispano-Mauro pottery, bronzes, Oriental china, furniture, Persian prayer-rugs, and P.R.A. costumes, etc., of the late Lord Leighton of Stretton, took place on July 8th and two following days, whilst the remaining works of the collection of ancient and modern pictures and water-colour drawings was dispersed on July 11th and July 13th and 14th. The sale excited an exceedingly great amount of interest, and very high prices were paid for the objects of art which were collected by the late President, rather from an artist's point of view of colour than with the connoisseur's rigid insistence in regard to condition. The first three days' sale comprised 462 lots, which showed a total of £6,984. We have only space for the enumeration of a few of the articles which realized the best prices:—An oviform Jar, of Persian ware, with circular panels of conventional flowers in black on a scale ground, 17 inches high, 60 guineas; a pear-shaped Persian Bottle, elaborately enamelled with vases of tulips, hyacinths, and geometrical ornaments in shades of blue and green, 21 inches high, £121; a Rhodian pear-shaped Bottle, enamelled with hounds, hares, and gazelles in red and black on a pale blue ground, 17 inches high, 105 guineas; a bronze Statuette by Albert Gilbert, "Icarus," 40 inches high, 350 guineas; Lord Leighton, The Sluggard, a bronze statue, Royal Academy, 1886, 430 guineas—a very small sum compared with the £1,000 paid by the Chantrey Fund for the companion statue of An Athlete struggling with a Serpent, which is at South Kensington; an Italian Shrine, carved and gilt, enclosing the Virgin and Child, angels supporting a crown, canopy and columns with cherubs and shells, pierced Gothic design, 40 inches wide, £462; a pair of Japanese oblong Panels of dark wood, inlaid with geese and millet seed in engraved ivory, etc., 50 × 26, £151; a piece of old Persian velvet Rug, decorated with a seated noble surrounded by retainers, 26 × 21, £135; and the President's writing desk, designed by G. Aitchison, A.R.A., 12 guineas. The second three days' sale comprised 376 lots, which showed a total of £25,019. The studies in oil by Lord Leighton realized very high amounts comparatively, and the competition for them was exceedingly spirited. A few of the principal were as follows:—The Coast of Asia Minor, from Rhodes, 61 guineas; Doorway, Algiers, 62 guineas; Head of a Girl, 60 guineas; St. Mark's, Venice, 70 guineas; Interior of St. Mark's, Venice, 55 guineas;

Bay Scene, Island of Rhodes, 90 guineas ; View on the Coast, Lindos, 75 guineas ; Acqua Cetosa, Rome, 48 guineas ; Study in the Campagna, with Monte Soracte, 92 guineas ; Study of a Man's Head, 50 guineas ; View in Capri, 60 guineas ; Villa Malta, Rome, 50 guineas ; The Rocks of the Sirens, Capri, 50 guineas ; In St. Mark's, Venice, 62 guineas ; Carrara Mountains, 25 guineas ; Vittoria, 61 guineas ; Head of an Italian Girl, 48 guineas ; View in the Campagna, 100 guineas ; The Coast of Ægina, Pnix in the foreground, 75 guineas ; Woody Hill-side, 68 guineas. The more important pictures of the President were :— Perseus and Pegasus, circular, 10 inches diameter, study for the large picture, 100 guineas ; Vittoria, $8\frac{1}{2} \times 6\frac{1}{2}$, 90 guineas ; The Triumph of Music, "Orpheus by the power of his art redeems his wife from Hades,"¹ Royal Academy, 1856, 80×110 , 155 guineas ; Head of a Girl in white dress, 15×10 , 160 guineas ; Cimabue finding Giotto in the fields of Florence, 50×35 , painted at the age of nineteen, 92 guineas ; The Duel between Romeo and Tybalt, 37×50 , painted at the age of twenty, 145 guineas ; The Fair Persian, 25×20 , one of the most beautifully finished works in the sale, 420 guineas ; A Bacchante, 27×21 , 320 guineas ; The Vestal, 27×20 , 370 guineas ; Rizpah, Royal Academy, 1893, engraved, 36×52 , 240 guineas ; Phryne at Eleusis, Royal Academy, 1882, 86×48 , 260 guineas ; Candida, 21×14 , 440 guineas ; Wide Wondering Eyes, 20×15 , 360 guineas ; Clytie, Royal Academy, 1892, 32×54 , 110 guineas ; Perseus and Pegasus, with the head of Medusa, coming to the rescue of Andromeda, circular, 72 inches diameter, 490 guineas ; 'Twiht Hope and Fear, Royal Academy, 1895, 43×33 , 330 guineas ; and Perseus and Andromeda, Royal Academy, 1891, 91×50 , 620 guineas. The most important of the collection of pictures by different artists were the four large "upright" landscapes by Corot, Morning, Noon, Evening, and Night, each about 54×27 , were painted for Desamps, and for some years hung in his dining-room at Barbizon. Lord Leighton bought them, and they adorned his drawing-room at Kensington ; they cost him less than 1,000 francs each about thirty years ago, and are exceedingly fine works, quite worthy of the position they so long occupied ; "on the other hand, they are much less finished than Corots usually are, being painted in a bold, broad style, with glowing colours, strong and impressive effects, and great wealth of tones ; we may add that till they were hung in King Street they were practically unseen, so dark were the rooms at Barbizon and Kensington." The series was sold together and realized 6,000 guineas. The important drawings were:—T. Gainsborough, Lady in a landscape, whole-length study in black and white chalk, 19×12 , 290 guineas; Sir E. Burne-Jones, Chaucer's Dream of Good Women, 1865, $11\frac{1}{2} \times 15\frac{1}{4}$, 280 guineas. In addition to the above-mentioned series of Corots, the pictures included:—J. Constable, The Shower, $9\frac{1}{2} \times 12$, 200 guineas; and The Hay Wain: study of the locality, $13\frac{1}{2} \times 11$, 150 guineas; Corot, Lake Scene, with figure of boat, evening effect, $9\frac{1}{4} \times 13\frac{1}{4}$, 250 guineas; C. Van Haanen, A Village Girl, 12×8 , presented by the artist, 145 guineas; G. Mason, Landscape, with girl and calves, 11×21 , 500 guineas—bought by Mr. Tate for the new Gallery of Modern Art, now in course of erection on the site of Millbank prison; Sir J. E. Millais, Shelling Peas, 1889, presented by the artist, 50×40 , 710 guineas; Alma Tadema, The Corner of the Studio, presented by the artist, 24×17 , 1,800 guineas; G. F. Watts, The Haystacks, 13×28 , 290 guineas; and Venus, presented by the artist, 21×11 , 90 guineas; and Tintoretto, Portrait of Paolo Paruta, Italian historian, in dark fur-lined robe, three-quarter length, seated, 430 guineas. Lord Leighton's Library, and collections of engravings, Japanese prints, etchings by Rembrandt, and drawings by the Old Masters, came under the hammer on July 15th and 16th.

Of the few minor sales which occurred during 1896, we may here mention the ancient and modern pictures of the late Mr. George F. Perkins of Chipstead, and sold on February 29. These included the property bought in at the 1890 sale (see vol. ii. 150-151), the more important works being:—Sir J. Reynolds, Meditation: young girl in a reverie, the white dress having a border of embroidery at the neck and wrists, 36 × 27, 460 guineas; A. Cuyp, Woman and Child, in a misty landscape, with large tress on the right, 36 × 27, 380 guineas; A. Van de Velde, The Flight into Egypt, a sketch for this picture is in the Louvre, engraved, 240 guineas; J. N. Lancret, a Fête Champêtre, a composition of eight figures in a landscape, with fountain on the left, 25 × 31, exhibited at Manchester, 1857, as the work of Watteau, 800 guineas; the same day's sale included Sir W. Beechey, "La Colombe Sauvée," portrait of Miss Mary Anne Payne, afterwards Mrs. Dolphin, whole length, 93 × 58, 375 guineas; and Vandyck, Portrait of the artist's sister reading, a circle, 315 guineas. A sale of pictures from various sources, on March 14th, included a few good works, notably J. C. Hook, Between Tides, from the David Price sale, 305 guineas; P. F. Poole, the Seventh Day of the Decameron, 1855, 420 guineas; Sir A. W. Callcott, Dutch Fishing Boats running foul, in the endeavour to board, from the collection of Jesse Watts Russell, 1875, (vol. ii., p. 242), 300 guineas; and E. Nicol, Molly Brierly, 330 guineas. A sale on March 20th and 21st, included a series of interesting

Water-Colour Drawings, the most important of which was a View off Hastings by C. Fielding, 1840, 285 guineas; and the following pictures:— G. Cole, Carting Fern, 1873, 230 guineas; W. Holman Hunt, Il Dolce Far Niente, 1866, 205 guineas; Alma Tadema, a Roman Scribe writing despatches, 22 × 16, 325 guineas; and Marcus Stone, Time of Roses, 48 × 24, 290 guineas. Mr. F. Smallman's collection, sold on March 27th, included J. MacWhirter, Constantinople, and the Golden Horn, from Eyoub, 60 × 96, 225 guineas; E. J. Poynter, "Sweet is the Breath of Morn," 1888, 22 × 22, 130 guineas; J. C. Hook, The Spiller Boys, 1889, 28 × 42, 500 guineas; B. Riviere, "There's many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip," 1881, 27 × 53, 235 guineas; V. Cole, Streatley, 240 guineas; H. W. B. Davis, "After Sunset," 280 guineas; Sir E. Landseer, Taking a Buck, from the Manley Hall Collection, 235 guineas; and a series of interesting sketches of sports and pastimes in oils by John Leech. We may also mention the very complete collection of etchings and engravings after the works of J. L. E. Meissonier, formed by Dr. T. H. Bickerton, of Liverpool, sold May 5th; the valuable collection of autograph letters, comprising Pope's unpublished correspondence with William Fortescue, the correspondence of Swift, Pope, Parnell and Gay with Charles Ford; and the Shakespeare Relics which were formerly exhibited at his birthplace, Stratford-on-Avon: these formed the sale of June 4th; the remaining portion of the collection of engravings formed by the late Mr. J. Challoner Smith, February 3rd—6th; a sale of December 12th, which included Sir T. Lawrence, Portrait of Lady Maria Oglander walking on the sea-shore in white dress, carrying her hat in her right hand, 94 × 57, from the Royal Academy, 1817, 550 guineas; and Madame Le Brun, Portrait of the Artist, holding a palette, on panel, the engraved picture, 1080 guineas; and finally the sale on December 17th and 18th, of the collection of English and European Porcelain formed by the late Mr. James Tuke, of Hitchen, and a collection of porcelain and faïence, the property of Captain John H. Reynolds, most of which was collected by the well-known connoisseur, Mr. C. W. Reynolds, formerly of Eaton Place.

It is obvious that any record of an enterprise still at the zenith of its popularity must needs be broken off abruptly when such record is published. It is true that the moment here chosen to suspend the narrative chanced to coincide with the year marking the commemoration of the longest reign in English History; a date which has been adopted by the authors of many works dealing with the history of the present century. Therefore, with no pretence of completion, the further story of Christie's must be left for the present to the periodical press, until such time has elapsed for material to accumulate for a supplementary volume, For "Christie's" is not merely a successful commercial enterprise, it is a British Institution, known over the whole civilized world: and the history of British Institutions must needs be, we hope, a serial with no hint of "Finis" looming near, either for the empire which contains them or such well-established ventures as the classic auction rooms of King Street, where so many collectors face the storm of destiny represented by the hammer of the auctioneer, whose "Going—going—gone—" is in no way a fitting legend to close the notice of a firm so intimately associated with the Fine Arts in Great Britain.
